This book was produced in EPUB format by the Internet Archive.

The book pages were scanned and converted to EPUB format automatically. This process relies on optical character recognition, and is somewhat susceptible to errors. The book may not offer the correct reading sequence, and there may be weird characters, non-words, and incorrect guesses at structure. Some page numbers and headers or footers may remain from the scanned page. The process which identifies images might have found stray marks on the page which are not actually images from the book. The hidden page numbering which may be available to your ereader corresponds to the numbered pages in the print edition, but is not an exact match; page numbers will increment at the same rate as the corresponding print edition, but we may have started numbering before the print book's visible page numbers. The Internet Archive is working to improve the scanning process and resulting books, but in the meantime, we hope that this book will be useful to you.

The Internet Archive was founded in 1996 to build an Internet library and to promote universal access to all knowledge. The Archive's purposes include offering permanent access for researchers, historians, scholars, people with disabilities, and the general public to historical collections that exist in digital format. The Internet Archive includes texts, audio, moving images, and software as well as archived web pages, and provides specialized services for information access for the blind and other persons with disabilities.

The Vimuttimagga is probably thework of a famous Buddhist monk of Ceylon living in the first century after Christ. The original text in the Pali nolonger exists; but the work has survived a sixth century Chinese translation; and it is from this that the presenttranslation has been made.

In contrast to the somewhat aca-demic approach of the later and betterknown Visuddhimagga, the Vimuttimaggagives the impression of having beenwritten by one whose heart was in hiswork. Though it covers approximately the same ground as the Visuddhimaggait is marked by a lively sense of urgency for which one looks in vain in the laterwork. It is above all a call to practise. This work, which rivals the Visuddhimagga in historical importance (italmost certainly inspired the Visuddhimagga) and in many ways surpasses it as an exposition of the Buddha's teach-ing, has now for the first time been madegenerally accessible in an English trans-lation.

Aciram vat9 ayarh kayo pathavim adhisessatiChuddho apetavinndno, nirattharh va kalingaram.1

Truly it will not be long before this body lies in the earth, bereft of con-sciousness, like a useless piece of wood, which is thrown away.

— Soma Thera's translation in"Words Leading to Disenchantment", Bosat, Oct. 1959.

Truly, indeed, it was not long after—just four months since he wrote thisarticle—that he suddenly passed away. Often he used to say that this wasthe sort of death he preferred.

It is fitting to record here the life and work of the Venerable Soma MahaThera, for, but for his indomitable energy and earnestness this work wouldnot have been undertaken, persisted in, and brought to a conclusion in justfour months. Whenever any difficulty arose it was to him that the othersturned. When we were tempted to give up the work on encountering reallyhard patches, he was always ready with encouragement and with a way out ofthe difficulty. He loved to work hard, and half-hearted effort was unknownto him. Not infrequently he used to say, "Better wear out than rust out".

Soma Maha Thera was born on December 23, 1898, in Kotahena, Colombo, and passed away at Vajirarama, Bambalapitiya, Colombo, Tuesday, February23, 1960. His father was Emmanuel Marian Perera Pulle, and his mother, Theresa Rodrigo Babapulle. His name was Victor Emmanuel Perera Pulle. He received his education at St. Benedict's College, Kotahena.

Once at the age of eleven, when he was told by his teacher that God mademan, he promptly asked him, "Who made God?". The teacher, apparentlyunused to this sort of question from his pupils, snapped back, "Do not questionthe antecedents of God". However, this incident pleased neither the teachernor the pupil. He began to read and think for himself. One day his mothergave him one rupee as pocket-money, and Victor walked about three miles toa bookshop in the Fort, Colombo, looking out for a book priced at one rupeeor less, as that was all he had. Finding an English translation of the Dhamma-pada being sold for a rupee he quickly bought and read it again and again. This was his introduction to the Buddhadhamma. From that day on he eagerly attended lectures and sermons on the Dhamma, the while reading what literature came his way on philosophy, art, archaeology, history—in factanything that would add to his knowledge. And thus he moved further andfurther away from the faith of his fathers. During these years, as his motherobjected to his reading late into the night, he would, after she had gone tosleep, begin reading by candle light under the bed. Sometimes he found thatwhen he had finished reading it was already day. Such was his thirst forknowledge.

Sometime in 1920 he had met Mr. W. Joseph Soysa, one of the founder-members of the Servants of the Buddha, the well-known association which hasits headquarters at Lauries Road, Bambalapitiya, and of which the VenerableKassapa Thera is the founder-patron. After being actively engaged for sometime in the publication of the "Blessing" which was edited by the then president of the association, Dr. Cassius A. Pereira, he, along with Mr. Soysa, joined the Colombo Buddhist Union in the early twenties, and presented alarge collection of books to the Union library. He composed "A formula of associate worship" 1 to be used by members of the Union at their monthlyjoint flower-offering at one of the many shrines in the city.

Shortly after this, once again with his equally keen friend Mr. Soysa, hefounded the Fort Study Circle and was elected its organizing secretary. Later, as work increased, assistance was needed and Mr. W. Don Michael waselected joint secretary.

The following extracts are from Mr. Michael's article entitled "Apostleof the Dhamma", written on the passing away of Soma Maha Thera:

The sudden death of Soma Thera has uprooted from our -midst a-per-sonality distinguished at once by the versality of his talents, self-sacrifice, personal sanctity, and crusading apostleship of the Dhamma. A deepunderstanding of human nature and the human problem of suffering hadmellowed him and bred in him, in an unusual degree, qualities of tolerance, patience, restraint and sympathy with fellow-beings. Opposition and frustration left in him no sense of defeat or bitterness. He was the workingbee in the Master's hive and, in His service, the very juice of the bitter thymeturned into honey at his touch. No wonder that, in the Augustan age of Buddhist renascence in Ceylon, Soma Thera was considered to represent the fine flower of Buddhist culture. He shed its fragrance wherever hemoved. As scholar, preacher, organiser, monk and friend it may be aptlysaid of him: "Nihil tetigit quod non ornavit".

1. Associate Offering Of Flowers, Incense And Light To The Buddha.

We have gathered here to pay homage to the Blessed One, who found the way to Happi-ness for all beings. With these flowers we honour the mainfold purity of the Master; withincense, his compassion; with the light of these lamps, his perfect enlightenment.

By our joint worship of the Buddha, may we gain the strength to work together infriendliness, sympathising with those in trouble, rejoicing with those who are are fortunate, and avoiding all the evil courses of action, namely, the evil courses of selffish desire, hate, fear and delusion.

These sterling qualities of Soma Thera were happily blended in a characterin which humility and service formed the keynote. He never spared himself. He gave till it hurt. He gave UNTO THIS LAST—unto death. Over-work, fatigue, were the proximate causes of the dire malady which struckdown this mighty oak of the Dhamma which was a shade and refuge ofmany a seeker after Truth. Today a void is left standing which may takeyears to fill.

'To those of us who knew him and enjoyed his friendship and affection for nearly four decades both as the dashing young layman Victor E. P.Pulle, and as a monk of blessed memory, Soma Thera presents a remarkable character study. The child was the father of the man, Thera. Yet in histwenties, he was a rebel from the faith of his fathers and questing for the knowledge of the truth. In the 1930's, still hot on the pursuit, he was the leader of a band of young men who formed the Fort Study Circle underthe Presidency of Mr. J. Tyagarajah, with Dr. L. A. (now Sir Lalita)Rajapakse and the late Mr. R. Nadarajah as Vice-Presidents.

'Their motto was sacrifice and service and their main object was theeconomic and cultural development of the country. The regular weeklyprogramme of the Circle, all planned by Victor, included classes in Pah,Hindi, Layman's Law, History, Economics and politics. With whatresourcefulness, with what prevision of judgement and success, he organised and directed its activities towards the cultural and literary formation of theday are now matters of history...

*Young Victor's reputation for literary and critical scholarship was suchthat Dr. Lucian De Zilwa prefaced his talk by saying that he accepted theinvitation for a lecture with the major object of making the acquaintanceof Mr. V. E. P. Pulle; and Mr. K. P. S. Menon, one of the most gracefuland eloquent public speakers this country has ever had, began his lectureby saying that he was always anxious to see the set of young men who couldproduce an annual report of such literary excellence as that turned out bythe Fort Study Circle.

'For Victor Pulle reason was the touchstone of truth. In this quest, hestudied comparative religion, logic, philosophy—Dahlke and Schopenhauerhad a particular appeal to him—art, sculpture, archaeology, history, musicand even astrology. Indeed, like Bacon, he took all knowledge for hisprovince. There was not a single individual in the Fort of his day who

Service of the world is the highest homage we can pay to the Buddha, the friend andhelper of all beings. Let this act of homage with flowers, incense and light, be the symbolof the homage of service of the world every Buddhist has to fulfil. Let us dedicate ourselvesanew today to tread the Path of Service trodden by the Master—the Path of Charity, Virtueand Clear Thought.

Let us remind ourselves now and frequently that the greatest charity is in giving thegift of fearlessness (abhaya dand) to the world by refraining from killing, stealing, unchastity,lying and drink. Thus we shall be able to become merciful, honest, chaste, truthful andsober, and make the society in which we live a noble one.

combined in himself such a vast amalgam of knowledge. Literary andeconomic studies, however, could not satisfy his ardent mind and he joinedthe Sangha. It was in this august calling that his scholarship ripened and Buddhist revival throughout the World received from the results of hislabour a new life and orientation.

'Meditation, study, teaching the Dhamma, canonical research and his owntrials and tribulation in the process produced a vast transformation in SomaThera. The Han and impulsiveness of the layman turned into serene calm. The combative debater of yesteryear became the sedate teacher and friendlyadviser. The glint of battle which earlier rose to his eyes when argumentwaxed high grew into sparks of sympathy and compassion. The chiselledsquare jaws which hurled challenge softened their contours. Above all the terrific right fist which characteristically swung menacingly in debatewould swing no more. It was obvious even to us his old boon companionsto whom he still accorded the privilege of "ragging" him once in. a way, that this great pioneer and savant, by a terrific ordeal of trial and error, had at last subdued himself and that he had not only found the MiddlePath but had established himself so firmly in it that he was a fitting exemplar of his Master's Way of Life.

'As a writer, Soma Thera belongs to the genre whom Buffon's dictum

"Le style est Vhomme meme" is perfectly applicable. In his Study Circle days, he had a massive style. The exposition and, argument would at times be obscured by the weight of movement. He used his pen as a tomahawk.

When Carthage had to be destroyed, he made no bones about it but went and destroyed. As a Thera, the old asperity and venom disappeared and the style assumed a precision, clarity, mellowness and gentle movement which reflected the repose and sureness of his own mind. It is significant that, in recent years, his thoughts turned to poetry. They all centre on the Dhamma. One of them recalls so naturally the self-abnegation of the bees in Virgil's lines "Sic vos, non vobis, mellificatis, apes"—not for yourself, ye bees, your cells ye fill—that the verses "Giving Up" deserve quotation'.1

One day, towards the end of 1928, our common friend, Mr. W. Joseph Soysa (Oliver as we call him), introduced me to Victor. But it was hardly necessary. Simultaneously Victor and I knew that we had been friends before.

in an earlier life.2 But we were always grateful to Oliver for this. Later I was happy to find that the Buddha taught that it was not easy to find a being, who, during the vast period of time covered in the process of birth and death, and birth again and death, had not, at one time or another, been a mother, a father, a brother, a sister, a son, a daughter. The Blessed One then asks the question,

"What is the reason for this"? and himself answers: "Not to be known is the start of beings enmeshed in ignorance and fettered by craving, running on, speeding on through interminable births and deaths. Nor can it be said'of therunning on and the speeding on of ignorant and craving beings that they aretending to an end. And in this interminable process, for long have you allexperienced grief bitter and sharp and made the graveyards bigger and bigger. Because of that you should turn away from the formations (sankhdras), cutthem off, and become free of them"—S. II, 190 (Soma Thefa's translation). This is no poetic fancy, as at first sight it may appear to be. This is the wordof the Supremely Enlightened One who has done with poetic fancy. His is thevision of things as they are (yathdhhutandandassana). And this vision hedescribes without exaggeration; for exaggeration the Buddhas do not indulgein.

In the late twenties, Victor and I had heard from the late Mr. WongMow Lam, the Chinese scholar, who was in Ceylon" for sometime, that therewere great possibilities for spreading the Theravdda in his country and that there was much that could be translated from the Mahay ana literature of China. So when we went to Burma in 1934, remembering the words of ourscholar friend, we decided after careful thought to go to the Far East andreturn later to Burma for ordination. We began our journey to China by wayof Kawkerik, over the misty Dawna Mountains and across the border for fourdays on foot to Raehaeng in Thailand, and thence by bus, river boat andtrain through Svankaloke (Svargaloka—heaven world), Pisaloke (Visnuloka — Visnu's world), we arrived in Krum Teb (Deva Nagara — the city of the gods) which is Bangkok. Then again, after travelling by train to Penang, and by ship to Singapore and Hong Kong, we arrived in Shanghai. Findingthere no facilities for study we proceeded to Tokyo. There we met Prof. Nichiki Kimura of Rissho University, who invited us to attend his Englishlectures on Mahay ana. Towards the end of 1935, through his good offices, v/e were invited to Jozaiji, the Nichiren temple in Kawatana-Machi, Nagasaki-ken. The head of that temple, the Rev. N. R. M. Ehara, had been a lecturer atRissho for sometime. He was the perfect host—a most understanding, patient, pleasant, witty character with abundant laughter, and he was young. He dideverything within his power to make our stay as comfortable as possible.

an earlier life, thus:

"As when with downcast eyes we muse and brood, And ebb into a former life, or seemTo lapse far back in some confused dreamTo states of mystical similitude; If one but speaks or hems or stirs his chair, Ever the wonder waxeth more and more, So that we say, 'All this hath been before, All this hath been, I know not when or where'. So, friend, when first I looked upon your face, Our thought gave answer each to each, so true—Opposed mirrors each reflecting each—That tho' I knew not in what time or place, Methought that I had often met with you, And either lived in either's heart and speech".

XIII

When we arrived at Kawatana-Machi, Jozaiji was being rebuilt. By theend of April, the building operations over, our host set apart the new guest-house for our use and called it the Lion Hall, "in honour", as he said, "of the Lion Isle, the home of my friends". We spent a most pleasant and fruitful year in our Lion Hall, for, it was here that the whole of the GedatsuDo Ron (the Chinese translation of the Vimuttimagga) was translated into English for the first time. Perhaps it will not be out of place to mention herethat when the late Ven. Nyanatiloka Maha Thera was in Japan during theyears that followed the First World War, he tried, but failed, to persuade any Japanese scholar to undertake this translation. So when we sent him a copy of our translation he heartily welcomed it. The word for word translation the draft translation, copying, cyclostyling, binding, packing for the post, were all done by the three of us and that during the brief space of four months. Besides, the section on virtue had to be cyclostyled thrice before Victor wassatisfied with it.

This is how the translation began. Some days after we went into residence the Lion Hall, our friend showed us around his new library. Pointing tothree thin volumes he said that that was the Chinese translation of the Vimutti-magga, and that originally it was supposed to have been written in Pali inCeylon by a Sinhalese Thera. With one voice both of us exclaimed that wewere ready to begin translating it that very instant,—of course, with his help. And our friend, with his great big ringing laughter, readily agreed. And weimmediately translated the first few pages though he had much to do, it beingvery close to Hanamatsuri, the Flower Festival, which corresponds to Vesakin Theravdda lands. Working incessantly we managed to issue the translation of the first fascicle on Hanamatsuri, May 28, 1936. Continuing to workeven up to twenty hours a day sometimes we were able to post the last copyof the last section of the translation to fifty scholars by the last day of September, 1936. During this period Victor knew no fatigue in that most agreeable climate of South Japan.

Jozaiji is beautifully situated a third of the way up the hill which risesabruptly from the broad paddy fields that stretch right up to the sea. Infront is the river Kawa, the beauty of which they sing in Kawa-no-Kawatana, the song of the Kawa of Kawatana. Behind, the hill rises higher and higherand is level at the top. The temple was here in ancient times, and here Victorand I used to stroll under those attractively twisted and gnarled sungi trees, the cypresses, that adorn the grounds of Japanese temples. One summer daywhile walking there our attention was drawn to some plants we seemed torecognize. At first we thought they were well-grown violets. But soon foundthey were gotukola (Hydrocotyle Asiatica). Their stalks were nearly eighteeninches long with large leaves. We took a handful of them to the temple, and our host was agreeably surprised to hear that this was eaten in Ceylon. Heliked it so much that he introduced it to the whole village. They call ithorseshoe.

XIV

During these four months of translation work the thought that repeatedly arose in our minds was how soon could we return to Burma for ordinationand put into practice the teaching of the Sambuddha so clearly set forth in the Vimuttimagga. It was plain, open, and easy to understand. What it saidreached the heart direct — hadayangama seemed to be the correct word to describe one's reaction on reading the Vimuttimagga for the first time. Therewas no point in delaying.

So we left Jozaiji with our friend the Rev. N. R. M. Ehara and a fewothers, went to Nagasaki and took ship to Rangoon. Our friend was muchgrieved that we were leaving so soon and repeatedly said as the ship was leaving, "Come back, come back again". That was the last time we were to see him. For, though we had hoped some day to see him again, word came shortlyafter the Second World War that he had suddenly passed away. This wassometime after he had been appointed head of the Nichiren sect for the districtof Omura.

Before we decided to translate the Vimuttimagga our host was keen ontranslating some of the smaller treatises of Nichiren Shonin which Victor did.Some of them were published in the Young East, the journal of the JapaneseBuddhist Associations. Tokyo.

We reached Moulmein by the end of October, and found that U. Chit Swe, our ddyaka, had made all arrangements for our ordination in an aranhdvdsa(forest residence), as requested by us, and had gone over to India on pilgrimage. His close friend, U. Chit Su, deputised for him. And on November 6, 1936, Victor and I received our higher ordination with the Venerable Pandava MahaThera of Taungwainggyi Shewgyin Kyaung Taik, Moulmein, as teacher. Herewe came to hear of the Venerable Narada Maha Thera, also known as JetavanaSayadaw. As he was then living in nearby Thaton, we visited him. A laypupil of his who had earlier instructed us in the practice of the Satipatthdnamethod of meditation, too, accompanied us to see the Sayadaw. His methodwas strictly in accordance with the Satipatthdna Suttas of the Digha and Majj-hima Nikdyas and their commentaries. He said that the necessary instructionwas found in them and no new interpretation was necessary; the Buddhacalled it the sole way and that there was no other 'sole' way to the purification of beings.

On reaching Ceylon by way of India in the middle of 1937, Bhikkhu Somamet a companion of his childhood days who became so attached to him thathe would not leave him till his death — that distressing thing called asthma. It would have rendered many a strong man useless for work quite early. Butasthma or no asthma, he worked on and on up to the end with increasing vigour. Hearing that we were returning to Ceylon, a ddyaka, the late Mr. W. M. Barnesde Silva, had set apart a small house for our use in a quiet place at Belihuloya. We could not stay there long as the Venerable Soma fell ill and had to go toColombo for treatment and we stayed at the Vidyalankara Oriental College, Kelanjya, for a time.

XV

After he recovered from his illness, and wishing to live in quiet surroundingsfor a while, we were able to go into residence at the MahanadI Arama atGampolawela. Then at the invitation of the late Sir Baron Jayatilaka wevisited Bangalore in 1939 with the Venerable Naravila Dhammaratana MahaThera, as leader of the Mission of Goodwill to India. There the mission wasable to secure from the Government of Mysore a site for a Buddhist Centre, and both of us returned to Ceylon in 1940 owing to illness.

As Bhikkhu Soma needed rest for sometime, Mr. A. B. C. de Soysaplaced his bungalow, in his estate in Kurunegala, at our disposal. After afew months' stay there we were invited by the Venerable Nyanaponika MahaThera to the Island Hermitage, Dodanduwa. As the Second World War hadbegun, all the German Theras of the Hermitage were interned and the Venerable Nyanaloka Maha Thera, the present adhipati (chief resident Thera) wasthen in charge of the place. During this period the attacks of asthma weremost severe. At one time the only available medicament was Himrod's Asthma Cure. It had to be lit with a match and the fumes inhaled. BhikkhuSoma could hardly walk two yards without this Himrod's cure, and couldnot sleep at night without filling the room with these fumes. One nighteven this failed to help. So about 2 a.m. he sat at his table and scribbledthese verses:

Out of the womb of sightless night

Rang out a word of healing strong,

And put to flight the evil throng

That stood betwixt the eye and light.

Where lies, friend, the golden mean ?Where's the heart forever clean ?Where is life at its best seen ?Where reaches one Peace Serene ?

In giving up.In giving up.In giving up.

When does one always see things clear ?When is one to all beings dear ?When does one wipe away all fear ?When does one to Truth adhere ?

In giving up.In giving up.In giving up.

How does one give full measure ?How, end poverty's pressure?How, come to rarest treasure?How, know the purest pleasure ?

By giving up.By giving up.By giving up.

Why on self a tight hand keep ?Why the heart in culture steep ?Why turn,on to wisdom deep?Why care not to sow or reap ?

XVI

For giving up.For giving up.For giving up.

He lived in this "our little island home", as he liked to call the Hermitage, from 1940-45 and from 1948-54. These were years he treasured much. For it was here that the first edition of The Way of Mindfulness (1941) and His Last Performance (1943) were written. He also edited here in 1943 Andpdna Sati of Dr. Cassius A. Pereira. In spite of his failing health hewrote unceasingly. He contributed articles to various Buddhist journals regularly. The quiet of the Hermitage appealed to him a great deal. Frequently he sat beneath the trees by the water's edge in deep thought, and the following verses might indicate some of the thoughts that occupied hismind then:

Away against the lip of sea and skyA tiny fisher craft tanned brown by sun,Pops up and down, like monk in russet clout.Upon the choppy sea of doubt and lust.

The tender palms of gold and light green frondsRemind me of my youth and boyhood's days. Amidst their plumy, wavy forms I throveImbibing nature's simple silent ways.

Once it was thought that his asthma might improve if he had a changeand so he stayed at Asokarama in Nuwara Eliya for sometime. There, walking along in Moon Plains once, he was absorbed in the beauty of awaterfall. He used to watch the water rushing down in a silver streak, andvery often the asthma left him on those occasions or he forgot it. This tiresomefriend, Asthma, has a peculiar trait. He wants attention. And, sometimes, if no attention is paid to him, he sharply retorts in return by paying no attention. These were the times when Soma Thera would say, "I am thoroughly fit. Ican work even the whole day", reminiscent of the Lion Hall days when hereally worked almost the whole day. It is about this waterfall in NuwaraEliya that he wrote:

E'er let me live and die where waters flowFrom hidden springs on heights that probe the sky. And come to light as white foam falling byThe negrc face of rocks that shine and glow.

Childlikeness was a prominent characteristic of his, and perhaps thefollowing verses illustrate some aspect of it:

E'er let me live and die with childlike sight, Beholding elfin gold and jewels bright, And dream-made treasure in the silent night Of travel on and on the Path of Light,

At the invitation of the late Venerable Tai Tsu, the well known Buddhistleader of China, the Venerable Madihe Pannasiha Thera (now Maha NayakaThera), the Venerable Soma Thera, and I, went to China to establish a PaliCollege at Sianfu, the ancient Buddhist Centre in Shensi Province, the homeof Fa Hsien the famous pilgrim. Arriving in Shanghai in early July, wefound that fighting had broken out in Shensi between the Nationalist and the Communist forces. There was no possibility of proceeding further. The Vassa-vdsa, the rainy season residence, was spent in Shanghai after which themission returned. During this period Soma Thera's radio sermons were muchappreciated. Besides, he addressed many gatherings in various parts of the city. The Shanghai Y.M.B.A. which he founded had, by the time the mission left, nearly three hundred members. He also conducted a Pali class, which waswell attended. In November that year the Mission returned to Hong Kongwhere, too, Soma Thera addressed various groups of Buddhists. Arriving inSingapore in January 1947, the mission had to wait two months for a boat. Meanwhile Soma Thera delivered sermons and lectures to large gatheringsboth in Singapore and Kuala Lumpur. The Mission returned to Ceylon inMarch that year. Soma Thera returned to the Island Hermitage at the endof 1948 and remained there till 1954. After his return from China, on hisinitiative, two important Buddhist associations in Colombo, The SasanadharaKanta Samitiya and The Banks' Asoka Society, were formed in 1950 and 1956 respectively. He was the founder-patron of the latter.

With the approach of the Buddha Jayanti celebrations, it was suggested that a bi-monthly called 'Buddha Jayant' be published for the duration of these celebrations for the benefit of the English reading public. When in 1953 the organizers came to ask Soma Maha Thera for his help, he threwhimself wholeheartedly into the work, for half-hearted effort was alien to hisnature. Most of the editorials on the Dhamma in the 'Buddha Jayanti* and a large number of translations from the Pali and the German, besidesoriginal articles, and the Jayanti Miscellany, were from his versatile pen. Hismasterly articles on 'The Greatest Mahanayaka Thera of Our Time' and theeditorial 'A Maker of Good Men' on the passing away of the Venerable Paelaene Siri Vajirafiana Maha Nayaka Thera, were written at a time whenhe was much harassed by asthma. Finding that the long stay at the IslandHermitage had worsened his asthma and seeing the advantage of being withthe Venerable Paelaene Siri Vajirafiana Maha Nayaka Thera at Vajiraramawith its well equipped library, Soma Thera came to reside once more at Vajirarama. Both the Maha Nayaka Thera and Soma Thera were happyto meet; for, as far back as 1919, the former had inspired the latter by hisgreat knowledge, understanding, and kindness. Soma Thera's regard andrespect for him kept on increasing during the years. They used to converseon the Dhamma and on allied subjects such as literature, history, grammar, folk-lore, and so on, for hours at a time. The Maha Nayaka Thera, too, was always ailing, but when both of them began to converse they forgot their ailments. It might be wondered how it was possible for one to get so interestedin such a theme as grammar. But the Maha Nayaka Thera was such a masterof the subject and an accomplished conversationalist that he was able to makeeven a subject like grammar interesting. I remember in the early thirtieshow the Maha Nayaka Thera discoursed on the Dhamma to a group of usyoung men whose leader was Victor. Once the questions put by Victor sointerested the Maha Nayaka Thera that he continued the conversation tillthree o'clock in the morning.

This early earnestness he maintained to the very end. How this longand earnest practice of the Dhamma moulded Soma Maha Thera's characteris briefly shown in the following extracts from an article by Ceylon's Directorof Education, Mr. S. F. de Silva: 'I came to know the Venerable Soma Thera as Mr. Victor Pulle some thirty years ago My first impression was of a remarkably earnest man who was determined to seek and find out the Truth. His face was an index to his earnestness and I often listened to him arguing a point We became very good friends and week in and week out I used to watch and realise that of the band that gathered together, he was one ofthe most earnest and untiring in his study of the Dhamma... .As a member of the Order he became a changed man. I noticed a strength of characterand calmness of demeanour in everything he said and wrote. I used to visithim in his room and talk things over many an evening. Occasionaly the eyewould flash and I could see the old time fighter but there was an unmistak-able sense of toleration of others and a remarkable kindliness in everythinghe said. The Venerable Soma Maha Thera was very well known to Englishspeaking audiences in the Island. Many may remember his thoughtful talksover Radio Ceylon. I am aware how deeply he was respected by Buddhist students in schools all over the island To me his translation, edition and notes of the Satipatthdna Sutta is characteristic of the man. He was one whowanted to practise the Dhamma, and the Satipatthdna Sutta was to him 'theone way for the ending of unhappiness'. I can see his mind in his introductorynotes and his interpretations of the text. The Venerable Soma Thera's edition of the Satipatthdna Sutta is a part of his own life because he was one whowanted to practise the Dhamma. I miss him very much as a friend butthose who knew him have no cause to grieve for a life that had been sonobly spent. He had acquitted himself heroically in all things he did to the end Alert and intensely alive in the search and practice of the Truth, it is of these that the Buddha has said that 'those who are heedful do notdie'. His life is an example to all those who knew him, that there is nothingnobler for a Buddhist than to live the life that the Buddha has preached, towalk the way He had walked and to follow Him on the Noble Quest. Maythe Venerable Soma Thera attain the Noble Quest he started some fortyyears ago'.

When one happens to be the only person in a powerful group to acceptanother teaching, much opposition may be expected. This Victor had in plenty. At these times he resorted to the calm atmosphere of Vajirarama, where the late Venerable Maha Nayaka Thera and the Venerable NaradaMaha Thera always found the time to speak with him, sometimes for hours, and he went away stimulated. Later, as a bhikkhu, when the VenerableSoma, while residing at the Vidyalankara Oriental College, Kelaniya, foundthat the opposition had grown into hostility, he had the ready sympathy andunstinted support of the late Venerable Lunupokune Dhammananda NayakaThera, the Venerable Kirivattuduve Siri Pannasara Nayaka Thera (nowVice-Chancellor) and the other venerable theras of the College. It is alsofitting to record here the help readily given by the late Mr. SagaraPalansuriya and Mr. K. M. W. Kuruppu during th^s difficult period. But bothas layman and as monk his attitude to those who were opposed to him, andwho later became hostile, was one of kindness and understanding. True foll-ower of the Master, he bore his sufferings without rancour, like the fragrantsandal wood tree which perfumes the axe that lays it low, and like the sugar-cane which sweetens the mouth where it is being crushed.

Soma Thera participated in the making of the simd, chapter house, at the Mahabodhi Society's Centre in Bangalore during the Buddha Jayanticelebrations in 1956. Some of the older members of the Buddhist Associationthere were pleasantly surprised to see him, for this was the site that the Missionof Goodwill had, in 1940, secured from the Government of Mysore for aBuddhist Centre, On his return to Ceylon in early 1957, Soma Thera wasinvited by the German Dharmaduta Society to lead the first Buddhist Missionto Germany in June that year, the other members being Vinita Thera, Mr. W.Joseph Soysa and myself. But though he underwent a serious operation just two weeks before the mission was due to leave. he insisted on not altering thetravel arrangements. Actually he went on board ship direct from the hospital. The wound had not healed completely then, and the dressing had to becontinued for another five weeks. At the end of this period he could not movehis left arm. It was after a further three months' treatment that he recovered. Yet during all this time Soma Thera worked with a fortitude which evokedthe admiration of all around him. Though the dry climate of Berlin helpedhis asthma he was not entirely free of attacks. Referring to his fortitude, afriend wrote, "No other monk except another Soma Thera would have ventured forth on such a mission after the serious operation he had to stand only acouple of weeks before".

Yet the work which he had undertaken absorbed all Soma Thera's timeand attention. He met the leading Buddhists in Berlin, who were anxiousto co-operate with the mission's work, and soon there began a series of weeklymeetings at which Soma Thera read a paper in German which wasfollowed by answering questions that the audience liked to ask. The inter-preting at these meetings was done by Mr. F. Knobelock, the then Presidentof the Congress of German Buddhist Associations, or by Mr. Guido Auster. This programme was continued till the mission left Berlin. Meanwhile Soma Thera addressed schools in various parts of the city. The childrenlistened to him with the greatest interest. Just before leaving Berlin, themission received an invitation from the Municipality of Iserlohn to conducta Meditation Seminar during the "Indian Week" which was a part of the Sauerland Cultural Season'. About one hundred people from all walks oflife attended it. The late Mr. Egon Vietta was the organiser of the Seminar. On the last day of the Seminar he announced that he had brought a fewquestions from his teacher, the wellknown Existentialist philosopher, Prof. Heidegger, who was ill and unable to travel. When these questions were put to the Ven. Soma Maha Thera his answers were prompt and so convincing that Mr. Vietta said that these same questions had been put by him to Europeanscholars, individually and in groups, but he had not received such satisfying answers as had been given by Soma Maha Thera.

Another invitation that the mission accepted was that of the Buddhistsof Hamburg. They were anxious to have us with them during Vesak time. Sofrom Islerlohn the mission left for Hamburg, where Mr. W. Stegemann, the President of the Buddhist Society of Hamburg, welcomed us. From here, after making a brief visit to London, Oxford, and Cambridge, the missionreturned to Hamburg where Soma Thera conducted classes in meditation and delivered lectures and led discussions on the Dhamma. These meetingswere well attended. He much liked working among the Hamburg Buddhistsbecause, as he said, they were well informed, organized, and greatly interested in their work as a body. In response to numerous requests, all the addresses delivered in Germany by Soma Maha Thera were published by the HamburgBuddhist Society in their Bulletin the Mitteilungsblatt.

With all this incessant work and travel Soma Thera grew weak, and whenhe returned to Ceylon from Germany in June 1958 he was very tired; butwith skilful medical attention and another operation he regained his formervigour and worked hard which he loved to do. Then again he fell ill—thistime with renal colic—and after another spell in hospital he was once morein a fit condition to continue his work. This time he slept hardly four hoursa day, from about midnight to 4 a.m. When told that he tired himself over-much, he used to say, "I have gathered enough now but I have not time enoughto give". So he worked on to the end never caring for his health. Yet hewas happy doing it.

He was held in affectionate and highest regard by all those who knewhim for his qualities of heart and head. One of them wrote from Englandthus: "I was mentioning to the Dons of the Faculty of Eastern Religions atOxford that there was in Ceylon a monk (referring to Soma Thera) who waseminently qualified by way of knowledge and learning to fill the Chair ofEastern Religions which is now vacant". Mr. Guido Auster, the Directorof the Oriental Department of the German State Library, Berlin, hearing ofhis death wrote, "He contacted many personalities of the religious and in-tellectual life in Berlin and Germany. He delivered lectures at various places, among them—most important in my opinion—several to pupils in our schools. He had an especially lucky hand in dealing with children and young peoplewho admired him. He was most patient towards enquirers and beginners". Again, he says, "This impressive personality, reminding me in his dignity of a high prelate during the Middle Ages, weilding not only spiritual but also temporal power, has dissolved".

The President of the Servants of the Buddha, Mr. Ananda Pereira, who,long before his 'teens, knew Soma Thera wrote thus of him in the Ceylon DailyNews of February, 27, 1960.

'With the death of the Venerable Soma Thera, Lanka loses one of hernoblest sons. Born of Roman Catholic parents on December 23, 1898, duly baptised and brought up in the faith of his parents, the youthful VictorPulle began asking questions—deep, simple, direct questions—the answersto which as given by his parents and spiritual advisors did not satisfy him. 'His inquiries in due course led him to Buddhism, where at last he foundthe answers, or at least the hope of satisfactory answers to his questions.

'He plunged into the study of the Buddha Dhamma. It was at thisperiod that he laid the foundation of that sure grasp of the Teachings thatserved him so well in later years as a missionary. He was associated withDr. Cassius A. Pereira (later Ven. Kassapa Thera) in the preparation of theBlessing. He was an enthusiastic and hard-working member of the Servantsof the Buddha. He made many friends.

'Never one to be satisfied with half measures, he was ordained as aBhikkhu in 1936. From the day he joined the Sangha, he adorned it. Asscholar, translator, writer, preacher and missionary, he strove mightily inthe Buddhist cause. He never spared himself.

'But those who knew him, will remember him most for his humanity. His was not the cold way of the anaemic academician. He lived his Buddhism with every beat of his warm generous heart. Sometimes heseemed impulsive, sometimes even a shade pugnacious, but never, never, didhe say or do a mean, false, or deliberately unkind thing.

'He was generous—with his advice, with his time, with himself. Thoughto outward appearance he was strong, his health was never particularly robust. But he never let ill-health interfere with his work, and his workwas always giving. I have seen him preaching sermons or reciting Pirith attimes when the mere act of breathing was acutely difficult because of asthma.

'Soma Thera was a genuine monk. He observed the Vinaya rules withabsolute strictness, never permitting himself the slightest infringement, His standards were the highest. His life was a shining example to others, Bhikkhus and lay-folk alike.

'One does not need to feel sorrow on his behalf. His road is the road ofthe Buddha, the Arahats, the mighty ones. He lived here a while and has gone on, strong and assured, brave and smiling, kind, gentle, untiring. The story is not done. We too must fare onward when our time comes. We shall meet again'.

During the last few months of his life he often spoke and wrote on death, quoting from the Suttas and other writings, for instance, his own translations from the Sanskrit of Visnusarman thus:

In him who ever and again,

Reflects on death's hard hand of pain, -

The drive for gross material gain

Grows limp like hide soaked through with rain;

and from the commentary to the Dhammapada: "Uncertain is life, certainis death; it is necessary that I should die; at the close of my life there is death.Life is indeed unsure but death is sure, death is sure" — Dh.-a. Ill, 170; and from the Sutta—S. IV, 211: "Mindfully and with complete awareness shoulda bhikkhu meet his end. This is the advice I give you".

'I knew the Venerable Soma Maha Thera intimately for nearly thirty-twoyears. During this period if the number of days we were absent from eachother be added up it will not amount to more than a few months. Yet duringall these years our interests centred round the Dhamma only. When I methim I knew very little Dhamma, having but recently accepted the Teachingof the Buddha. What Dhamma I now know was gleaned from him or inhis company. So when he passed away suddenly the blow was difficult tobear. Before this event "the separation" referred to in the words of theBuddha: Piyehi vippayogo dukkho, "the separation from the loved is ill",did not seem so difficult a thing to bear. Now it appeared in a different light.

The passing away of the Venerable Sariputta Thera caused in the VenerableAnanda Thera, who was then only Sotdpanna, Stream-entrant (he becameArahat later), great agitation of mind, in spite of his having been with theBuddha and learned the Dhamma from him for twenty-five years. How heserved the Buddha during those years is shown in the following verses, beauti-fully rendered by Mrs. C. A. F. Rhys Davids, thus:

For five-and-twenty years a learner I; No sensual consciousness arose in me.O see the seemly order of the Norm!For five-and-twenty years a learner I;No hostile consciousness arose in me.

0 see the seemly order of the Norm!

For five-and-twenty years on the Exalted One

1 waited, serving him by loving deeds, And like his shadow followed after him.

For five-and-twenty years on the Exalted One

In Memoriam

I waited, serving him with loving speech, And like his shadow followed after him. For five-and-twenty years on the Exalted OneI waited, serving him with loving thoughts, And like his shadow followed after him. When pacing up and down, the Buddha walked, Behind his back I kept the pace alway; And when the Norm was being taught, in meknowledge and understanding of it grew. 1

And it is this 'knowledge and understanding' that he refers to as being'confused' for him in the following verses, when the Venerable Sariputta Therapassed away:

The firmament on every handGrows dim, yea, all confused standThe truths I seemed to understand.Gone is the noble friend we love,And dark is earth and heaven above}

The following is a description by Soma Thera (Bosat, October 1959, pp.170-71) of how the Buddha comforted the Venerable Ananda Thera on thisoccasion:

When the Buddha was told of the passing away of the Venerable SariputtaThera, who was considered to be the Commander of the Army of Righteous-ness, the Blessed One said this to the Venerable Ananda Thera, who was upset, "Tell me Ananda, did Sariputta take the aggregate of virtue along with himand become extinct? Or did he take the aggregate of concentration alongwith him and become extinct? Or did he take along with him the aggregateof freedom and become extinct? Or did he take along with him the aggregateof the aggregate of the knowledge and insight of freedom and become extinct?'—'No Vener-able Sir'.—'Have I not, indeed, told you before that with all that is dear, pleasing, involved are change, separation, and variation?"

'The Buddha shows that it is not possible to stop the breaking up ofwhat is born, produced, and put together, and of what has the nature ofbreaking, and compares the Venerable Sariputta Thera to one of the greaterbranches of the mighty tree of the Community of Bhikkhus. Comparable tothe breaking of a bigger branch of a mighty tree, says the Buddha, is the Venerable Sariputta Thera's passing away and no one can stop the breaking of what is breakable by ordering that thing not to break'.

But when this peerless comforter, the Blessed One himself, passed away shortly afterwards the Venerable Ananda Thera uttered the following verses:

In Memoriam

And is the comrade passed away, And is the Master gone from hence ?No better friend is left, methinks, Than to mount guard o'er deed and sense. They of the older time are gone; The new men suit me not at all. Alone to-day this child doth brood, Like nesting-bird when rain doth fall. 1

Thus did the Venerable Ananda Thera find comfort, and we, too, findsolace at the feet of the Teacher of divine and human beings.

Sometimes birds fly into houses and, staying a while, sing and cheer thosethere; but suddenly they fly away, casting no glance behind, none knowingwhere. In like manner even as it is said: Anavhdto tato dga, anunndto itogato2— 'uncalled he hither came, unbidden soon to go', Soma Maha Thera,too, came uninvited and unbidden went away, the while having cheered someweary traveller on the way.

To me Soma Maha Thera was a kalydnamitta. In life he blessed me withthe friendship extolled by the Blessed One in no uncertain terms: Sakalameva h-idam Ananda brahmacariyarh yad idam kalydna-mittatd kalydna-sahdyatdkalydna-sampavankatd,3—'the whole of this holy life consists in noble friendship,in association, in intimacy with what is noble'. And in death he has drawn meever near to the Dhamma, that sure refuge and support, as has been sung bythe ancients, thus:

Dhammam vind natthi pita ca maidTameva tdnam saranam patitthdTasmd hi bho kiccamahnam pahdyaSundtha dhdretha cardtha dhamme}

Except the Dhamma of the Perfect One, There is no father and no mother here; The Dhamma is your refuge and support, And in the Dhamma is your shelter true, So hear the Dhamma, on the Dhamma think And spurning other things, live up to it.5

May that 'trusty, staunch, true friend', the Venerable Soma Maha Thera, attain to that happiness, higher than which there is none — Nibbdna, the Happiness Supreme!

Prefatory Note to Original Draft Translation
In the following pages is a draft translation of the first fascicle of Gedatsu Do Ron (Vimuttimagga), No. 1648 of the Taisho Edition of the Chinese Tripitaka (No. 1293 in Nanjws Catalogue). The pages of the text are given in square brackets.

This is circulated with the hope of receiving sugges-tions and criticisms helpful towards bringing out acomplete translation of the Vimuttimagga.

We have derived much help from Prof R. Higata's Japanese translation of the Gedatsu Do Ron, and Prof . PeMaung Tins English Translation of the Visuddhimagga.

PREFACE

As stated elsewhere (In Memoriam (p. xv) the draft translation of the Gedatsu Do Ron (being the Chinese name for the Vimuttimagga) was completed in four months. Therefore it was thought that it needed some revision. This the Venerable Soma Thera intended to do on his return to Ceylon in 1937. But he fell ill and by the end of 1939 the Second World Warwas already three months old. All hope of publishing the revised edition of the Original Draft Translation during the war had to be given up. Withthe end of the war, however, conditions were even less favourable. Mean-while, though the Venerable Soma Thera wished to complete the revisionand await a favourable occasion to publish it, other work he had undertaken prevented him from doing so. Further, asthma robbed him of much of his time. Thus the work he intended to do on the Vimuttimagga translationhad to be postponed each time he took it up.

When he passed away many venerable theras and ddyakas were muchinterested in publishing, at least, the Original Draft Translation as it was,and they requested me to prepare it for publication. Knowing my ownlimitations, I was at first rather disinclined to undertake this work, but lateracceded to their earnest request for the following reasons.

The Venerable Soma Thera had originally wished to have the Englishtranslation of the Vimuttimagga (The Path of Freedom) revised and publishedsome day. But later, seeing difficulties, he modified the idea and waseven content with merely revising the Draft Translation, leaving the publication itself to some future time. He said that the important thing, the DraftTranslation, had been done, and that if people felt that they needed it theywould see to its publication.

It was a work that had inspired both the Venerable Soma Thera and me, and there were many who welcomed its publication.

Dr. D. Roland D. Weerasuria of Balcombe House, Balcombe Place, Colombo, invited the Venerable Soma Thera sometime in 1959 to write anabridged version of the Visuddhimagga as he felt that such an edition wouldsupply a long felt want. But shortly after he began writing it death inter-vened. Dr. Weerasuria then requested the Venerable Nanamoli Thera totake up the work which, after some hesitation, he agreed to finish withina year. But he, too, passed away within a week. Sometime after thisDr. Weerasuria, having seen the Original Draft Translation of the Vimutti-magga, was keen on its publication.

This was a fitting occasion to pay a tribute to the memory of the twosenior co-translators of the Vimuttimagga, the Reverend N. R. M. Eharaand the Venerable Soma Maha Thera.

XXXI

Preface

And finally the urgent personal need to keep myself immersed in theDhamma throughout the waking hours during this period of stress promptedme to take up the work.

From the above it will be seen that this work was taken up due to sheerforce of circumstances and not because of any special qualification on mypart. Therefore, perhaps, some things stated here could have been said inother and better ways. Inexpert as I am in scholarly per suits there is boundto be many a lack in my portion of this work and so I ask reader to bear withme should he detect any errors of commission or omission here.

In preparing this work for printing I have made a few alterations in therendering of certain terms and passages, as they appeared in the OriginalDraft Translation, in accordance with notes and instructions left bythe Venerable Soma Thera. The lacunae in the Draft Translation werefilled, as far as possible, with the help of the word for word translation inconsultation with Soma Thera's notes. All the longer Pali quotations inthe footnotes, except a few from the Visuddhimagga and some from theDhammasahgani etc., were inserted by me. They are given in full mainlywith the idea of helping the general reader conversant with the Pali but towhom reference books are not easily accessible. By this attempt of mineif but just a few readers happen to be benefitted, to any extent, I shouldconsider myself amply rewarded.

Since the Introduction had already been sent to the Printers by the timethe 'Encyclopaedia of Buddhism' (1961 Government of Ceylon, FasciculeA-Aca) was out, the following is included here. In his article, AbhidharmaLiterature, Dr. Kogen Mizuno makes three statements on page 78 of theEncyclopaedia regarding the Vimuttimagga: (1) that the Vimuttimagga (alongwith the Dhammapada, the Atthakavagga of the Suttanipata etc.) "probablybelonged to the Abhayagiri sect and not to the Mahavihara sect" (paragraph bcontinued from the previous page); (2) that "He (i. e., the VenerableBuddhaghosa Thera) evidently studied the Vimuttimagga, which was a manual of the Abhayagirivihara sect" (paragraph c); and (3) "That the Vimutti-magga, was Upatissa's work and belonged to the Abhayagirivihara sect ismentioned in the tika (subcommentary, i.e., Dhammapala's Paramattha-maojusa) of the Visuddhimagga" (paragraph c).

The first statement, (1) above, says that the Vimuttimagga "probablybelonged to the Abhayagiri sect", while the second, (2) above, says "Vimutti-magga, which was a manuel of the Abhayagirivihara sect". How, precisely,did probability in paragraph b became certainty in paragraph c? As for thethird statement, (3) above, the Paramatthamahjusd does not say that the Vimuttimagga "belonged to the Abhayagirivihara sect" as is claimed here. What it says is that the Vimuttimagga is the work of the Venerable UpatissaThera. The fact that certain teachings are common to both the Abhayagiri-viliara and the Vimuttimagga does not prove that the latter belonged to the Abhayagirivihara sect. For details see Introduction pp. xxxvi, xxxvn andn. 2, p. 57 of the present translation.

XXXII

I have derived much help from Prof. Dr. P. V. Bapat's Vimuttimaggaand Visuddhimagga—a Comparative Study, and the Venerable NanamoliThera's translation of the Visuddhimagga—The Path of Purification. ThePali Text Society's Pali-English Dictionary 1921, and Trenchner's CriticalPali Dictionary, Copenhagen 1924-1948 have been equally helpful.

It is with great pleasure that I make the following acknowledgements all those whose help and encouragement made my work less difficult.

To the Venerable Madihe Pafmaslha Maha Nayaka Thera of Vajira-rama for his kindly and ready help and advice at all times lacking whichthis work would not have been completed.

To all those venerable monks who encouraged me by word and deedwhen that encouragement was most needed.

To the Venerable Nanavjra Thera for his welcome suggestions and thereadiness with which he helped in many ways.

To Mr. W. Joseph Soysa who helped in reading over some of the proofs.He has always been much interested in the Vimuttimagga and in its publica-tion.

To Mr. Lakshman de Mel who read through the type-script and madevaluable suggestions.

To Mr. R. D. Piyasena and those who helped him for taking a greatdeal of trouble in preparing the English Index.

Lastly, to Dr. D. Roland D. Weerasuria who has generously borne theentire cost of publishing this translation. Provision has been made by himto keep the price of this book within reach of the modest purse. He hasperformed this meritorious act (puhnakamma) with great faith (saddhd) wishinghis father, Mudaliyar D. D. Weerasuria j.p., who passed away on 25. 5. 1949,the happiness of Nibbdna. May the result of this pure deed redound in fullmeasure to his lasting happiness.

The Printers have to be thanked for their patience and high quality ofwork.

INTRODUCTION

IN the Journal of the Pali Text Society of 1919, there appeared an article* by Prof. Dr. M. Nagai on "The Vimutti-Magga, The Way to Deliverance' ".Referring to it Mrs. C. A. F. Rhys Davids in a letter dated September 20,1936 to the translators of the Gedatsu Do Ron (Vimuttimaggd) said, "Thenas to the issuing of the book (referring to the Path of Freedom) in a volumeof print: Were this society in easier circumstances enjoyed by it up to the Great War, when we were immensely helped by the princely donations of your wealthy men, I would undertake at once to publish the work with Prof.Nagai's excellent article in our Journal, 1919, as preface, with anything heliked to add. Or, if you objected, I should ask you three to write your ownpreface, making such references to his article as you thought fit".

This article of Prof. Nagai took the Buddhist world by surprise; for according to the Culavamsa chapter xxxvn, 236-39, when the VenerableBuddhaghosa Thera had written the Visuddhimagga at the behest of the Mahd-sangha, the devas had hidden it and he had to write it afresh. When this was done, it too was hidden by the devas. So, when he wrote it for the thirdtime and presented it to the Mahdsangha, it is said, the devas produced thefirst two copies. It was then found that the three copies agreed in every detail. The record goes on to say (Cv. Ch. xxxvn, 241-43): 'Then the bhikkhusread out all the three books together. Neither in composition and content, nor also as regards the sequence (of the subjects), in the teaching of the Theras,in the quotations, in words, and sentences was there any kind of deviation all three books. Then the community satisfied and exceedingly well pleased, cried again and again: "without doubt, this is Metteyya!" and handed overto him the books of the three Pitakas together with the commentary' —Dr. Geiger's translation. By this statement it was, perhaps, only intended tostress the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera's great ability, which is amply borneout by this (i.e., the Visuddhimagga) and his later works. No other viewseems to be warranted, or else it has to be conceded that the Mahavihara Theras knew very well that the Bodhisatta Metteyya could not have beenborn in this world at this time; — see, for instance, the earlier statement of the Mahdvamsa at Ch. xxxn, 73: 'Awaiting the time when he shall becomea Buddha, the compassionate Bodhisatta Metteyya dwells in the Tusita-city'—Dr. Geiger's translation. Further, that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Theraand the Bodhisatta Metteyva are two different persons has been established by the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera himself in his Postscript to the Visuddhimagga (found only in the Sinhalese texts and translated by Nanamoli Thera):«

So may I in my last becoming Behold the joys of Tavatimsa,

And having in my last life seenMetteyya, Lord of Sages, HighestOf persons in the World, and HelperDelighting in all beings' welfare, And heard that Holy One proclaimThe Teaching of the Noble Law, May I grace the Victor's DispensationBy realizing its Highest Fruit'.

XXXV

And this, too, the Mahavihara Theras would have known. But in thusstressing his ability, the Culavamsa account seems to make out that the visuddhi-magga was written without recourse to other works. There is a discrepancyin this account of the Culavamsa. It will be noted that 'the three Pitakastogether with Commentary' were handed over to the Venerable BuddhaghosaThera by the Mahasangha only after he had written the Visuddhimagga, whichis correctly designated the General Commentary to the three Pitakas. Now,if he had access to the three Pitakas, and the Commentary only after he hadwritten this General Commentary to the three Pitakas, how did he do it? This is difficult to comprehend. Here is where the article of Prof. Dr. Nagaiappears to fit in.

Bearing No. 1293 in Prof. Nanjio's Catalogue is a work in Chinese calledCie-to-tdo-lun. It is also called Gedatsu Do Ron. Prof. Nanjio has renderedthe title of this work in Sanskrit as 'Vimoksa-Marga', the author being ArahantUpatissa. In trying to identify him with a Ceylon Thera, Prof. Nagai adducesthe following reasons:

- 1. It cannot be the Venerable Sariputta Thera, who was also calledUpatissa, because he is often quoted in the Venerable Upatissa Thera's text.
- 2. In the Samantapdsadikd (I, p. 263), it is said that there were two elders,named Upatissa Thera and Phussadeva Thera, pupils of the same teacherwho was proficient in the Vinaya. Upatissa Thera was superior to the other;and he had two pupils named Mahapaduma Thera and Mahasumana Thera. The latter learned the Vinaya Pitaka nine times from his teacher, while Maha-paduma Thera learned it eighteen times and was, therefore, the superior. When the former left his teacher to live elsewhere Mahapaduma Thera remained with his teacher saying that as long as one's teacher was alive one should bewith him and learn the Vinaya and the Commentaries many times more. Theteacher, the Venerable Upatissa Thera, and his pupil the Venerable Maha-paduma Thera, recited the Vinaya in this manner for many years more. Duringthis period they expounded the Vinaya and on one occasion the VenerableUpatissa Thera, at the request of the Mahasangha in assembly, pronounceda ruling on a question that arose regarding the first Pdrdjika.

- 3. A teacher such as the Venerable Upatissa Thera was the most appropri-ate person to be the author of a work of such importance as the Vimuttimagga. Then he goes on to mention the account of the gift of King Vasabha's queento the Venerable Mahapaduma Thera who accepted it as his teacher's share.
- 4. To show that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera was aware of the existence of the Vimuttimagga, Prof. Nagai refers to the comments of the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera regarding the "fourteen cariya's" of the Vimuttimagga.

It is quite probable that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera had the Vimutti-magga in mind when he made this comment; for there is the definite statement of the Venerable Dhammapala Thera in his commentary to the Visuddhimagga {Paramatthamahjusd, Venerable Morontuduve Dhammananda Nayake Thera's Sinhalese ed. p. 103) which says: Ekacce ti Upatissattheram sandhdydha. Tenahi Vimuttimagge tat ha vuttam,—" 'Some' is said with reference to the Venerable Upatissa Thera. It is said thus by him in the Vimuttimagga". From the fore-going it is clear that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera had the Vimuttimaggaof Venerable Upatissa Thera before him when he wrote the Visuddhimagga.

In his Pali Literature of Ceylon, Dr. G. P. Malalasekera has this to sayon the subject:

(a) "The Vimutti-magga is an Abhidhainma exegesis, serving as a com-pendium for that portion of Buddhist literature ..., and in some pointsthe Chinese work seems to have been influenced by the Mahayana doctrine"(p. 86).

(b) He says, further, that if it is granted that the Vimuttimagga wastaken to China by some of the schools of approximately the same tradition, "itwould not be difficult to conclude that the Visuddhi-magga and Vimutti-maggaare more or less independent works, written by men belonging to much thesame school of thought — the Thera-vdda" (pp. 87-88).

Regarding the statement (a) above, it will be seen that very little Abhi-dhamma is found in the Vimuttimagga, though of course, it begins by sayingthat he who wishes to "lead those on the other shore to perfection, should beversed in the Sutta, Abhidhamma and Vinaya". Here, the late Venerable Nanamoli Thera's opinion on the subject will be of interest: "However the Vimutti-magga itself contains nothing at all of the Mahayana, its unorthodoxies beingwell within the 'Hinayana' field". Again he says: "Also Abhidhamma, whichis the keystone of Bhadantacariya Buddhaghosa's exegesis, is not used at allin the Vimuttimagga (Aggregates, Truths, etc., do not in themselves constituteAbhidhamma in the sense of that Pitaka). There is, for instance, even in itsdescription of the Consciousness Aggregate, no reference to the Dhamma-sanganVs classification of 89 types, and nothing from the Patthdna; and thoughthe 'Cognitive Series' is stated once in its full form (in Ch. ii) no use is made of it to explain conscious workings. This Vimuttimagga is in fact a book ofpractical instruction, not of exegesis" (Path of Purification Introduction pp.xxvii-xxviii). The statement of the Venerable Dhammapala Thera in the Paramatthamanjusd quoted earb'er seems to disallow (b) above.

The Venerable Buddhadatta Maha Nayaka Thera in the Pali Text Society'sedition of the Saddhammappajotikd refers to Prof. Nagai's view that theauthor of the Vimuttimagga was the Venerable Upatissa Thera who flourishedduring King Vasabha's reign, 66-109 A. c. He says, "However, there is nosuch great difference as cannot be bridged between his supposition and mine" (Introduction p. vm).

Regarding the view that the Vimuttimagga was a work written at the Abhayagiri Monastery, the late Venerable Jsjanamoli Thera rightly says, "Thatit (the Vimuttimagga) contains some minor points accepted by the Abhayagiri Monastery does not necessarily imply that it had any special connection with that centre. The sources may have been common to both. The disputed points are not schismatical. Bhadantacariya Buddhaghosa himself never men-tions it" (Introduction, xxvin).

- Prof. Dr. P. V. Bapat in the Introduction (p. liv) to his careful work"Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, A Comparative Study" (1937), has examined a great deal of material. In support of his theory that the Vimutti-magga originated in India, he puts forward, among others, the following easons (p. liv): (a) "It is very likely that Vimuttimagga was one of the booksbrought over from India. From the internal evidence of the book we may say that there is no reference to any name2 or place in Ceylon". If the view of the late Venerable Nanamoli Thera, that the "Vimuttimagga is in fact a book of practical instruction, not of exegesis" — which is also the view of the lateVenerable Soma Thera and myself — is accepted, and if it is recognized thatthe whole style of the Vimuttimagga makes for brevity — it is even abruptsometimes —, then it will be seen that the exclusion of any 'name or place inCeylon' is not surprising.
- "2. Unless the name Narada (p. 134) referred to any high personage from Ceylon, whichseems to be very improbable". This name is found at S. II, 117-18. See p. 321.

(b) "We find in this book many words which are transliterations of Indian words. The list of worms residing in different parts of the body givesnames which are transliterations of Indian names. These names must have beentaken by Upatissa from some old work or works on medical science" (p. liv). This is as it should be, seeing that the Dhamma is of Indian origin, and whenmedicine or anything related to medical science is mentioned it is natural for Ceylon writers to use Indian terms: for what medical knowledge Ceylonpossessed at the time was of Indian origin. The standard Ayurvedic medicalworks in use even now are Susruta and Vagbhata. Caraka is not unknown.*The first two works have been in use in Ceylon through the ages. But if thelist of worms is not derived from the first two works or one of them, then the Vimuttimagga most probably bases itself here on some other medical work of Indian origin known in Ceylon at the time.

Regarding the statement, "We find Upatissa going into the details of the development of the foetus week by week" (p. Ivi), it will be seen from pp. 173-74,n. 3 that here the Vimuttimagga follows the Sutta and its commentary.

(c) "Besides, the reference to a Canddla, which we have already noticed, also points to the origin of the book in India, 3 particularly, in South or Dravi-dian India where there is a very strong prejudice against Candalas" (p. liv). References to Candalas are found eslewhere, in the texts and commentaries. For instance, as pointed out by Prof. Bapat himself (p. xlvi), at A. I, 107 and A. Ill, 214, canddla is mentioned. Here it should be borne in mind that in the society of the time, and also later, the canddla was a person looked down upon. To illustrate certain points in a way that the large mass of the people wouldunderstand, appropriate similes were used by the Buddha and his Disciples, and the commentators who came after them. It does not mean that theythereby endorsed some of the statements made in their similes. For instance, when the Buddha, in the Satipatthdna Suttas, says, "Just as if a clever butcher's apprentice, having slaughtered a cow and divided it into portionswere sitting at the main cross-road," and so on, it does not follow that theBuddha upheld the buchers' profession. If the word canddla was used in asimile, the motive behind it was nothing else than to facilitate the understanding of the point under discussion. The upholding of the caste system does not come in here. On the contrary, the Buddha and his disciples were opposed to it as we see in the use of the word canddla in a different context referring to an updsaka (i.e., one who has gone to the Buddha, the Dhamma, and the Sangha for refuge) but who does not observe the silas etc. — he being calledupdsakacanddla (A. Ill, 206). The Vasala Sutta (Sn. 116-42) may also bementioned here. Further, these sentences occur in the Vimuttimagga itself,thus: "Virtue is called excellent joy, the highest of all castes ... This is to wear the thread which must be worn. This is the sacred caste" (p. 8).

*Since writing the above the Caraka Samhitd has been translated into Sinhalese by AyurvedaSastri R. Buddhadasa, Colombo."3. Upatissa's change of the 'yellow' colour of the earth for kasina (as said by B.) into'black' (p. 43) may be considered as significant. Can it suggest the black soil of thecountry of origin of Upatissa?" The soil in many parts of Ceylon, too, is black.

What has largely prompted Prof. Bapat to protest seems to be the statementfound in Chapter in dealing with the Austerities, and his objection runs thus: "Let us note one peculiar fact about Upatissa. He seems to have some kindof contempt for, or low opinion of, a Canddla" (p. xlvi). Then on the samepage he goes on to say the following, which are possibly the reasons for thestatement mentioned above.

- (1) "In one place, there is a reference to a Canddla where we are toldin a simile that he has no desire for a princely throne" (p. xlvi). The relevantpassage is, "As an outcast has no desire for a king's throne" (p. 25 of thepresent translation). The same idea is found in the Visuddhimagga too, namely, "Nirdso saddhamme canddlakumdrako viya rajje" (p. 54) "He is desirelessfor the Good Law as a canddla (outcast) is for a kingdom". It is thereforenot a statement peculiar to the Venerable Upatissa Thera.
- (2) With regard to the next objection: "At another place, to see a Canddlaon the way is considered to be a sufficient reason for the laxity in the observanceof the practice of sapaddna-cdrikd (going from house to house in succession for begging one's food)" (p. xlvi). This is not quite what the text says, as will be seen later. There is no question of laxity. Then the next sentencecontinues, "Upatissa says that if a mendicant sees a Canddla on the way,he should cover his begging-bowl and may skip over some houses and gofurther. In the third place we find a lack of conscientiousness (ahirika) is compared to a Canddla" (pp. xlvi-xlvii). Further, at p. 23, "Even if he hastaken up the practice of a sapaddnacdrika, he should avoid elephants or horsesthat may be coming in his way. Seeing a canddla, he should cover his begging-bowl. 'Following one's acariya or upajjhdya? is also mentioned as an occasion for exception". Here is the relevant passage from the present translation(p. 36): "What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'regular almsround'? If a bhikkhu on seeing elephants or horses fightingor in rut, at the gate, avoids them, or on seeing an outcast {canddla, trans-literation) covers his bowl, or goes behind his preceptor, teacher or a visitingbhikkhu, and thus commits certain faults for expedience' sake, he does notfail in 'regular almsround' ".

Now let us consider why the expedience in regard to elephants and horsesmay be resorted to. It is plain that it is to avoid being hurt or even killed.Regarding the preceptor or teacher—it is out of respect due to them. It isan offence not to do so. Again, covering the bowl on seeing a canddla isfor self-protection. The society at that time was very much casteconscious. If the people objected to, or did not favour, the receiving of alms from onethey considered an outcast, the support from the large majority of the peoplewould be liable to be withdrawn and the life of the bhikkhu rendered difficult, to say the least. Here the story of the son and heir of the King Dutthagamanicomes readily to mind. It is said that the people were prosperous and happyduring his reign and that he had a son named Salirajakumara, concerningwhom the following is recorded.

"Greatly gifted was he and ever took delight in works of merit; he tenderlyloved a candala woman of exceedingly great beauty. Since he was greatlyenamoured of the Asokamaladevi, who already in a former birth had beenhis consort, because of her loveliness, he cared nothing for kingly rule" (Mv.Ch. xxxiii, 2-4). Therefore King Dutthagamani, after his death, was succeededby his brother, Saddhatissa, who reigned for eighteen years.

XXXIX

"He cared nothing for kingly rule", — So rajjam neva kdmayi. Surelythere is something similar in this statement and the simile which is commonto both the Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga, namely, Nirdso saddhammecanddlakumdrako viya rajjel— Vimuttimagga p. 25: He has no desire forthe Noble (Law), as an outcast has no desire for a king's throne"; Visuddhi-magga p. 54: "He is desireless for the Good Law as an outcast (canddla) isfor a kingdom"! Have not both the Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimaggabeen making some sort of allusion to this event, which would, no doubt, have shocked the whole land? Might it not seem that here was an actualstory well-known in the land and even recent history as far as the VenerableUpatissa Thera of King Vasabha's reign was concerned (King Dutthagamanireigned from 161-137 b.c. and King Vasabha from 66-110 a.c.)? If our author is in fact this Upatissa Thera, this story will provide him with themost appropriate material for a simile to illustrate the regardlessness of anunvirtuous man for the Good Law. How appropriate the background provided by the prince's story is for purposes of the simile, which was perhaps eveninspired by it, can be seen from the present translation, p. 25.

That the author of the Vimuttimagga, whoever it was, knew such passages as

1. Mdjdtim puccha caranan ca puccha.Katthd have jdyati jdtavedo;nlcdkulino pi muni dhitlmadjdniyo hoti hirinisedho — Sn. 462

Judge not by birth but life. As any chips feed fire Mean birth may breed a sage Noble and staunch and true*

2, Najaced 'vasalo' hoti; — najacea hoti brdhmano;kammand 'vasalo' hoti kammand hoti brdhmano — Sn. 136

No birth a wastrel — or a Brahmin — makes; 'tis conduct wastrels makes — and Brahmins too* is beyond doubt. And it is inconceivable that he had a prejudice which heput down in writing knowing full well that it was entirely against the Teachingof the Buddha.

As for the statement that the Vimuttimagga "reveals no special masteryof the Yinaya which is claimed by Prof. Nagai for that Upatissa who livedin the first century a.d. in Ceylon" (p. lvi), the Vimuttimagga is hardly theplace to display such special knowledge.

Finally, to this following statement: "My discovery of the Tibetan version of the third chapter on 'dhutas' is also important ... This Tibetan textprovides an additional evidence to show the Indian origin of the book. Itdoes not appear to be probable that a text from Ceylon was taken over toIndia and there it was studied in Buddhist schools and that it assumed suchimportance as to be translated, in part at least, in Tibetan" (pp. liv - lv). to The Buddhist, the journal of the Y.M.B.A., Colombo, and which was reprinted in the Buddha Jayanti of July 22, 1956, begins — The horse of Buddhismis dead in India; only the tops of the horse's ears are still visible in the eastand the west of the land'. This saying which had gained currency in Tibetonce, perhaps originated with the monk Vanaratana, known, in Tibetanhistory, as the last great Indian Mahdpandita who came to live and teachin Tibet. A native of Bengal, he was ordained young, as a sdmanera, in amonastery of one thousand monks. He received full ordination in Ceylon, with two well-known Theras, the Venerable Buddhaghosa and the VenerableDhammakitti as preceptor and teacher respectively. He studied the VinayaPrabhd (Splendour of the Discipline), a Sarvdstivdda work. Then he returned to his native country and, after studying the Kdlacakra, went to Tibet by wayof Assam. The Lama says: "During the journey he is believed to haveremembered his Sinhalese preceptor, and inscribed on a wayside rock thesewords: 'I salute Buddhaghosa the teacher of thousands of beings' ". Andhe says further that in the middle of the seventeenth century the lama king of Bhutan, when at war with the Central Tibet government, had seen and mentioned it in one of his writings. On reaching Tibet his interpreter died, and so after a short stay there he returned to Bengal. "Vanaratana's secondvisit to Ceylon lasted six years; during that time he studied all branches of Buddhism", says the lama. The Venerable Vanaratana in his account of apilgrimage he made to Sri Pada in Ceylon states that he received two bone relicsthere. Then again the lama goes on "to say, "With the relics and some books hehad collected. Vanaratana returned to his country and not long afterwards re-entered Tibet. This time he was able to speak Tibetan well; he made many lamashis disciples through his preaching. The chief of Vanaratana's disciples wasRong-Thong-Pa, the founder of a new sect; to him Vanaratana gave one of therelics he had got in Ceylon. Rong-Thong-Pa built near Lhasa a monastery called Nalanda". The Venerable Vanaratana died fifteen years after he reentered Tibet"at a monastery in Singpori in Tsang province; his tomb can still be seen in thatmonastery ... The full admission of Vanaratana to the Sangha by Ceylontheras, and the long stay here, point to the existence of cordial relations betweenthe Indian and Ceylon Sangha of his time. Tibetan books show that Ratna-kara Gupta of Vikramasila stayed in Ceylon for seven years on his way toDhanyakataka; and Atlsa (Dlpamkara Sri Jhana), who became abbot of Vik-ramasila, was here in the eleventh century". Further, I myself remember thelate lama, when he was preparing this article, mentioning to the VenerableSoma Thera that he had seen in a monastery in Tibet a Sinhalese manuscriptwhich, he said, probably dated back to the Venerable Vanaratana Thera's time.1

In view of the above we are entitled to say that, while it is not provedthat the Vimuttimagga was written in Ceylon, it has been shown that the veryreasons put forward to support the view that it must have been written inIndia, support equally well the view that it may well have been written inCeylon. To this can be added the idea that the simile of the outcast havingno desire for a king's throne, possibly drew inspiration from the story ofSalirajakumara, which must certainly have been current at the time, though

1. Since writing the above, the Ceylon Daily News reported, in its issue of September 9,1960, of the discovery of a Singhalese manuscript in a Buddhist monastery of Saiskyain Tibet by Prof. Rahula Sankrityayana of the Vidyalankara University, Kelaniya, in theyears between 1929 and 1938. This manuscript has been assigned to the twelfth, or thethirteenth, century and is now deposited in the library of the Vidyalankara University.

the account of it in the Mahdvamsa came to be written later. Yet theMahdvamsa, according to Dr. Geiger (Introduction, Mv. translation p. ix), was "based upon older material", the "Atthakathd-Mahdvamsa", as he calls it, and "existed as did the Atthakatha generally, in different monasteries of theIsland, in various recensions which diverged only slightly from one another" (p. x). He further says, "The chronicle must originally have come downonly to the arrival of Mahinda in Ceylon. But it was continued later, and indeed to all appearance, down to the reign of Mahasena (beginning of the fourth century a.d.)".

Tipitaka Sanghapdla Thera of Funan

Below is given the Life of Tipitaka Sanghapala Thera of Funan, being atranslation from Kosoden, Biographies of Famous Clerics, in Vol. 50, No.2059, Taisho edition of the Chinese Tripitaka:

In the early years of the Ryo dynasty there was Sanghapala; he was aforeign scholar. His bearing was noble and he was handsome of feature. He was a skilful debater. Coming to the capital he stayed at Shokwanji (Mahavidarsanarama). The Emperor Bu honoured and respected him, andtreated him with great consideration. He was requested by the emperor totranslate Buddhist scriptures in Jukoden (Ayus-prabha vihara) and Sen-un-kwan (... megha-vihara). He translated the Mahd Asoka Sutra, Vimoksa-Mdrga-sdstra, and others. Hosho, En-don-u and others assisted (lit. wrote).

This occurs under the Biography of Gunavrddhi of Mid-India who builtShokwanji and died in Shokwanji in the second year of Chuko (p. 345).

The following is from Zokukosoden, Further Biographies of FamousClerics, number 2060, volume 50 of the Taisho edition of the ChineseTripitaka. Here the life of Sanghapala is given first. Sanghapala: In thelanguage of Ryo his name may be translated thus: So: Order; and Yd:Nurse. Or So: Order; and Gui: Protector. He was a Funan-man. From his youth, he was very clever. Having mastered the Law, he became a monk. He was expert in the knowledge of the Abhidharma, and was famous in thelands of the Southern Sea. After completing (possibly the study of the Abhidhamma), he studied the Vinayapitaka. He was zealous in the propa-gation of the Vanguisher's Faith, and hearing that the time was propitious for the spreading of the Truth in the country of Sai (Canton), he took shipand came to the capital. He stayed in Shokwanji and became a disciple of Gunabhadra, a sramana of India and studied Vaipulya under him. Sangha-pala's knowledge was wide and deep and he was conversant with the languages and books of several countries.,, Pala was clean of body and of mind andwas reluctant to engage in conversation. In the seclusion of his room hestayed and worked, taking very simple fare

In the 5th year of Tenkwan, he was offered by the emperor these fiveplaces of residence: Jukoden, Karinenden (Flowerforest-garden), ShokwanjiSenunkwan and Funankwan of the Capital Yoto (Sun City). He translated forseventeen years. His translations amounted to eleven cases of forty-eight fasci-cles. They are the great Asoka sutra, the Vimoksa-Mdrga-sdstra and others. When the translations began the Emperor Bu himself came to Jukoden, attended to the exposition of the Law by Sanghapala and himself wrote (downthe translations). After that he handed them over to the writer who was tomake the printing blocks. The emperor commanded the sramana Hosho, the sramana Echo and the sramana Sochi to assist Sanghapala. His translationswere in elegant Chinese and faithful to the original. The emperor treated himmost cordially and respectfully and made him the court chaplain. It is saidthat he altered many customs of the people. Pala did not hoard treasure. Withofferings that were made to him Pala built the Ryujuji (Arabdha-vlryarama). The minister Rinsenoko was deeply attached to him. In the fifth year ofFutsu, he died at Shokwanji. He was sixty five years old.

About the beginning of the Ryo dynasty another sramana of Funannamed Mandara came to China. He brought many Sanskrit texts and presented them to the emperor. The emperor ordered him to translate them together with Pala. They translated Ho-ung-ho-kai-taisho-monju-hanna-kyo:Ratna-megha-dharma-dhdtu-kdya-svabhdva-manjusri-prajnd-sutra. Though hetranslated, he could not understand Chinese well. So in his translations there are many vague renderings (p. 426, fascicle 1).

The Visuddhimagga

Much has been written about the Visuddhimagga from the earliest timesright down to the present day. King Parakrama-Bahu II (1236-68 A.c.) is reported to have written the paraphrase to the Visuddhimagga after hehad handed over the kingdom to his son Bodhisatta Vijaya-Bahu (1271-72AC-)-During the last century Pandit M. Dharmaratna revised this work. Of him and his work on the Visuddhimagga, the Venerable Soma Thera wrotein the Buddha Jayanti of April 5, 1955 thus: "Had he not written any of theworks mentioned above and not edited the paper, still people of this countrywould have been obliged to remember him for his great gift of the translation of the Visuddhimagga, with his edition of the Visuddhi Text, and the revised version of the ancient paraphrase of the Visuddhi by Parakrama-Bahu II, acomprehensive work which is of never-failing interest and great usefulness to all students of the Dhamma and the Sinhalese language". Then again thereis the late Venerable Pandita Matara &rl Dharmavamsa Maha Stavira's morerecent translation which was completed by his pupil the Venerable PanditaBatuvita Nandarama Maha Thera in 1957. There is also the English trans-lation of the Pali Text Society by Prof. Pe Maung Tin of Rangoon, completed in 1931, and that of the late Venerable Nanamoli Thera of the Island Hermit-age, Dodanduwa in 1956. The German translation is by the late VenerableNyanatiloka Maha Thera, founder of the Island Hermitage, Dodanduwa, thepublishers being Verlag Christiani, Konstanz, 1952.

The Visuddhimagga is a household word in all Theravdda lands. Noscholar of Buddhism whether of Theravdda or of Mahdydna is unacquaintedwith it. Therefore there is no need of repeating what has already been saidat one time or another. But an introduction to the Vimuttimagga, can hardlyavoid all mention of the Visuddhimagga, and I may be excused if I go overground already covered by others. An endeavour, however, is made topresent some of these facts briefly and with a slightly new approach. It isfor the reader to assess how far this has been achieved.

In the introduction to his translation of the Visuddhimagga, The Pathof Purification, the late Venerable Nanamoli Thera, after carefully sifting alarge collection of material, points out that the influence of Sanskrit Buddhism, the centre of which was the Abhayagiri monastery in Anuradhapura, was sogreat in the first century a.c that it became a threat to the Mahayihara's position as the central authority of orthodox Pali Buddhism in Ceylon. Indeedthat threat grew into open rivalry and even enmity between these two institu-tions, culminating in King Mahasena's (277-304) giving protection to Sanghamitta, "a Cola monk, follower of Vetullavada", and driving away themonks of the Mahavihara from Anuradhapura for nine years. Then, Maha-sena, repenting of his deeds, restored the Mahavihara to its former position and burnt the Vetulyan books. But by then Sanghamitta had got the Loha-pasada destroyed, and he and his friend, the minister Sona, were killed by alabourer on the orders of the queen when they attempted to destroy the Thuparama. The efforts of the Mahavihara monks since the beginning of the dispute with those of the Abhayagiri in the first century a.c. were solely directed to the establishment, says the Venerable Nanamoli Thera, of "Pali as the lang-uage for the study and discussion of Buddhist teachings, and the founding of a school of Pali literary composition" (Intro, p. xiv). He then goes on to say, "It is not known what was the first original Pali composition in this period; but the Dipavamsa (dealing with historical evidence) belongs here (for it ends with Mahasena's reign and is quoted in the Samantapdsddikd), and quitepossibly the Vimuttimagga (dealing with practice—see below) was another early attempt by the Great Monastery in this period (4th cent.) to reassertits supremacy through original Pali literary composition: there will havebeen others too. Of course, much of this is very conjectural" (Intro, p. xiv). It will be noted here that the Venerable Nanamoli Thera does not place the Vimuttimagga during the reign of King Vasabha, but in the 4th century. Still it does not contradict the fact that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Therahad access to the Vimuttimagga of the Venerable Upatissa Thera when hewrote the Visuddhimagga.

If the suggestion that the Vimuttimagga "was another early attempt by the Great Monastery in this period to reassert its supremacy through Palicomposition" is acceptable, it would then not be difficult to suppose that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera, with what knowledge he had already acquired of the Dhamma in India—(for he had written the Ndnodaya, the Atthasdliniand had begun "to compose a commentary to the Partita", Cv. Ch. xxxvn,225-26—), was able to write the Visuddhimagga, perhaps with the assistance of the Mahavihara Theras. This work is more comprehensive than the Vimutti-magga and in every sense more scholarly, with a wealth of material drawnfrom every imaginable source and interspersed with numerous Ceylon stories. Thus, not only did it provide instruction for those needing it in the practice of the Dhamma, but it was also capable of holding its own as a work of literary composition.

Two things seem to have played an important part in making available for later generations, even up to the present day, a work of such excellence asis the Visuddhimagga. They are: (1) The desperate need of the Mahavihara for a work which would prove its claim to be the centre of Buddhist learning in Ceylon; (2) the equally urgent need of the Venerable Buddhaghosa Therato prove his ability as a worthy scholar in the eyes of the Theras of the Maha-vihara. Without this recognition he could not have obtained from them the commentaries and the expositions of the teachers (dcariyavdda) for translationinto Pali as required by his teacher in India, the Venerable Revata MahaThera, and for which express purpose he came to Ceylon (Cv. Ch. xxxvn,227-32). That this dual need was supplied to the complete satisfaction of both parties is amply borne out by the recorded history of the centuries that followed.

Introduction

The Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga.

On certain points the Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga hold contraryviews. For instance, the latter says that by developing the Buddhanussati(the recollection of the Buddha) the factors of meditation, jhdna, arise ina single moment; that as the qualities of the Buddha are unfathomable or elseowing to reflection on his numerous qualities appand (fixed meditation) isnot attained, and only upacdra (access-concentration) is reached. The Vimutti-magga on the other hand says that "from the recollection of the Buddhathe four meditations, jhdnas arise". This statement seems to agree with the sutta and its commentary quoted in note 3 on pp. 148-49.

They agree that in practising Andpdnasati (mindfulness of respiration)the breath should not be followed inside or outside because it distracts themind. This causes the body and the mind to waver and tremble. The simile of the man sawing wood illustrating where the breath should be noted (i.e., atnose-tip or on the lip) is common to both works. The Visuddhimagga quotesother similes in illustration. It also quotes (p. 280) the Patisambhiddmagga(I, p. 165) which warns against the practice of trying to follow the inhaledbreath to the heart (hadaya) and the navel (ndbhi) and the outgoing breathback from the navel to the heart and nose-tip, for, both the mind and thebody become 'disquieted and perturbed and shaky' if this practice is resorted to. The Visuddhimagga (p. 278) says that there are eight stages in the practice of Andpdnasati, the first four of which are (1) counting, (2) connection, (3) touching, and (4) fixing. Here the Venerable Buddhaghosa Theradoes not quote authority for this statement as he usually does. The Vimutti-magga (p. 159) supplies this omission by saying that 'certain predecessors' taught these four ways. Here both base themselves on authority outsidethe texts and the commentaries.

In discussing the earth kasina, the Visuddhimagga (p. 123) says, 'The fourblemishes of the earth kasina are due to the intrusion of blue, yellow, red,or white'. But it does not give any reason. The Vimuttimagga (p. 72)says, 'By dwelling on white, black, or red, he practises colour kasina'. Itis seen here that by practising one subject of meditation another cannot bedeveloped — for instance, when one practises Andpdnasati one does notbecome proficient in, say, Buddhdnussati, though this is sometimes imagined to be possible. If, for instance, one sees the form of the Buddha or aBuddha statue while developing any other meditation, then it is a clear caseof failure in the practice of that particular meditation, though the seeing of these signs in itself is a good thing. The proper occasion for these signsto appear is when Buddhdnussati is practised.

That the Vimuttimagga is an inspiring work is stated elsewhere. It is confirmed by the spontaneous testimony of those who have read the original draft translation. It has inspired men of ancient times. That is shown by the fact that the people of Ryo in the early years of the sixth cen-tury a.c. called the author of the Vimuttimagga 'Great Light'.

What connection there is between these two works has been shown, though briefly, in the foregoing pages. No mere can be expected in an intro-duction. For a detailed study the reader may consult the thorough investi-gation made by Prof. Bapat in his "Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, &comparative Study", Poona 1937.

SALUTATION

Homage to the Blessed One, the Consummate One, the SupremelyEnlightened One.2

INTRODUCTORY STANZA

Virtue, concentration, :

Wisdom and the peerless freedom: To these verities awokeIllustrious Gotama?

He who wishes to be released from all trouble, wishes to be unloosedfrom all attachment, wishes to gain the pre-eminent mind, wishes to be ridof birth, old age and death, wishes to enjoy bliss and freedom, wishes to achieve the yet unachieved extinction, Nibbana, and lead those on the other shore toperfection, should be versed in the Sutta, Abhidhamma and Vinaya. This is the Path of Freedom.

Now will 1 expound. Hearken.Question: What is 'virtue'?

Answer: 'Virtue' means restraint.1 'Concentration' means non-distractedness.' Wisdom' means comprehension. 'Freedom' means freedom from bondage. 'Peerless' means canker-free. 'Awoke' means realized and understoodthrough wisdom. 'These verities' means the four noble verities.5 'Gotama'

- 1. Vimuttimagga 2. Namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammasambuddhassa.

4. Satitvara. 5, Cattaro arivadhamma.

is the name of a family. 'Illustrious' means blessed. Through the excellentmerits: virtue, concentration, wisdom and freedom, he gained boundless and highest fame.PATH OF FREEDOM DESCRIBED

What is the meaning of the Path of Freedom? 'Freedom' means the fivekinds of freedom: freedom of suppression, 1 freedom of parts, 2 freedom of eradication, 3 freedom of tranquillity, 4 and freedom of emancipation. 5

What is 'freedom of suppression'? It is the suppression of the passionsthrough the practice of the first meditation.0 This is called 'freedom ofsupression'. 'Freedom of parts' is the freedom from views through the practice of concentration which partakes of penetration.7 This is called 'freedom of parts'. 'Freedom of eradication' is the destruction of the fettersthrough the practice of the supramundane path.8 This is called 'freedomof eradication'. 'Freedom of tranquillity' is (to be understood) as the happyheart of a man who acquires fruit. This is called [400] 'freedom of tranquillity'. 'Freedom of emancipation' is extinction without residue of the substratum ofbeing.9 This is called 'freedom of emancipation'. This Path of Freedom isfor the attainment of liberation. This perfect path is called the Path of Freedomthrough virtue, concentration and wisdom.

Now will I preach concerning the Path of Freedom. Q. For whatreason is the Path of Freedom taught? A. There is a good man. He is like blind man who wanders to a distant land without guidance, because, althoughhe wishes to gain freedom, he does not listen to the teaching of freedom; because he does not acknowledge freedom and because he wrongly acknow-ledges freedom. Since he is hemmed in by much suffering he cannot gainfreedom. Although he wishes to gain freedom, he has not the means. Togain freedom means are necessary. The Buddha has declared: "There arebeings covered with but a little dust. They will fall away unless they hearthe Truth".10 Again the Buddha has declared: "O bhikkhus, through twooccasioning causes can one arouse Right Understanding. Which two? Hearingfrom others is the first. Intelligent attention is the second".11 Therefore do Ipreach freedom.

I preach freedom to those who do not acknowledge freedom in order toproduce in them the feeling of detachment. This is like a traveller to a distantland getting a good guide.

MERITS OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF THE PATH

If a man acknowledges this Path of Freedom, he fulfills three groups.12What are the three? They are the group of virtue,13 the group of concentra-tion,14 and the group of wisdom.15

- 1. Vikkhambana-vimuttL 2. Tadanga-vimulti. 3. Samuccheda-vumitti. 4. Patippassaddha-vimutti. 5. Nissarana-vimutti. 6. Palhamqijhana. 7. Nibbedhabhdgiya-samddhi.
- 8. Lokuttara-magga. 9. Anupddisesanibbdna. 10. S. I, 105-6: Santi sattd apparajakkha-jatika assavanatd dhammassa parihdyanti. 11. A. I, 87: Dve'me bhikkhave paccayd sammddltthiyd uppdddya. Katame dvel Parato ca ghoso yoniso ca manasikdro. 12. Khandhd.\~h.Silakkhandha, 14. Samadhikkhandha, 15, Pannakkhandha.

What is the group of virtue? It is Right Speech, Right Action, RightLivelihood and the like. Or the group of virtue is the merit-mass of diversevirtues.

What is the group of concentration? It is Right Effort, Right Mindfulness, Right Concentration and the like. Or (the group of concentration is) themerit-mass of diverse forms of concentration.

What is the gioup of wisdom? It is Right Understanding, Right Thoughtand the like. Or (the group of wisdom is) the meritmass of diverse kinds ofwisdom. Thus these three groups are completed.

THREE TRAININGS

A man who acknowledges the Path of Freedom should be versed in thetriple training: the training of the higher virtue, 1 the training of the higherthought, 2 and the training of the higher wisdom. 3

(It is said:) Virtue is the training of the higher virtue; concentration is the training of the higher thought; wisdom is the training of the higherwisdom.

And again (it is said:) There is virtue which is the training of virtue andthere is virtue which is the training of the higher virtue. There is concentra-tion4 which is the training of thought and there is concentration which is the training of the higher thought. There is wisdom which is the training of wisdomand there is wisdom which is the training of the higher wisdom.

- 0. What is the training of virtue? A, Indicated virtue5 this is calledthe training of virtue. Virtue partaking of penetration6 this is called the training of the higher virtue. Again, the virtue of the commoner this' is, called the training of virtue. Ariyan virtue this is called the training of thenig he i virtue.
- Q. What is the training of thought? A. It is concentration pertainingto (the) sense (plane)7. 0. What is the training of the higher thought? A. It is concentration pertaining to (the) form (plane)8 and (the) formless(plane)9. This is called the training of the higher thought. And again, indi-cated concentration10 is the training of thought. Concentration partaking of penetration and concentration of the Path are called the training of thehigher thought.

What is the training of wisdom? Worldly knowledge — this is called thetraining of wisdom. The four truths, (enlightenment) factors' knowledge11 and the knowledge of the Path — these are called the training of the higherwisdom.

The Blessed One expounded the training of the higher virtue to a man ofthe lower type, the training of the higher thought to a man of the middle typeand the training of the higher wisdom to a man of the higher type.

- 1. Adhisllasikkha. 2. Adhicittasikkha. 3. AdhipanMsikkhd. 4. Lit. Samadhisikkhd.
- 5. The virtue that can be appreciated by ordinary men. 6. Nibbedhahhdgiya. 7. Kdmdvacarascwhjdhi. 8. Rupavacara samddhi. 9. Arupavacara samddhi. 10. The concentrationthat can be appreciated by ordinary men. 11. Bodhipakkhiyadhamma nana.
- 4 Vimuttimagga

THE MEANING OF TRAINING

Q. What is the meaning of training? A. To be trained in the thingswherein training is necessary, to be trained in the excellent training and to betrained to transcend all training. Thus to be trained in these three trainingsis called the acknowledgement of the Path of Freedom.

REMOVAL OF THE IMPURITIES

Through these three kinds of training one attains to purity: purity of virtue, i purity of thought, 2 and purity of views. 3 Thus virtue is purity of virtue, concentration is purity of thought, and wisdom is purity of views.

Virtue cleanses away the impurities caused through transgression ofprecepts (— this is called the purification of virtue). Concentration cleansesaway the encompassing impurities—this is called the purification of the mind. Wisdom removes the impurities of ignorance—this is called the purification of views. And again, virtue removes the impurities of demeritorious action. Concentration removes the encompassing impurities. Wisdom removes theimpurities of the latencies. 4 Through these three purities a manacknowledges Freedom's Path.

THE THREE KINDS OF GOOD

Again, a man acknoweldges the path through three kinds of good: theinitial good, the medial good, the final good.5 Virtue is the initial (good); concentration is the medial (good); wisdom is the final (good). Why is virtuethe initial good? There is a man who is energetic; he attains to the stage ofnon-retrogression; on account of non-retrogression, he is joyful; on account of joy, he becomes buoyant; on account of buoyancy, his body is thrilled; on account of his body being thrilled, lie is happy; on account of happiness, his mind is at ease — this is called 'the initial good'. 'Concentration is themedial good' thus: Through concentration a man understands things as they are — this is called the medial good. 'Wisdom is the final good' thus: Under-standing things as they are, a man is disgusted; through disgust he separates from passion; through separation from passion, he frees himself; having freedhimself, he knows it (the nature of his freedom).6 Thus a man accomplishes the Path of the triple good.

Introductory Discourse 5

THE THREE KINDS OF HAPPINESS

After acknowledging the Path of Freedom, a man acquires three kindsof happiness: the happiness of the fault-free, the happiness of tranquillity and the happiness of Enlightenment. He acquires the happiness of the fault-free through virtue; he acquires the happiness of tranquillity throughconcentration; and he acquires the happiness of Enlightenment throughwisdom. Thus a man acquires the three kinds of happiness.

PERFECTION OF THE MIDDLE WAY

After a man acknowledges the Path of Freedom, he attains to the perfection of the middle way 1 rejecting the two extremes. Through this virtue he removes well the attachment to diverse sense-desires and arouses within him the joy of the fault-free. Through concentration he removes the weariness of the body. In the case of tranquillity he increases joy and bliss.

Through wisdom heunderstands the four noble truths2 reaches the middle way and deeply cherishesthe delectable happiness of Enlightenment. Thus, he, rejecting the extremes,3attains to the perfection of the middle way.

After acknowledging the Path of Freedom, through virtue he transcends the way to states of regress;4 through concentration he transcends the senseplane;5 through wisdom he transcends all becoming.6 If he practises virtue to the full and practises little of concentration and wisdom, he will reach the stage of the Stream-entrant7 and the stage of the Once-returner.8 If he practises virtue and concentration to the full and practises little of wisdom, he will reach the stage of the Non-returner.9 If he practises virtue, concentration and wisdom to the full, he will reach the peerless freedom of the Consummate One.10

ON DISTINGUISHING VIRTUE

CHAPTER THE SECOND

Q. What is virtue? What is its salient characteristic? What is its function? What is its manifestation? What is its near cause? What are its benefits? What is the meaning of virtue? What is the difference between virtue and mode of life? How many kinds of virtue are there? What produces (virtue)? What are the initial, medial and final stages in virtue? How many states 7 are obstacles to progress in virtue? How many are thecauses of virtue? How many groups of virtue are there? What purifies virtue? Owing to how many causes does one dwell in virtue?

VIRTUE DEFINED

A. 'What is virtue?' It is virtue of volition, 8 virtue of abstention9 and virtue of non-transgression. 10 What is 'virtue of volition'? It is this resolve:"I will do no evil, because, if I do evil, 1 shall have to suffer for it". Whatis 'virtue of abstention'? It is keeping away from occasions of evil. Whatis 'virtue of non-transgression'? (Here) a virtuous man has no fault of bodyand speech. Again, the meaning of cutting is 'abstention'. All good activities 11 are virtue. It is said in the Abhidhamma12 thus: "The destruction of sensedesires by renunciation (is virtue). This virtue can remove evil. It is the 'virtue of volition', the 'virtue of restraint' 13, the 'virtue of abstention'. The destruction of ill will by not-ill will, the destruction of rigidity and torporby the perception of brightness, the destruction of agitation and anxiety bynondistraction, the destruction of uncertainty by the determination of states, the destruction of ignorance by knowledge, the destruction of discontent by gladness, the destruction of the five hindrances by the first meditation, the destruction of initial and sustained application of thought by the second meditation, the destruction of happiness by the third meditation, the destruction of bliss by the fourth meditation, the destruction (of perceptions ranging) from the perception of form to (the perception of) sense-reaction and the perception of diversity by the concentration of the sphere of the infinity of space, 14 the destruction of the perception of the sphere of the infinity of space by the concentration of the sphere of the infinity of consciousness, the destruction of the perception of the sphere of the infinity of consciousness by the concentration of the sphere of nothingness, the destruction of the (perception of the) sphereof nothingness by the concentration of the sphere of neither perception nornon-perception, the destruction of the perception of permanence by the viewof impermanence, the destruction of the perception of bliss by the view of ill, the destruction of the perception of self by the view of not-self, the destruction of the pure by the view of the impure, 1 the destruction of the perception of craving by the view of tribulation, 2 the destruction of the perception of passion by the view of the stainless, the destruction of origination by the view of cessation, 3 the destruction of density by the view of evanescence, the destruction of union by the view of separation, the destruction of fixity bythe view of change, the destruction of the sign by the view of the signless, the destruction of yearning by the view of non-yearning, the destruction of adherence by the view of the void, the destruction of clinging and adherence(to essence?) by the view of the higher wisdom, the destruction of theadherence to delusion by the knowledge and discernment of things as they are, the destruction of adherence to dwelling 4 by the view of tribulation, the destruction of non-reflection by the view of reflection, the destruction of adherence to fetters by the view of the rolling back (of delusion), the des-truction of adherence to the cankers of views by the path of the Stream-entrant, the destruction of the gross cankers by the path of the Oncereturner, the destruction of the subtle cankers by the path of the Non-returner, and the destruction of all cankers by the path of the Consummate One" —these are called the 'virtue of nontransgression', the 'virtue of volition', thevirtue of restraint' and the 'virtue of abstention'. These are called virtue. -

SALIENT CHARACTERISTIC OF VIRTUE

'What is the salient characteristic of virtue'?: The removal of non-dignity dignity. What is called 'non-dignity1? A. It is transgression of virtue. There are three kinds of transgression of virtue: transgression of the virtue pertaining to the rules of the Community of Bhikkhus;5 transgression of the virtue pertaining to the requisites; 6 transgression of the virtuepertaining to the faculties. 7 What is 'transgression of the virtue pertainingto the Community of Bhikkhus'? [401]. It is loss of faith in the Tathagataowing to immodesty8 and indecorum.9 What is 'transgression of the virtue pertaining to the requisites'? When a man's life is concerned with theadornment of the body, he loses contentment. What is 'transgression of virtue pertaining to the faculties'? It is separation from wise attentivenessthrough not closing the six sense doors. These three constitute 'non-dignity'. This is called the 'salient characteristic of virtue'.

FUNCTION, MANIFESTATION AND NEAR CAUSE OF VIRTUE

What are its 'function', 'manifestation' and 'near cause'? Excellent joyis its 'function'. Non-repentance is its 'manifestation'. The three meritoriousactivities are its 'near cause'. And again, excellent delight is its 'function'. Non-repentance is its manifestation. The shielding of all faculties is its nearcause.

BENEFITS OF VIRTUE

What are the 'benefits' of virtue? Non-repentance is the benefit of virtue. This is in accord with the words of the Blessed One addressed to (the VenerableElder) Ananda: "Non-repentance is the benefit and gain of virtue." 1 Andagain, virtue is called excellent joy, the highest of all castes, the treasure2and the noble. This is the ground of the Buddhas. This is to bathe withoutwater.3 This is to permeate with fragrance.4 This is the shadow accompanyingform. This is to wear the thread which must be worn. This is the sacredcaste. This is the peerless training. This is the course of well-faring. If aman practises virtue, on account of that virtue, he will become fearless, ennoblehis friends and be dear to the holy ones. This is the good ornament.5 Thisrules all conduct. This is the place of merit. This is the field of offering. This is the ground of growth in noble companionship.

(He who practises virtue) will be steadfast in all good. He will fulfilpurity of aspiration. Even in death he will be self-possessed.6 Accomplishingthe freedom of suppression he will experience the bliss of artifice ('?). Thusthere are many merits of virtue.

MEANING OF VIRTUE

'What is the meaning of virtue'? A. It means coolness, the higher excel-lence, action, nature and natural condition of the nature of suffering andjoy. Again, it means the head, coolness7 and peace. Why is it said thatvirtue is the 'head'? A. If a man has no head he cannot get rid of the dustof passion from his faculties. Then it is called death. Thus the virtue ofthe bhikkhu is the head. Beheaded, (he) loses all good qualities. Thusin the teaching of the Buddha it is called death. This is the meaning of 'head'in virtue. Why is it said that virtue means 'coolness'? A. Just as the exceedinglycool sandal allays the fever-heat of the body, just so does virtue allay thefever of the mind that fears after breaking the precepts, and induce joy. Thisis the meaning of virtue as 'coolness'. Why is it said that 'peace' is the meaning of virtue? A. If a man practises vhtue he will be quiet of behaviour. Hewill not arouse fear. This is the meaning of virtue as 'peace'.

VIRTUE AND MODE OF LIFE

'What is the difference between (virtue) and mode of life'?1 Practice,2energy,3 resolution,4 austerities.5 These are modes of life, not virtue. Virtue is also called mode of life. Virtue is called dignity. Feeling (?) is also called mode of life.

THREE KINDS OF VIRTUE

'How many (kinds of) virtue are there'? There are three kinds of virtue:skilful virtue, unskilful virtue and non-charactriezable virtue.6 What isskilful virtue? Bodily and verbal meritorious activities and right livelihood.(Here), because of absence of tribulation, good result ensues. What is unskilfulvirtue? Bodily and verbal demeritorious activities and wrong livelihood.(Here), because of tribulation, good result does not ensue. What is 'non-characterizable virtue'? It is bodily and verbal canker-free activities andspotless livelihood. (Here) there is neither tribulation nor good result.

WHAT PRODUCES VIRTUE

'What produces virtue'? Virtue produced in a good heart is skilfulvirtue. Virtue produced in an evil heart is unskilful virtue. Virtue producedin a non-characterizable heart is non-characterizable virtue.7

STAGES IN VIRTUE

'What are the initial, medial, and final (stages in) virtue'? The keeping of precepts is the initial (stage), non-transgression is the medial (stage) andrejoicing is the final (stage) in virtue.8

How many are the 'obstacles' to and how many are the 'causes' of virtue? A. Thirty-four states 9 are 'obstacles'. Thirty-four states are 'causes' of virtue.

IMPEDIMENTS AND CAUSES OF VIRTUE

Anger, malice, hypocrisy, agitation, covetousness, jealousy, wile, craftiness, resentment, disputatiousness, pride, self-conceit, arrogance, negligence, idleness, lust, non-contentment with little, not following the wise, non-mindfulness, harsh speech, evil companionship, evil knowledge, evil views, impatience, want of faith, immodesty, indecorum, indulgence of body mouth and palate, vulgarity, contact with women, not honouring the teacher, non-practice of restraint of the senses, non-practice of concentration in the first and last watchesof the night, not reciting the discourses in the first and last watches of thenight—these thirty-four states are 'obstacles'. A man impeded by any one of these cannot perfect his virtue. If his virtue is not perfected he will surelyretrogress. The thirty-four slates which counteract these ('obstacles') are the 'cause' of virtue.1

FIRST GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

'How many groups of virtue are there'? Group of two, group of threeand group of four. What is the group of two? Precepts governing usage2and precepts governing prohibitions.3 Those decisions of the Buddha whichindicate what ought to be done by body and speech are 'precepts governingusage'. Those decisions of the Buddha which indicate what ought not to bedone by body and speech are 'precepts governing prohibitions'. 'Preceptsgoverning usage' are accomplished through the effort of faith. 'Preceptsgoverning prohibitions' are accomplished through being mindful of faith.

SECOND GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: the virtue of discarding4and the virtue of undertaking.5 What is called

'discarding'? It is the des-truction of non-virtue. What is called 'undertaking'? It is the undertakingto keep many good precepts. Just as light dispels darkness, just so a man whodiscards non-virtues, by the discarding of those non-virtues, will be freed fromill-faring. Through undertaking to keep good precepts he can enter the pathof merit. Through the destruction of non-virtue he fulfils steadfastness.6

THIRD GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue. Mundane virtue? and supra-mundane virtue.8 What is 'supramundane virtue'? The virtue which isfulfilled together with the fruit of the noble Path — this is 'supramundanevirtue'. The rest is 'mundane virtue'. Through the fulfilment of 'mundanevirtue' preeminence is accomplished. Through the fulfilment of 'supramun-dane virtue' freedom is accomplished.

FOURTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: measurable virtue1 and immeasurable virtue.2 Incomplete virtue — this is called 'measurable virtue'. Complete virtue — this is called 'immeasurable' (virtue), according to the declaration of the Buddha.

FIFTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is -i group of two in viitue: with limit and without limit.3What is 'with limit'? If a man undertakes to keep any precept but transgressesit for the sake of worldly welfare, for the sake of fame, for the sake of friends*, for the sake of the body and for the sake of life, then his virtue makes worldlywelfare its limit, makes fame its limit, makes the body its limit, makes lifeits limit. What is 'without limit'?

Here a bhikkhu undertakes to keep aprecept rightly and does not entertain even the thought of transgressing (theprecept) for the sake of worldly welfare, for the sake of fame, for the sake ofthe body and for the sake of life. How then will he transgress it? This iscalled virtue 'without limit*.

SIXTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: dependent and non-dependent.4Virtue that is connected with becoming is dependent on craving. The virtuethat is connected with addiction to rites and ceremonies is dependent onopinions. The virtue that is connected with self-praise and blame of others isdependent on pride.5 These are 'dependent' virtues. Virtue that is for thesake of freedom is 'non-dependent' virtue. 'Dependent' virtue is not forwise men. 'Non-dependent' virtue is for the wise.

SEVENTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: the virtue of the fundamentalsof the holy life6 and the virtue of enhanced practice.7 What is 'the virtue ofthe fundamentals of the holy life'? The virtue comprising purified bodily action, purified verbal action and pure livelihood1 is called 'the virtue of thefundamentals of the holy life'. The remaining virtue of training is called 'thevirtue of enhanced practice'.

EIGHTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: connected with mind andnot connected with mind. What is 'connected with mind'? It is 'the virtue of the fundamentals of the holy life'. What is 'not connected with mind'? The other, 'the virtue of enhanced practice'. In observing 'the virtue of thefundamentals of the holy life' the hearer2 accomplishes the austere and thelofty virtue. By this 'virtue of enhanced practice' one does evil. Becausethe Buddha did not declare that (i.e., the virtue of enhanced practice), it is a hindrance to Enlightenment. (Therefore one does evil).

NINTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: inviolable virtue and spotlessvirtue. What is 'inviolable'? It is hearer's virtue. What is 'spotless'? It is the virtue of the Buddhas and the Paccekabuddhas.

TENTH GROUP OF TWO IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of two in virtue: virtue practised within atime-limit4 and virtue practised till the dissolution of the body.5 What is practised for a short time and is not connected with life is called 'virtue practised within a time-limit'. What is practised to the end of life from the time a manfollows his teacher and undertakes the precepts is called the 'virtue practised till the dissolution of the body'. There is time in the reward of virtue practised within a time-limit. There is no time in the reward of virtue practised till the dissolution of the body.

FIRST GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

What (is the group of) three (in virtue)? It is (the virtue of) quelling eviland not transgressing, experiencing and not transgressing, extirpating and nottransgressing.6 What is 'quelling evil and not transgressing'? Thoughhitherto not experienced feelings not belonging to one's practice arise, yet onedoes not suffer even the thought of transgression, in his mind—this is called'quelling evil and not transgressing'.

What is 'experiencing and not transgressing'? Having experienced afeeling one does not on that account transgress ever after — this is called'experiencing and not transgressing'.

What is 'extirpating and not transgressing'? The noble individual1extirpates various causes of evil through the noble Path — this is called 'ex-tirpating and not transgressing'.

SECOND GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three in virtue thus: tarnished virtue,2not-tarnished virtue,8 tranquillized virtue.4

What is 'tarnished virtue'? One clings to the appearance of a put-together-thing at first sight—this is called 'tarnished virtue'.

The virtue of the commoner5 which is also the means of entering into the Path—this is called 'not-tarnished' virtue.

What is 'tranquillized virtue'? It is the virtue of the Consummate One.

THIRD GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three (in virtue) thus: the virtue swayedby the world,0 the virtue swayed by the body and life,7 the virtue swayed bythe Law.8

■ What is virtue swayed by the world'? A man, through fear, removes various evils following the will of the world — this is called 'virtue swayed by the world'.

What is 'virtue swayed by the body and life'? A man, through fear,removes various evils in order to protect his life—this is called 'virtue swayedby the body and life'.

What is 'virtue swayed by the Law'? A man, through reverence, removes various demeritorious states for the sake of the True Law —- this is called 'virtue swayed by the Law/

FOURTH GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three in virtue [402] thus: virtue allied to disparate desires, virtue allied to like desires, virtue allied to no desires.9

I. Ariya puggala. 2. Paramattha siia. Cp. S. II, 94: Digharaitam he tarn bhikkhave

What is 'virtue allied to disparate desires'? (A man, while) tormentingothers, undertakes to observe the precepts — this is called 'virtue allied todisparate desires'.

What is 'virtue allied to like desires'? A man undertakes to observe he precepts for the sake of happiness in the present life and for the sake of thehappiness of freedom in the future — this is called 'virtue allied to like desires'.

What is 'virtue allied to no desires'? A man undertakes to observe theprecepts, does not repent and benefits others — this is called 'virtue allied tono desires'.

FIFTH GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three in virtue thus: pure virtue,1 impurevirtue,2 doubtful virtue.3

What is 'pure virtue'? Through two causes 'pure virtue' is fulfilled:the first is non-transgression; the second is confession after transgression—this is called 'pure virtue'.

Through two causes 'impure virtue' is fulfilled: the first is wilful trans-gression; the second is non-confession after transgression — this is called 'irapuie virtue'.

What is 'doubtful virtue'? Through three causes 'doubtful virtue' isfulfilled: the first is the non-distinguishing of place; the second is the non-distinguishing of transgression; the third is the non-distinguishing ofwrongful deeds—this is called, 'doubtful virtue'...

If a yogin's virtue is impure he confesses and experiences the bliss of thepurified. If he had doubt, he presently finds out the blemish and acquirespeace.

SIXTH GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three in virtue: learner's virtue,4 learning-ender's virtue,5 neither learner's nor learn ing-ender's virtue.0

What is learner's virtue'? It is the virtue of the seven learner-individuals.7

What is 'learning-endefs virtue'? It is the virtue of the ConsummateOne.

What is 'neither learner's nor learning-ender's virtue'? It is the virtue of the commoner.

SEVENTH GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three in virtue thus: fearful virtue, anxiousvirtue, fatuous virtue.8

- 1. Visuddha sila, 2. Avisuddha sila. 3. Vematika sila. Cp. Vis. Mag. 14.

What is Tearful virtue'? There is a man who through fear does not commit evil — this is called 'fearful virtue'.

What is 'anxious virtue'? A certain man, remembering an intimatefriend from whom he is separated, is troubled with anxiety; owing to anxietyhe does not commit evil — this is called 'anxious virtue'.

What is 'fatuous virtue'? There is a man; he observes the precepts ofcow-asceticism1 or dog-asceticism2 — this is called 'fatuous virtue'.

If a man fulfils 'fatuous virtue', he will become a cow or a dog. If hedoes not fulfil, he will fall into hell.3

EIGHTH GROUP OF THREE IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of three in virtue: inferior,1 middlingssuperior.6

What is 'inferior'? (A certain man) is affected with much passion, excessive passion, great passion and is impregnated with non-paucity of wishes — this called 'inferior' virtue.

What is 'middling'? (A certain man) is affected with subtle passion and is impregnated with paucity of wishes — this is called 'middling' virtue.

What is 'superior'? (A certain man) is not affected with passion and isimpregnated with paucity of wishes — this is called 'superior' virtue.

Through the fulfilment of 'inferior' virtue, one is reborn as a man; through the fulfilment of 'middling' virtue, one is reborn as a god; through the fulfilment of 'superior' virtue, one attians to freedom.

FIRST GROUP OF FOUR IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of four in virtue: partaking of deteriora-tion,7 partaking of stagnation,8 partaking of excellence,9 partaking of penetra-tion.10

What is 'partaking of deterioration'? A certain man does not removewhat shuts out the attainment of the Path; he is not energetic; and he wilfullytransgresses (the precepts) and thereafter conceals (his fault) — this is called partaking of deterioration.

What is 'partaking of stagnation'? A certain man keeps the preceptsand is not heedless, but he does not arouse aversion — this is called 'partaking of stagnation'.

A certain man fulfils virtue and concentration, is not heedless, but doesnot arouse aversion — this is called 'partaking of excellence'.

A certain man fulfils virtue and concentration, is not heedless and arouses aversion — this is called 'partaking of penetration'.

SECOND GROUP OF FOUR IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of four in virtue: the precepts for bhikkhus, the precepts for bhikkhunls, the precepts for the not-yet-ordained, 1 and precepts for the white-clothed householders 2

What are 'the precepts for bhikkhus'? The Pdtimokkha-Tcsimxnts—these are 'the precepts for bhikkhus'.

(What are) 'the precepts for bhikkhunls'?4 The Pdtimokkha~T.estra\nt$—these are 'the precepts for bhikkhunls'.

The ten precepts for male and female novices 5 and the precepts for femaleprobationers"—these are called 'the precepts for the not-yet ordained'.

The five precepts and the eight precepts for lay-disciples, male and female—these are 'the precepts for the white-clothed householders'.

THIRD GROUP OF FOUR IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of four in virtue thus: Virtue that is natural,7virtue that is good manners,8 virtue that is law9 and virtue that is (the result of)former conditions.10

What is 'virtue that is natural'? The virtue of the people of Uttarakuru—this is called 'virtue that is natural'.

What is 'virtue that is good manners'? Conduct conforming to rules of clan, caste, country, beliefs and the like—this is called 'virtue that is goodmanners'.

What is 'virtue that is law'? The virtue (of the mother of the Bodhisatta)when he enters the womb — this is called 'virtue that is law'.

What is 'virtue that is (the result of) former conditions'? The virtue of the Bodhisatta and the Venerable Elder Maha Kassapa—this is called 'virtuethat is (the result of) former conditions'.

FOURTH GROUP OF FOUR IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of four in virtue: virtue as virtue, virtue asaccumulation, virtue as ending, virtue as complete path of ending.11

What is Virtue as virtue'? Two kinds: skilful and unskilful virtue — theseare called 'virtue as virtue'.1

What is 'virtue as accumulation'? A good heart accumulates skilfulvirtue; a bad heart accumulates unskilful virtue.2

What is 'virtue as ending'? A man ends unskilful virtue throughthe acquisition of skilful virtue; a man ends skilful virtue through theaccomplishment of sanctity.3

What is 'virtue as complete path of ending'? Namely, the four-foldright effort1 — this is called 'virtue as complete path of ending'. The four-foldactivity is to be understood thus: It is called energy and is not real observanceof virtue — this is named 'right effort'.

FIFTH GROUP OF FOUR IN VIRTUE

And again, there is a group of four in virtue: virtue of the rules-of-the-order restraint,5 virtue of the purity of livelihood,6 virtue of faculty restraint,7 virtue connected with the requisites.8

What is 'virtue of the rules-of-the-order-restraint'? Here a bhikkhudwells, being restrained by rules-of-the-order restraint, is endowed with goodbehaviour and lawful resort, fears even a small fault and well trains himselfin the precepts in which he should be trained.9 'Here' means in this Mastersteaching. 'Bhikkhu' means good commoner. Also it means learner, learning-ender, unshakable one.10 'Rules-of-the-order-restraint' means virtue, manifes-tation, beginning, activities, protection, restraint, sloughing and unbinding. This is the entrance into the doctrines. By this the Good Law11 is accepted. This is the meaning of 'rules-of-the-order'. Not transgressing through bodilyand verbal action is 'restraint'. 'Restrained' means accomplished in therules-of-the-order-restraint. 'Dwells' means guards the four postures. 'Isendowed

IB Vimuttimagga

What is "misbehaviour1?" Here a bhikkhu gives someone bamboostaves, or flowers, leaves and fruits, or tooth-sticks and bath-powder; or hecourts favour, speaking well or ill of others; or he is given to fawning; or heruns hither and thither and to far off places contrary to the rule, in order to invite folk to an assembly; or does such other actions censured by the Buddhaand thus subsists by wrong livelihood—this is called 'misbehaviour'.1

And again, there are two kinds of 'misbehaviour': bodily and verbalmisbehaviour. What is 'bodily misbehaviour'? A certain bhikkhu goes tothe midst of the assembly of the Order with pride in his heart, brushing pastthe venerable ones; he recklessly pushes them, or goes forward, or haughtilystands, or sits on a high seat before the venerable ones (sit), or keeps backthe venerable ones, or sits pompously, or disdainful of the venerable onesdisposes himself on a seat; or patting them (the venerable ones) on the shoulder, he speaks lightly to them. While the venerable ones go barefooted, he wearssandals. When aged and venerable ones walk on the path below, he walkson the high and broad road above. In various ways he slights and troubles(others). He withholds what is good from the younger bhikkhus. He giveswhat is mean to the venerable ones. Without permission, he burns fuel in the bath-room and opens and shuts the door. Or when he goes to the water-side, he enters it (the water) before them (the venerable ones) and twists and turns his body, or pats, in the fashion of rustics. When he goes to another'shouse he enters abruptly, either by the back or by the front door; sits downand gets up in a disorderly manner; or he enters screened places and jokeswith women and young girls and strokes their necks. Such misconduct is called 'misbehaviour' of body.2

What is 'verbal misbehaviour'? A certain bhikkhu has no reverence in hismind. Without rinding out the wishes of the venerable ones he preaches onthe Law or he preaches on the Pdtimokkha; or he speaks to others pattingthem on the shoulder; or he enters another's house and asks of a womanbluntly thus: "Madam so and so of such and such a family, is there or isthere not anything to eat? If there is, let me have it. I want to get food". Such words are 'verbal misbehaviour'.3

What is 'good behaviour'? It is the opposite of 'misbehaviour'. Acertain bhikkhu has reverence in his mind, is obedient, is possessed of modestyand decorum and is thoroughly skilled in the postures. He has enoughalways, guards his senses and is abstemious as regards food and drink. He never sleeps in the first and last watches of the night. He is endowed with wisdom and is aware of the paucity of his wishes. He is not troubled with worldly cares, is of energetic mind and deeply honours his companions. This is called 'good behaviour'.

'Lawful resort' means lawful resort and unlawful resort. What is'unlawful resort'? "A certain bhikkhu goes to a harlot's abode, a widow'sabode, a virgin's abode, a eunuch's abode, a bhikkunf s abode, to liquorshops; he associates with kings, ministers, heretical monks, evil monks andwith such fellows as have no heart of faith, never benefit the four classes andwho are disliked by them (the four classes). This is called 'unlawful resort' ".1The Buddha has declared: "A bhikkhu transgresses (the precept against)impure unlawful resort. What is 'impure unlawful resort'? It is to go to aharlot's abode". 'Lawful resort' is obvious.

And again, there are three kinds of 'lawful resort': lawful resort as closereliance,2 lawful resort as protection,3 lawful resort as a bond.4

[403] What is 'lawful resort as close reliance'? It is a good friendendowed v/ith the ten meritorious qualities.5 Owing to these qualities a manhears what he has not heard before and what has been heard is further expounded to him, he destroys doubt, attains to right views and clarity (ofmind); and training himself well in the Law, believes strongly and deeply, and increases in virtue, learning, liberality and wisdom.6 This is called 'lawfulresort as close reliance'.

What is 'lawful resort as protection'? When a certain bhikkhu goes toothers' houses or to the village, he walks looking groundwards and not furtherthan a fathom's distance; his bearing is dignified, calm and orderly; he isreverenced by the people; he does not look at elephant-chariots 01 horse-chariots, or at men and women making merry, or at the balcony of the palace, or at street-stalls. Thus he does not look up and down in the four directions. This is called 'lawful resort as protection'.

What is 'lawful resort as a bond'? It is as the Buddha has said: "Abhikkhu dwells within the precincts of his home and land"? — this is called 'lawful resort as a bond'. These are called 'lawful resort'. Thus 'lawfulresort' is fulfilled. Therefore, it is said, 'endowed with lawful resort'.

Tears even a small fault' means fears the small faults committed in thecourse of training — this is called "fears even a small fault'.

And again, there is another teaching: One arouses unskilful states of consciousness — this is called slight error. One wishes to dwell far from this slight error seeing and fearing the retribution thereof. This is called seeing danger in 'slight error'.

'Trains himself in the precepts in which he should be trained' — What is the meaning of 'should be trained'? It means the seven groups of restraint.1'Trains himself means follows all (as taught above). This is called 'trainshimself (in the precepts) in which he should be trained'. This is called 'virtueof the rules-of-the-order-restraint'.

Q. What is 'virtue of purity (of livelihood)'? A. It is to be notguilty of wrong livelihood. What is wrong livelihood? It is trickery,2 talka-tiveness,3 insinuation,4 detraction,5 and giving in order to get more.6

What is 'trickery'? There are three bases of 'trickery': —

One schemes, and wants to have the four requisites, coarse and different(from the fine requisites offered to one): a certain bhikkhu corrects hisbehaviour, temporarily, advertises himself widely, or harbours evil desires; coveting property, he hands over excellent robes and food (to others), and for himself wants what is coarse; or, he pretends as if he did not want to get(any); or, he accepts the four requisites simulating compassion for others—thisis called the 'trickery' of scheming for requisites.7

A certain bhikkhu having evil desires and coveting property, simulatesdignified demeanour, and says: T have attained to meditation (jhana)9 andrecites the Discourses wishing to receive offerings — this is called the 'trickery' of the postures.8

A certain bhikkhu who is covetous and talkative, declares to others: "I possess the Ariyan Truth and dwell in solitude;" or, "I practise meditation," "My preaching is deep and subtle," "I possess the signs of a superman. "9Thus, desiring gain, he extols himself. This is called the 'trickery' (of round-about talk).10

Talkativeness means one is not genuine, flatters, jests and poses, hopingfor gain. One causes amusement longing to attract gain to oneself. This iscalled talkativeness.

What is 'insinuation'? A bhikkhu preaches the Law to a rich man whosesupport he desires. He longs for benefits and does not endeavour for masteryover his own heart. This is called 'insinuation'.

- 9. These are quite different from the details given at pp. 25-6 in the Vis. Mag. on the samesubject. 10. Ndi 226: Samantajappcmasamkhdtam kuhanavatthu.
- 'Detraction' means that a man wishing to gain benefits, causes people tofear him, because he abuses them, or because he creates dissensions amongthem; or terrifies people with harmful actions.

What is 'giving in order to get more'? He makes small offerings and expects great returns. This is called 'giving in order to get more'. These many evil actions constitute wrong livelihood.

And again, there is another (teaching concerning) wrong livelihood:(It is) giving bamboo staves, or flowers, leaves and fruits, or tooth-sticks andbath-powder; or, it is to divine, or to interpret dreams, or to make astrological predictions, or to interpret the language of birds, or to conjectuic concerning the auspiciousness or inauspiciousness of modes of walking; it is to worshipfire1 and to offer flowers to it; or it is to drive a prosperous trade; or it is tolead armies; or it is to deal in sharp weapons. These, and such other activities constitute wrong livelihood. The not doing of these is called 'virtue of the purity (of livelihood)'.

Q. What is 'virtue of the restraint of the faculties'?

A. On seeing a form, hearing a sound, smelling an odour, tasting aflavour or contacting a tangible, a man resolves to be not entranced by the defiling aspects thereof, and he does not transgress. This is called 'virtue of the restraint of the faculties'. This 'virtue of the restraint of the faculties' is fulfilled through nine activities 3:—

Through cutting down the signs of evil which arise in the faculties; throughovercoming non-mindfulness; through not letting (evil states of consciousness)to continue, as (in the simile of) the man who saves his burning head; 4 throughrestraint comparable to that of the Venerable Elder Nanda; 5 through conqueringevil states of consciousness; through attaining to concentration of mind withease; through living apart from men who do not guard the faculties; andthrough living in the company of those who guard the faculties.

Q. What is 'virtue connected with the requisites'?

A. Through eight ways one wisely reflects in accepting alms thus:

The first: one does not take (food and drink) for the sake of violent sportor intoxication; the second: one does not take

(food and drink) for the sakeof personal charm or beautification; the third; one takes (food and drink)in order to sustain the body and to preserve it; the fourth: one takes (foodand drink) in order to stay hunger and thirst; the fifth: one takes (foodand drink) in order to observe the holy life; the sixth: one always thinksthat food and drink are intended to remove old ills and not to allow new ills

- 1. D. I. 9: Aggi-homa,
- 2. Cp. D. I, 70. 3. Only eight are treated in the explanation which follows.
- 4. Cp. S. IIF, 143: Evam khandhe avekkheyya bhikkhu araddhaviriyo to arise; the seventh: one takes (food and drink) finding satisfaction withlittle; the eighth: one takes (food and drink) faultlessly and dwells in comfort.1

- Q. What is 'one does not take (food and drink) for the sake of violentsport or intoxication'?
- A. "I take food greedily. I am strong. Therefore, I like violent sport,rough play, competing with others and running." These constitute 'violentsport'. 'Intoxication' means self-arrogance and dissatisfaction. It is likenedto the state of an angry man who beats another. 'Not for the sake of personalcharm and beautification': (Not like) those who wish to be loved for thefullness of their body and limbs and good looks, and do not know contentment, being full of desires. 'One takes (food and drink) in order to sustain the bodyand to preserve it': As a hub needs oil, so one yearns for the peaceful preser-vation of the body. 'One takes (food and drink) in order to stay hunger andthirst': One, always, takes little food. As a man uses medicine for a disease of the skin, so one takes. 'One takes (food and drink) in order to observe theholy life': One wishes to reach the Noble Path through the advantages of abstemiousness. Feeling as a man who eats the flesh of his child, one takes.2'Intended to remove old ills and not to allow new ills to arise': One takesnot too little and not too much. As a man taking a mixture, so one takes. 'One takes (food and drink) finding satisfaction in little': One keeps one's body safe accepting little, always treating one's body as a nurse (treats apatient). 'Faultlessly' means one sets one's body at ease with little. Usingin this way, one makes the body faultless and escapes the reproof of the wise. Thus 'one takes (food and drink) faultlessly and dwells in comfort'.

If one's food is suitable, one never feels tired and one does not sleep inthe first, middle and last watches of the night. In this way one fulfils tranquillity. Thus 'through eight ways one wisely reflects in accepting alms'. Thus one should accept.

And again, these eight ways are shortened to four considerations: the consideration of what ought to be cut down, the consideration of reality, the consideration of being satisfied with little, the consideration of accepting little.

Q. What is 'the consideration of what ought to be cut down'?

A. The state of not being addicted to 'violent sport', not being in a state of 'intoxication' and the state of not being concerned with 'personal charmand beautification' — these are called 'the consideration of what ought to becut down'.

Using 'in order to sustain the body and to preserve it', 'in order to stayhunger and thirst', and 'in order to observe the holy life' — these are called'the consideration of reality'.

- 1. A. IT, 40: Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu patlsankhd yoniso aharam dhdreti, neva clavdya namaddya na mandandya na vibhusandya ydvad eva iniassa kdyassa thitiya ydpandyavihimsuparatiya brahmaeariydnuggahdya: iti purdnah ca vedanarh patihankhdmi navanca vedanam na uppddessdmi, ydtrd ca me bhavissati anavajjatd ca phasuvihdro cdti.
- 2. S. II, 98. Also Th. 445: Uppajje ce rase tanha puttamamsupamam sara.

"I shall subdue the old ills and I shall cause no new ills to arise" — thisis called 'the consideration of being satisfied with little'.

"I shall satisfy myself with little and, being faultless, I shall dwell incomfort" — this is called 'the consideration of accepting little'. These arethe four considerations.

These four considerations are further shortened to three thus: consideration of cutting down, consideration of mean (lit. taking the middle between twoends), consideration of completion.

A man cuts down the attachment to sense-pleasures through the 'considera-tion of cutting down' i.e., removes hunger and thirst, destroys the old ills anddoes not cause new ills to arise. And again, by this 'consideration' a mandestroys karmic weariness of the body. The others should be practised in the'consideration of mean' and the 'consideration of completion'.

And when one reflects on robes he understands that robes are for protec-tion against wind, cold, heat, mosquitoes, gadflies and ants and for coveringone's unsightly shame-producing parts. Thus one practises 'consideration of completion'.1

And again, one reflects on medicines for ailments.2If that is so, when should one make consideration?

As regards food and the taking of medicine one should make considerationwhenever one takes (food and medicine). As regards robes and bedding oneshould make consideration at the time one accepts. And every day and everyhour should one think thus: My life depends on others; therefore, I oughtalways to reflect'.3 Thus one should consider everything.

There are four kinds of use taught by predecessors thus: use as theft, use as debt, use as inheritance and use like a master.4

What is 'use as theft'? Use (of requisites) by the transgressor of theprecepts.

What is 'use as debt'? Use (of requisites) by individuals guilty ofimmodesty, indecorum and wrong livelihood.

What is 'use as inheritance'? Use (of requisites) by individuals who arestrenuous.

What is 'use like a master'? Use (of requisites) by the consummate ones.

And again, there are two kinds of use. Namely, unclean use and cleanuse.

What is 'unclean'? (Use of requisites by an) individual having modestyand decorum but who is not capable of wise reflection—this is called 'unclean'.

- 1. M. T, 10: Patisankhd yoniso civaram patisevati yavad eva sitassa patighataya unhassapafigheltdya damsamakasavdtdtapasirimsapa samphassdnarh patighataya yavad evalurikoplnapatiechddanattham.
- 2. Ibid.
- 3. A.V, 87—8: Parapatibaddhd me jivikd ti pabbajitena abhinham paccavekkhitabbam.
- 4. J. V, 253: Theyyaparibhoga, inaparibhoga, ddyajjaparibhoga, sdmiparibhoga. Vis. Mag.does not attribute these four to the 'ancients' (pordna) as it is done here.

(Use of requisites by an) individual having modesty and decorum, whoreflects wisely, knows, is self-moderated and is possessed of aversion — this is called 'clean'. In this cleanliness one ought to train oneself always. Thusone should understand the four requisites. This is called 'virtue connected with the requisites'.

FIFTH GROUP OF FOUR IN VIRTUE SUMMARIZED

Thus 'virtue of the ruies-of-the-order-restraint' should be fulfilled throughhigher faith; 'virtue of purity of livelihood' should be fulfilled through higherenergy; [404] 'virtue of the restraint of faculties' should be fulfilled throughhigher faith and 'virtue connected with the requisites' should be fulfilled throughhigher wisdom.

Thus 'virtue of the purity of livelihood' goes together with the rules of theorder, Pdtimokkha. Why? Because, through separation from worldly affairsowing to non-attachment, one becomes quiet of behaviour and acquires restraintof bodily and verbal actions. These two kinds of virtue belong to the 'virtueof the restraint of faculties'. What is the reason? If a man guards his mindin goodness, he can well protect his bodily and verbal actions. '(Virtue)connected with the requisites' is 'restraint of faculties'. What is the reason? One knows the aggregations and their dependence and is disgusted with them, and dwells in Right Mindfulness and Right Concentration. It is as taught bythe Blessed One thus: "A bhikkhu understands material food and the five-fold lust".

'Rules-of-the-order-restraint' and 'purity of livelihood' belong to the 'group of virtue'; 'virtue of the restraint of faculties' belongs to the 'group of concentration' and 'virtue connected with the requisites' belongs to the 'group of wisdom'.

WHAT PURIFIES VIRTUE

'What purifies virtue'? If a bhikkhu who has accepted the teaching ofmeditation1 and is mindful of the seven groups of offences, sees anothercommitting a Defeat-offence2 he falls from the state of a bhikkhu and lives inincomplete virtue. If he lives in complete virtue, he will acquire the excellent virtue. If he lives in complete virtue, he will acquire the excellent truth. This is the teaching of the predecessors.

If a bhikkhu sees another committing a Suspension-offence3 he confessesfully. If he sees another committing any other offence, then he confessesconcerning that transgression to one person.4

If a bhikkhu sees another5 committing wrong livelihood, he makes aproper confession concerning that transgression. After he confesses, heresolves: "I will not do it again." Thus having seen, he resolves.

On Distinguishing Virtue 25

When he transgresses '(virtue of) the restraint of faculties' or '(virtue)connected with the requisites' he says: "1 will not do it again". If he resolveshe will acquire excellent restraint in the future

When a bhikkhu practises the purity of virtue, he does bodily and verbalactions that ought to be done. He reflects on his actions. He does well andremoves ill. Reflecting thus he dwells in the purity of virtue, day and night. Thus doing he is able to purify his virtue.

What is the salient characteristic of the purity of virtue? 1 One can controlthe passions, 2 destroy rigidity 3 and fulfil concentration. 4 This is the salientcharacteristic of the purity of virtue.

CAUSES THROUGH WHICH ONE DWELLS IN VIRTUE

'Owing to how many causes does one dwell in virtue?'
Through two,one dwells in virtue. The first: one considers the tribulation of the transgression of virtue; the second: one considers the merits of virtue.

What is to consider 'tribulation'? If a man transgresses virtue, lie makesdemerit and prepares evil places (for himself) and fears the four classes5 anddoubting, blames the wise. Those who are virtuous avoid him. He is nottaught meditation. Heavenly beings despise him. He is hated and slightedby all. When he hears others praising the merit of those who are virtuous,he feels sorrowful but does not believe it (the merit of those who are virtuous). He is always angry when he is amongst those of the four classes. He dislikesand hates (good) companions. He opposes those who are virtuous and takesthe side of evil companions.

And again, he has not the patience to enter into the way of excellent con-centration. If he adorns himself, he looks, especially, ugly. He is disliked even as excrement and urine are disliked by men. (He does not endure) evenas a makeshift article does not last long. (He is worthless) even as mud isof no value in the present or the future. He is anxious and dejected always. He is ashamed and remorseful of the evil he has done and he has no peaceof mind, like a thief in prison. He has no desire for the Noble (Law), as anoutcast has no desire for a king's throne. 6 Though he is learned in the doctrine of wisdom, yet none honour him, even as a dung-fire (is honoured by none). Hecannot find a good place in this life and after death he will go to an evil state.

If a man wishes to forsake evil and fulfil the merits of virtue, he shouldconsider thus: The mind of the transgressor of virtue is disti acted and dejected. The virtuous man, through strenuous endeavour, grows in belief and becomes an energetic individual endowed with faith.

- 6, Vis, Mag. 54: Niraso saddhamme caiidalakumdrako viya rajje.

A man should protect his virtue, with all his strength, as an ant protectsher egg, as a yak loves his tail, as one protects an only son or one's sole eye, las a diviner protects himself, as a poor man protects his treasure andas a fisherman protects his boat. More (strenuously) than these should hehonour and protect the virtue he has undertaken to observe. If he thus observes, his mind will be guarded, he will dwell in the peace of concentration and hisvirtue will acquire protection.

CHAPTER THE THIRD

Q. Now, if a yogin who dwells in pure virtue aspires to accomplishexcellent good merits and wishes to acquire the benefits of the austerities, heshould consider thus: "Why should one acquire the benefits of the austerities"?

A. Because of the varying disposition of the yogin. For paucity ofwishes, for contentment with little, for freedom from doubt, for the destruction craving, for the increase of energy, for the sake of using little and notaccepting the offerings made to others, for solitude, for the cutting down ofclinging and for the protection of moral virtue. These (the merits of theausterities) are the equipment of concentration. These are (practices of)the ancient lineage of the Ariyas.2 These are the excellent considerations.

THE THIRTEEN AUSTERITIES

What are the austerities? There are thirteen teachings:3 two teachingsconnected with robes, namely, dirt-rags*4 and three robes; t5 five teachingsconnected with alms, namely, begged food, t6 regular alms-round, *7 one eating, *8 measured food, *9 no food after time; *10 five teachings connected with residence: the first: dwelling in a peaceful place, *11 the second: dwelling under a tree, *12the third: dwelling in a dewy place, *13 the fourth: dwelling among the graves, *14the fifth:

any chanced upon place;*15 and there is a kind of sitting connected with energy, namely, always sitting and not lying down.*16

BRIEF EXPLANATION OF THE THIRTEEN AUSTERITIES

What is the quality of 'dirt-rags'? A. The quality of enabling to observe —this is the quality of dirt-rags'. Others are similar.

What is the meaning of the observance of dirt-rags'? The non-acceptance of gifts of householders.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'three robes'? The rejection of extra robes.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'begged food'? The non-acceptance of the invitations of others.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'regular almsround'? Theabandoning of skipped begging.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'one-eating'? The not sittingagain.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'measured food'? The abandon-ing of greed.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'refusing food after time'? The abandoning of the desire to eat afterwards.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'dwelling in a peaceful place'? The abandoning of dwelling in a village.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'dwelling under a tree'? Theabandoning of dwelling in a house.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'dwelling in a dewy place' ?The abandoning of dwelling in sheltered places.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'dwelling among the graves'? The abandoning of dwelling in other and in good places.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'any chanced upon place'? The abandoning of desire for pleasant places.

What is the meaning of the observance of 'always sitting and not lyingdown'? The abandoning of beds.

'DIRT-RAGS'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'dirt-rags'? Onesees the fault of asking householders for robes and the merit of 'dirt-rags' (and undertakes thus:) "I refuse the offerings of householders and observe (the austerity of) 'dirt-rags'".

What are the benefits of the observance of 'dirt-rags'? ('Dirt-rags') are just as useful as householders' robes1 and are enough. One does not depend on others. There is no fear of losing, and one is not attached. Thieves do not want 'dirt-rags'. ('Dirt-rags') are always sufficient for one's purpose.

I. Gahapatkivara, robes offered by householders.

In getting ('dirt-rags') one is not troubled and (this observance) will be an example to good folk. This observance is proper to those who are doubt-freeand virtuous. One lives happily in this life. (This observance) will causeone to be liked by the people, and cause them to practise rightly. These arethe benefits of the observance of 'dirt-rags' praised by the Buddha,1

O, How many kinds of 'dirt-rags' are there? Who observes?" Howdoes one fail?

A. There are two kinds of 'dirt-rags'. The first: 'dirt-rags' which areownerless, the second: 'dirt-rags' which are thrown away by people.

Those which one picks up in a cemetery, from a dirt-heap, in the street, or from the road-side and cuts, dyes, pieces together, sews to completion and uses, are called "'dirt-rags' which are ownerless". Remnants of cut-cloth, torn pieces of cattle-bitten, mouse-gnawed or burnt cloth and cloth thrownaway, cloth on corpses, and cast-off cloth of ascetics are called "'dirt-rags' which are thrown away by people".

What is the observance of 'dirt-rags'? When a bhikkhu refuses theofferings of householders, it is called the observance of 'dirt-rags'.

How does one fail? When a bhikkhu accepts the offerings of house-holders, it is called failing.

'THREE ROBES'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'three robes'?One immediately gives up one's extra robes. Knowing the fault of keeping(extra robes) and seeing the benefits of the observance of 'three robes', (oneundertakes thus:) "I refuse extra robes from today and observe (the austerityof) 'three robes'".

What are the benefits of the observance of 'three robes'? It is an obser-vance of good men. A bhikkhu gives up the hoarding of unnecessaries, lessens troubles and becomes modest. As a bird on wing that does not yearnfor what it leaves behind is filled with content, so is he. [405] One gets afollowing of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. What are 'three robes'? What is the observance? How does onefail?

A. Shoulder cloak,3 upper garment4 and waist-cloth.5 These are called'three robes'.

What is the observance of 'three robes'? When a bhikkhu does nothoard extra robes, it is called the observance of 'three robes'. When a bhikkhuaccepts a fourth robe, it is called failing.

- 1. A. Iir, 219: "Vannitam buddhehi' buddhasavakehf.
- 2. According to the explanation which follows, this should be "what is the observance of dirt-rags*?"

3. SanghSti. 4. Uttamsanga. 5. Antaravasaka.

'BEGGED FOOD'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'begged food"? If a bhikkhu accepts an invitation, he interrupts his activities and is notat ease. One sees these draw-backs and the merits of the observance of 'begged food' (and undertakes thus:) "I refuse invitations from today and observe (the austerity of 'begged food')".

What are the benefits of the observance of 'begged food'? One is freeto go or stay according to one's wishes. One does not need food to be prepared. One destroys rigidity and pride. One is not greedy of delicacies. One permits others to be benefitted and is never attached to any quarter. Onegets a following of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. How many kinds of invitations are there? What is the observance? How does one fail?

A. There are three kinds of invitations.

The first: (general) invitation, the second: invitation to visit, the third:repeated invitation.1

The non-acceptance of these three kinds of invitations is the observance of 'begged food'. If a bhikkhu accepts these three kinds of invitations, hefails in the observance of 'begged food'.

'REGULAR ALMS-ROUND'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'regular alms-round'? When a bhikkhu is able to obtain tasty food from any house by making a'regular alms-round', he does not go again (in that direction). If he goesagain, it is an ordinary alms-round. If there is a doubtful place he avoids it. One sees these faults (of going again etc.) and the benefits of the observanceof 'regular alms-round' (and undertakes thus:) "I abandon the irregular alms-round from today and observe (the austerity of) 'regular alms-round'".

What are the benefits of the observance of 'regular almsround'? Onethinks of benefitting ail beings equally, and destroys the fault of enjoyment. One is not pleased when invited, is not pleased with many words, and doesnot call on householders. One does not walk hurriedly. Rare as the moonat full, one appears and is appreciated and honoured. One gets a following of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. What is a 'regular alms-round'? What is the observance? Howdoes one fail?

A. When a bhikkhu enters a village for alms, he begs in regular orderfrom the last house backwards. This is called 'regular alms-round'.

How does one fail? Skipped begging — this is called failing.

1. Cp. Vis. Mag. 66. The Chinese is unclear.

'ONE-EATING'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'one-eating'? Eating in two places, eating frequently, taking food frequently, washing the bowl frequently — the opposite of these is 'one-eating'. This is an observance of good men. This observance is doubt-free. One sees the faults (of eating at two places etc.) and the merits of the observance of 'one-eating' (and under-takes thus:) 'T abandon eating at two places from today and observe (the austerity of) 'one-eating'".

What are the benefits of the observance of 'one-eating'? One takesneither more nor less. One is not greedy of improper offerings, is not troubledwith many ills, is untroubled as regards livelihood, and is happy. This is anobservance of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. What is the observance of 'one-eating'? What are the limits? 1 How does one fail?

A. There are three limits: sitting-limit, water-limit, food-limit.

What is 'sitting-limit'? After one ends eating one (cannot) sit again.

After a bhikkhu fetches water and washes his bowl, he cannot eat again. This is called 'water-limit'. What is 'food-limit'? After one thinks: "This lump of food is the last," he should not drink or eat any more. This is called 'food-limit'.

If a bhikkhu sits twice, except in taking liquid-medicine and such otherthings, he fails in the observance of 'one-eating'. This has been disapproved by the Buddhas. This is called 'food-limit'.

'MEASURED FOOD'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'measured food'? If a bhikkhu drinks and eats too much, he increases sleepiness, always hankers for much food, and sets no limit to his appetite. One sees these faults and the merits of the observance of 'measured food' (and undertakes thus:) "Fromtoday, I take food without greed, and observe (the austerity of) 'measured food'". This is called undertaking to observe (the austerity of) 'measured food'.

What are the benefits of the observance of 'measured food'? Onemeasures one's meal. One does not eat for belly's sake. One knows thattoo much eating induces fatigue and therefore one does not desire much, andcauses diseases to perish, and abandons rigidity. This is an observance of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. What is the observance of 'measured food'? How does one fail?1. Cp. Vis. Mag. 69.

A. When a bhikkhu receives drink and food, he considers the measureof his wants. He does not take too much food and knows well the (proper)quantity and does not exceed the limit. (This is) called the observance of 'measured food'. If he does otherwise, he fails.

'NO FOOD AFTER TIME'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'no food after time' ?One abandons expectation and avoids extra food. One knows these faults(expectation etc.) and sees the benefits of the observance of 'no food aftertime' (and undertakes thus:) "I abandon extra food from today and observe(the austerity of) 'no food after time'".

What are the benefits of the observance of 'no food after time'? Oneabandons greed, and experiences the joy of selfrestraint. One protects thebody, and avoids taking food in advance, does not hanker, does not ask othersfor things, does not follow his inclinations. This is an observance of goodmen. This observance is doubt-free.

0. How many kinds of '(no food) after time' are there? What is the observance? How does one fail?

A. There are two kinds of '(no food) after time': immoderate limit, accepting limit.

What is 'immoderate limit'? If a bhikkhu accepts extra food, his offence (equal to) that of one who accepts food offered to a particular person orpersons. He should not eat again. What is 'accepting limit'? A bhikkhushould not accept after he has eaten twenty-one handfuls. Tf he observes 'nofood after time', he abandons extra food. If he accepts extra food he fails in the observance of 'no food after time'.

'DWELLING IN A PEACEFUL PLACE'

How does one undertake (the austerity of) 'dwelling in a peaceful place'? When the village is crowded, one's mind is touched by the five objects of senseand saturated with the desire for pleasure. When one dwells in a crowdedplace, one is disturbed by people going and coming. One sees these faultsand the merits of the observance of 'dwelling in a peaceful place' (and under-takes thus:) "I abandon dwelling in the village from today and observe (theausterity of) 'dwelling in a peaceful place'".

What are the merits of 'peaceful place'? Even when the village is crowded, one's mind is not touched by the five objects of sense and is kept away fromattachment. If one dwells in a crowded place, one is disturbed by the goingand coming of many: One knows the excellence of the ten kinds of words praised by gods and men. One does not wish to become worldly, and wishesto gain tranquillity. One dwells in solitude, speaks little and meditates, according to one's bent of mind. This is an observance of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. What is the nearest distance of 'dwelling in a peaceful place' ?What is the observance? How does one fail?

A. One dwells outside (the village) keeping some distance from thewalls and avoiding the far end of the suburb. The nearest distance of 'dwellingin a peaceful place' is five-hundred bow-lengths.1 One bow-length is fourcubits of an average man. Avoidance of dwelling in a village is called'dwelling in a peaceful place'. If bhikkhu dwells in a village, he fails in theobservance of 'dwelling in a peaceful place'.

'DWELLING UNDER A TREE'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'dwelling under atree'? One avoids roofed places. One does not keep animals. One doesnot build or long for (roofed places). One does not search (for roofed places). One sees the faults (of dwelling in roofed places) and the merits of the observanceof '(dwelling) under a tree' (and undertakes thus:) "I abandon roofed placesfrom-today and observe (the austerity of) 'dwelling under a tree'. Thus one undertakes to observe.

What are the benefits of '(dwelling) under a tree'? One relies on theplace one likes, one does not hold intercourse with the world, one is pleasedbecause one is free from all work, one dwells with the gods, cuts downresentment due to residence, and is free from attachment. This is an obser-vance of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

Q. Under what trees should a bhikkhu dwell? What trees should heavoid? What is the observance? How does one fail?

A, The place on which shadows of trees fall during the day and theplace where leaves of trees fall when there is no wind are the places to dwellin. One avoids dangerous decayed trees, rotten trees with hollows and treeshaunted by evil spirits. One avoids roofed places. This is the observanceof 'dwelling under a tree'. If a bhikkhu goes to (live in) a roofed place, hefails in the observance of 'dwelling under a tree'.

'DWELLING IN A DEWY PLACE'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'dwelling in a dewyplace'? One does not desire to dwell in roofed places, under trees, and inplaces where animals and goods are kept. One sees the faults of these, and the benefits of 'dwelling in a dewy place' (and undertakes thus:) "I avoidunpleasant places from today and observe (the austerity of) 'dwelling in adewy place'.

1. Vin. IV, 183: Arannakaih senasanmh panca-dhamisatlkam pacchimam.

What are the benefits of 'dwelling in a dewy place'? One does not goto unpleasant places and abandons negligence and torpor. One goes whither-soever one wills, like a forest-deer and is not attached to any particular place. 1 This is an observance of good men. This observance is doubt-free.

What is the observance? How does one fail? One avoids roofed placesand the shelter of trees. This is the observance of 'dwelling in a dewy place'. If one dwells in roofed places and under the shelter of trees, one fails in the observance of 'dwelling in a dewy place'.

'DWELLING AMONG THE GRAVES'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'dwelling amongthe graves'? One who dwells in other places becomes careless and does not fear wrongdoing. One sees these faults and the merits of 'dwelling amongthe graves' (and undertakes thus:) "I avoid other places from today and observe (the austerity of) 'dwelling among the graves' ".- This is the under-taking to observe.

What are the merits of the observance of '(dwelling) among the graves' ?One understands the feeling of the time of death. One perceives that all isimpure. One acquires the homage of non-humans. One does not causeheedlessness to arise, overcomes passion and is much detached, One doesnot fear what common folk dread. One contemplates on the emptiness ofthe body and is able to reject the thought of permanence. This is an obser-vance of good men. This observance is doubtfree.

Q. (What are the merits of 'dwelling among the graves'?). Whereshould one dwell? What is the observance? How does one fail?

A. If in a place of graves there is always weeping and wailing and smokeand fire, one should consider, find out a calm place, and go to dwell there.

If a bhikkhu dwells 'among the graves', he should not build a hut ormake a comfortable bed. He should sit with his back to the wind. He shouldnot sit facing the wind. He should not fall into deep sleep. He should noteat fish. He should not drink milk or buttermilk or eat sesamum or flesh ofanimals [406]. He should not dwell in a house or use a platter. When aperson taking his mat and robes leaves (the monastery) and goes to dwell'among the graves', he, as it were, flings all his belongings afar. At dawn,he takes mat and robes and returns to the monastery2 and avoids other dwelling-places. If he dwells in any other place, he breaks or fails in the observance of 'dwelling among the graves'.

- 1. Sn. 39: Migo araftnamhi yathd abandho yerC icchakarh gacchati gocardya,
- 2, Sanghdrdma (transliteration).

'ANY CHANCED UPON PLACE'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'any chanced uponplace'? One does not like the place which men want greedily. One is nottroubled when others wish him to leave any place. One sees these faults(greed for place etc.) and the merits of the observance of 'any chanced uponplace', (and undertakes thus:) "I abandon the greed for residence and observe(the austerity of) 'any chanced upon place'". This is the undertaking toobserve.

What are the benefits of 'any chanced upon place'? One dwells satisfied with any place, longs for tranquillity, abandons various comforts, is honoured by others, dwells with heart of compassion. This is an observance of goodmen. This observance is doubt-free.

What is the observance? How does one fail?

To abandon the longing which is dependent on dwelling—this is calleddependence on 'any chanced upon place'. If a bhikkhu goes to dwell in apleasant place, it is called failing.

'ALWAYS SITTING AND NOT LYING DOWN'

How does one undertake to observe (the austerity of) 'always sitting andnot lying down'? One sees the faults of sleeping and idling in the dwelling-place and the benefits of 'always sitting and not lying down' (and undertakesthus:), "I abandon sleeping and lying down from today and observe (theausterity of) 'always sitting and not lying down'". This is the undertakingto observe.

What are the benefits of 'always sitting and not lying down'? One avoids the place where idleness arises. One removes resentment produced on account of one's body, and is freed from the pleasures which taint the organ of touch. One diminishes the enshrouding torpor. One is always tranquil and becomes fit for the practice of excellent concentration. This is an observance of goodmen. This observance is doubt-free.

What is the observance? How does one fail?

(Its observance is in) the abandoning of sleep and not lying down. Ifone lies down, it is called failing.

EXPEDIENCE IN THE OBSERVANCE OF THE AUSTERITIES

What are not 'dirt-rags'? They are hemp, cotton, silk and woollenrobes1 and others2 offered by house-holders. If a bhikkhu accepts these forexpedience' sake, he does not fail in the observance of 'dirt-rags'.

- 1. Khoma, kappdsa, koseyya, kambala—all transliterations.
- 2. According to the Chinese "Samantapdsddikd" these are sdna and bhanga^ two varieties of hemp.

What are (not) 'three-robes'? Extra robes stored for more than tendays; kathina robes and those other extra robes used as bedding-holders,bed-spreads,1 cloth for skin-ailments and the like,2 napkins,3 rain-bath cloth,4should not be kept if they are not spotless gifts. If a bhikkhu uses these forexpedience' sake, he does not fail in the observance of 'three robes'.

What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'begged-food'? To partake of food given to the Order as a whole,5 of assured food,6of ticket food,7 of food offered on lunar fortnights,8 of food offered on asacred day,9 of food offered to the many10 and of food given in honour of amonastery,11 for expedience' sake is not to fail in the observance of 'beggedfood'. If one sees faults, one should reject such food.

What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'regularalms-round'? If a bhikkhu on seeing elephants or horses fighting or in rut, at the gate, avoids them, or on seeing an outcast12 covers his bowl, or goesbehind his preceptor, teacher or a visiting bhikkhu, and thus commits certainfaults for expedience' sake, he does not fail in 'regular alms-round'.

What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'one-eating'? If in the course of taking a meal at the proper time, one sees elephants, horses, cattle or snakes, or if it rains, or if one sees one's preceptor 13 orteacher, 14 or a visiting bhikkhu, and stands up for expedience' sake, and afterthat resumes one's meal, one does not fail in the observance of 'one-eating'.

In 'measured food' and 'no food after time', there is nothing by way ofexpedience.

What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'dwellingin a peaceful place'? If one goes to the village for causing people to undertakethe precepts, confession of faults, hearing the Law, the service of the sacredday,15 the service of the termination of the rainy season residence,16 sickness,nursing the sick, inquiries regarding doubts on the discourses, and the like,it is not failing in the observance of 'dwelling in a peaceful place'.

What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'dwellingunder a tree'? If a bhikkhu, because of rain, goes to a roofed place and returns when it is bright, he does not fail in the observance of 'dwelling under a tree'.

Expedience in the observance of 'dwelling in a dewy place', 'dwellingamongst the graves', and 'any chanced upon place' is also like this. A bhikkhumay dwell elsewhere.

There is nothing by way of expedience regarding 'always sitting and notlying down'. Yet there is a tradition as regards the expediency of pouring(medicine) into the nose. By this one does not fail in 'always sitting and notlying down'.

On Austerities 37

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

And again one fulfils eight teachings through these thirteen austerities. In the Abhidhamma these eight are taught: "'Measured food' and 'one-eating' are involved in 'no food after time'. 'Dwelling under a tree', 'dwellingin a dewy place', 'dwelling among the graves' are involved in 'dwelling in apeaceful place', because, if one gathers funds for building a house, or if onelikes to (do remunerative) work, keeps animals or is attached to 'dwelling in apeaceful place', one's mind is not at ease. Thus thinking one dwells in peace'under a tree', 'among the graves' or 'in a dewy place'". Thus the eight arefulfilled.

By these eight austerities three teachings are fulfilled: the first: 'dwellingin a peaceful place', the second: 'dirt-rags', the third: 'begged food'. If these three are pure, the austerities are fulfilled. Therefore the Buddha taught the Venerable Elder Nanda thus: "Always you should observe 'dwelling in apeaceful place', 'dirt-rags' and 'begged food'. You should not nurse yourbody and life. You should not see the objects of lust."1

Q. Who is called observer of the austerity-factors ?2 How many kindsof teachings are there regarding austerities ? Which of three persons observe austerities? How many seasons are there for the observance of austerities? Who is an observer and teacher of the austerities?

A. There are thirteen austerities taught by the Buddha. These are precepts of the Buddha. These are called austerity-factors. Here the skilful,unskilful and the non-characterizable3 should not be taught, because the unskil-ful man is full of lust. He does not remove lust. He lives in wickedness. He is greedy of worldly advantages. Therefore, unskill is (not) austerity.

How many kinds of teachings are there? There are two teachings of austerities: non-greed and non-delusion. The Buddha has said, "If a bhikkhuwho observes (the austerity of) 'dirt-rags' is endowed with paucity of wishes, is contented with little, enjoys tranquillity, is doubt-free and relies on freedom, then he is called one who observes (the austerity of) 'dirt-rags'". 4 The otherausterities are all greedless and delusion-free. By means of this greedlessness, a bhikkhu removes ignorance in thirteen places. And again by this greedlessness which the Buddha made possible (a bhikkhu) arouses in his mindaversion, and being free from doubt, reasonably removes the stain of lust andcrookedness. By this freedom from delusion, he removes weariness of theflesh and crookedness. These are the two teachings of austerities. These are greedlessness and freedom from delusion.

1. S.II, 281: Evam kho te Nanda yam tvam arannako ca assasi pindapdtiko ca pamsu-

'Which of the three persons observe the austerities'? The man of greedand the man of delusion observe the austerities. The man of hate cannot observe the austerities. The man of greed and the man of delusion can observe the austerities. The man of greed accomplishes heedfulness through attachment. If he becomes heedless, he overcomes greed. Delusion is non-doubting. Bymeans of the austerities a bhikkhu can fulfil heedfulness. If he is heedful, he can overcome delusion well. That is why the man of greed and the man ofdelusion observe the austerities.

Heedless men suffer and do evil. A heedless man should not observe(because if he does, he will increase his sufferings), just as a person afflictedwith a disease of phlegm worsens on taking hot drinks.

And again there is a tradition. A heedless man should dwell 'in a peacefulplace' or 'under a tree'. Why should he dwell 'in a peaceful place'? Becausethere are no worldly troubles there.

How many seasons are there for the observance of austerities? Eightmonths are the period for three austerities, namely, 'dwelling under a tree', 'dwelling in a dewy place' and 'dwelling among the graves'. The Buddha haspermitted dwelling in roofed places in the rainy season.1

Q. 'Who is an observer and teacher of the austerities'?

A. There is one who is an observer and teacher of the austerities. There is one who is an observer but not a teacher of austerities. There is one who isnot an observer but only a teacher of austerities, and there is one who is neither no observer nor a teacher of austerities.

Who is 'an observer and teacher of austerities'? The Consummate Onewho has fulfilled the observance of the austerities.

Who is 'an observer but not a teacher of austerities'? The ConsummateOne who has not fulfilled the observance of the austerities.

Who is 'not an observer but only a teacher of austerities'? The learner or the commoner who has fulfilled the observance of the austerities.

Who is 'neither an observer nor a teacher of austerities'? The learner or the commoner who has not fulfilled the observance of the austerities.

Q. What is the salient characteristic, function and manifestation of theausterities?

A. Paucity of wishes is the salient characteristic. Contentment is the function. Non-doubting is the manifestation.

And again non-attachment is the salient characteristic. Moderation is the function. Non-retrogression is the manifestation.

What are the initial, medial and final stages of the austerities? The under-taking to observe is the initial stage. Practice is the medial stage and re-joicing is the final stage.

ON DISTINGUISHING CONCENTRATION

CHAPTER THE FOURTH

Q. Now, what should the yogin who dwells in pure virtue do, when hehas already observed the austerities and has reached an excellent station?

A, Let him bring out concentration.

Q. What is concentration? What is its salient characteristic? What isits function? What is its manifestation? What is its near cause? Whoobserves it? What differences are there between meditation, freedom, con-centration and right observance? How many are the causes which produceconcentration? How many states are obstacles to progress in concentration? How many benefits of concentration are there? What are the requisites of concentration? How many kinds of concentration are there? What is thebringing out of concentration?

MEANING OF CONCENTRATION

A. Concentration means that one has purity of mind, endeavours stead-fastly, dwells with the truth having the benefit of tranquillity and is not distracted. This is called concentration.

And again, it means not allowing one's mind to be bent by the strongwind of passion. It is comparable to the unflickering flame of the lampbehind the palace.

It is said in the Abhidhamma thus: "What fixes the mind aright, causes it to be not dependent on any, causes it to be unmoved, undisturbed, tranquillized and non-attached, and rightens the faculty of concentration and the power of concentration [407] is called concentration."1

SALIENT CHARACTERISTIC ETC.

What are its salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause? Dwelling of mind is its salient characteristic; overcoming of hatredis its function; tranquillity is its manifestation; non-association with defilementand the mind obtaining freedom are its near cause.

Who observes concentration? Namely, he who maintains the mindand the mental properties in a state of equilibrium. It is like the hand whichholds a pair of scales evenly.

The even practice of mindfulness and energy is concentration. It is comparable to the evenness of oil in an oiled bowl. Equilibrated thought,

1. In his Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, p. 26, Prof. Dr. P. V. Bapat has traced thispassage to Vbh. 217: Yd cittassa thiti santhiti avatthiti avisaharo avikkhepo avisahata-mdnasatd samatho samddhindriyam samddhibalam sammdsamddhi: ay am vuccati samddhi.

like the equalized energy of four horses of a chariot, is concentration. It islike the attentiveness of a fletcher scrutinizing the straightness of a shaft. It is like a drug which counteracts poison, because it removes resentment. It is said in the Abhidhamma thus: "* is the meaning of concentration." This explanation of concentration is comprehensive.

'Meditation' means the four meditations, namely, the first meditationand others.

'Freedom' means the eight kinds of freedom, namely, one having internal perception of form reflects on external form and so on.1

- 'Concentration' means the three kinds of concentration, namely, initialand sustained application of thought and others.
- 'Right observance' means the right observance of the nine gradually ascending states.2

'What is 'meditation'? It is to contemplate on reality, to remove resent-ment, to make the mind happy, to discard the hindrances, to gain freedom,to equalize, to arouse concentration skilfully, to acquire liberation, to dwellin right observance, to wish to arouse concentration and to aspire to possessfreedom.

BENEFITS PRODUCED BY CONCENTRATION

How many benefits can concentration produce? There are four benefitswhich concentration can produce. What are the four? Pleasant dwellingin the happiness of truth in the present life; enjoyment of all objects throughinvestigation; acquisition of worldly knowledge; the attainment of perfection.

What is 'pleasant dwelling in the happiness of truth in the present life' ?Namely, one acquires concentration and is freed from corruption. One'smind arouses joy, partakes of the joy of the supramundane and dwells pleasantlyin the happiness of truth in the present life. Therefore, has the Blessed Onesaid: "He produces joy from quietude, acquires coolness and becomesperfect gradually." And again, the Buddha declared to the bhikkhus: "At Rupi rupani passati etc. In the Abhidharma Sangiti Paryaya Pada Sastra, the following account of the eight deliverancesor kinds of freedom is given:- "Having (or with) form one reflects on form; not having internal perception of form, one reflects on external form; attaining to and realizing the emancipation of purity through one's body, one dwells; transcending all perceptions of form, destroying all perceptions of sense-reactions, becoming heedless of perceptions of diversity, one enters limitless space, and, attaining to the sphere of the infinity of space, dwells; entirely transcending the sphere of the infinity of space, one enters limit-less consciousness, and, attaining to the sphere of the infinity of consciousness, dwells; entirely transcending, the sphere of the infinity of consciousness, one enters nothingnessand. attaining to the sphere of nothingness, dwells; entirely transcending the sphere ofnothingness, one enters the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception and, attaining to it, dwells; and entirely transcending the sphere of neither perception nornon-perception, one enters the state of the dissolution of perception and sensationand, attaining to and realizing it through the body, dwells".

first I was a naked ascetic; I did not move my body or open my mouth forseven days and seven nights; I sat in silence enwrapped in bliss."1 This isthe meaning, in the Noble Teaching, of 'pleasant dwelling in the happinessof truth in the present life'.

'Enjoyment of all objects through investigation' means that a yoginacquires concentration and is not hindered by objects. Being pliant of mind,he is able to concentrate. He investigates the aggregations, the sense-spheres,the elements and others. He is well-disposed. Therefore, the Blessed Onetaught the bhikkhus thus: 'Thus should you train yourselves. Everythingdepends on mind. Know this as it is."2

'Acquisition of worldly knowledge' means that one having acquiredconcentration, develops the five faculties of knowledge, namely, psychic power, divine ear, knowledge of others' thoughts, recollection of past existences, and the divine eye. Therefore, the Blessed One has declared: "With concentrated mind one is able to change one's body at will. Thus one produces psychic power in the various modes." 3

'The attainment of perfection' means that one having a concentratedmind, although one has yet to reach the stage of the learning-ender, maynot fall back at all. One gains (a good) reward through concentration. Oneattains to 'the form', 'the formless' and to perfection. The Buddha hasdeclared: "Those who practise a little of the first meditation ate able to jointhe retinue of Brahma. All such are born in such a world." 4 These fourbenefits can be produced by concentration. Each of them causes to arouse.

OBSTACLES TO CONCENTRATION

How many states are obstacles to progress in concentration? Namely,eight states: lust, hatred, indolence, rigidity, agitation, uncertainty, delusion, absence of joy and bliss. All other evil demeritorious states are obstacles.

CAUSES OF CONCENTRATION

How many causes of concentration are there? Namely, eight states are causes: renunciation, non-hatred, brightness, non-disturbedness, allskilful states, sustained application of thought, gladness, and those states that arouse knowledge of the truth. These are causes of concentration.

- 1. Cp. Ud. 3.
- 2. Cp. Dh. 1: Manopubbangama dhammd.

ca vittim dpajjati, tattha thito tad-adhimutto tabbahulavihari aparihino kalarii kurumdnoBrahma-kayikanarii devdnam sahavyatam uppajjati.

REQUISITES OF CONCENTRATION

What are the requisites of concentration? There are seven, namely:virtue, contentment, shielding of the faculties, moderation in drink and food,not sleeping in the first, middle and last watches of the night, the being intenton wisdom and a calm and quiet dwelling-place.

TWO KINDS OF CONCENTRATION

How many kinds of concentration are there?

There are two kinds of concentration. The first is mundane concentration; the second is supramundane concentration. The acquisition of the NobleFruit is called 'supramundane concentration'; the others are named 'mundane'. Mundane concentration is accompanied by corruption, is connected withthe fetters and is bound. This is the flood. This is the bond. This is hind-rance. This is the corruption of virtue and views. This is clinging. This isdefilement. Such are the qualities of 'mundane concentration'. The oppositeof this is named 'supramundane concentration'.

And again, there are two kinds in concentration: wrong concentration1and Right Concentration. What is wrong concentration? Unskilful unifi-cation of mind is called 'wrong concentration'. Skilful unification of mindis called 'Right Concentration'. Wrong concentration should be abandoned. Right concentration should be practised.

And again, there are two kinds of concentration: access concentrationand fixed concentration. The antecedent portion — this is called 'accessconcentration'. Suppression of the hindrances — this is called 'fixed concentration'.

THREE KINDS OF CONCENTRATION

And again, there are three kinds: concentration with initial and sustained application of thought; without initial and only with sustained application of thought; with neither initial nor sustained application of thought.2

What is 'with initial and sustained application of thought'? The firstmeditation is 'with initial and sustained application of thought'. In thesecond meditation there is no initial application of thought, but there is sustained application of thought. In the other meditations there is 'neither initial norsustained application of thought'.

And again, there are three kinds of concentration. Namely, the concentration that is produced together with joy; the concentration that is produced

- 1. Micchdsamddhi.
- 2. D.IJI, 219: Tayo samddhi. Savitakko savicdro samddhi, avitakko vicdramatto samddhi, avitakko avicdro samddhi.

together with bliss; the concentration that is produced together with indiffe-rence. The first and the second meditations (jhdnas) are 'produced togetherwith joy', the third is 'produced together with bliss' and the fourth meditation(jhdna) is 'produced together with equanimity'.

And again, there are three kinds of concentration: skilful concentration; skilful result (producing) concentration; real concentration.

What is 'skilful concentration'? The concentration pertaining to the formand the formless practised by the learner of the Noble Path and the commoneris called 'skilful concentration'. The concentration of the learner who isestablished in the Noble Fruit (in the spheres of form and the formless) and of the commoner who is reborn in the spheres of the form and the formless iscalled 'result producing concentration'. The concentration of the formand the formless practised by the learning-ender is called 'real concentration'.

FOUR KINDS OF CONCENTRATION

And again, there are four kinds of concentration: the sense plane concentration;1 the form plane concentration;2 the formless plane concentration;3unincluded concentration.4

The putting away of each of the five hindrances by its opposite and themaintaining of it is called 'the sense plane concentration'; the four meditations are called 'the form plane concentration'; the four formless plane meditations and the result of good action (?) are called 'the formless plane concentration'. The concentration of the four Paths and the four Fruits is called 'unincluded concentration'.

And again, there are four practices in concentration: painful practice(of a man of) slow wit; painful practice (of a man of) quick wit; pleasant practice (of a man of) quick wit; pleasant practice (of a man of) slow wit.5(Here) the first of these four kinds of men has dense passion, and the second, rare passion; the third has keen faculties, and the fourth, dull faculties.

To a man of dense passion and dull faculties practice is 'painful'; hegains concentration with 'slow wit'.

To a man of dense passion and keen faculties practice is 'painful', thoughhe gains concentration with 'quick wit'.

To a man of rare passion and dull faculties practice is 'pleasant', thoughhe gains concentration with 'slow wit'.

To a man of rare passion and keen faculties practice is 'pleasant'; hegains concentration with 'quick wit'.

- 1. Kdmdvacara samddhi. Lit., 'That that' practice and 'true keeping'. The rendering istentative.
- 2. Rupdvacara samddhi. 3. Arupdvacaia samddhi. 4. Apariydpanna samddhi. 5. A.II, 149: Dukkhdpatipadd dandhdbhifind, dukkhdpatipadd khippdbhifind, sukhdpatipadd dandhdbhihfid, sukhdpatipadd khippdbhihM.

Because of the density of passion, a densely passionate man overcomespassion with difficulty. Therefore, his practice is painful.

Because of the dullness of faculties, a man of dull faculties has to practisemeditation assiduously for a long time and wake up his sluggish wit. Therefore,he is called (a man of) dull faculties

In this way the others also should be understood.

And again, there are four kinds in concentration, namely, restricted concentration with restricted object; restricted concentration with immeasurableobject; immeasurable concentration with restricted object; immeasurable concentration with immeasurable object. 1 What is 'restricted concentrationwith restricted object'? The concentration that is not able to keep pace withthe mind and an object2 that is weak — these are called 'restricted concentration with restricted object'. What is 'restricted concentration with immeasurable object'? The concentration that is not able to keep pace with the mind and anobject that is powerful—these are called 'restricted concentration with immeasu-rable object'. What is 'immeasurable concentration with restricted object'? The concentration capable of keeping pace with the mind and an object that is weak — these are called 'immeasurable concentration with restricted object'. What is 'immeasurable concentration with immeasurable object'? The con-centration that is capable of keeping pace with the mind and an object that ispowerful—these are called 'immeasurable concentration with immeasurableobject'.

And again, there are four kinds in concentration: will-concentration; effort-concentration; mind-concentration; scrutiny-concentration.3

4Will-concentration' is attained by means of the will; 'effort-concentration' is attained by means of effort; what is attained by means of the mind is 'mind-concentration'; what is attained by means of scrutiny is 'scrutiny-concentration'.

And again, there are four kinds in concentration: the concentration towhich the Enlightened One attains but not the hearer; the concentration towhich the hearer attains but not the Enlightened One; the concentration towhich both the Enlightened One and the hearer attain; the concentration towhich neither the Enlightened One nor the hearer attains.

The concentration of great commiseration4 and the concentration of thetwin-miracle5 are attainments of the Enlightened One and not of the hearer. The fruition concentration of the learner6 is an attainment of the hearer and of the Enlightened One. The concentration of the nine gradually ascending tates and the fruition concentration of the learning-ender are attainments of both the Enlightened One and the hearer. And the concentration of incon-science1 is an attainment neither of the Enlightened One nor the hearer.

- 4. Yamakapdtihdriya. 6. Sek hiya-phala-samddhi.

And again, there are four kinds in concentration: the concentration that is a cause of origination and not of cessation; of cessation and not of origination; of both origination and cessation; of neither origination nor cessation.

Q. What are causes of 'origination and not of cessation'? Skilful andunskilful concentration of the sense plane are causes of 'origination and not ofcessation'. The concentration of the fourfold Noble Path causes cessationand not origination. Skilful concentration of the learner and the commonerpertaining to the form plane and the formless plane cause 'origination andcessation'. [408] The concentration of the Noble Fruit and object concentration cause 'neither origination nor cessation'.

And again, there are four kinds in concentration: the first meditation; thesecond meditation; the third meditation; the fourth meditation.

Freedom from the five hindrances, the fulfilment of initial and sustained application of thought, joy, ease and unification of mind are called 'the first meditation'.

Freedom from initial and sustained application of thought and the ful-filment of the other three (are called 'the second meditation').

Freedom from joy and the fulfilment of the other two (are called 'thethird meditation').

Freedom from ease and the fulfilment of equanimity and unification ofmind are called the fourth meditation.

FIVE KINDS OF CONCENTRATION

And again, there are five kinds in concentration, namely the first meditation; the second meditation; the third meditation; the fourth meditation; the fifthmeditation. This fivefold (classification of) meditation is based on the fivefactors of meditation, namely, initial application of thought, sustained application of thought, joy, bliss, unification of mind.

The separation from the five hindrances and the fulfilment of the fivefactors are called 'the first meditation'. The separation from initial application of thought and the fulfilment of the other four factors are called 'the second meditation'.

The separation from initial and sustained application of thought and thefulfilment of the other three factors are called 'the third meditation'.

The separation from (initial and sustained application of thought, joy) and the fulfilment of the other two factors are called 'the fourth meditation'.

1, The concentration that causes rebirth among the unconscious gods (asanna samapatti).

46 Vimuttimagga

The separation from (initial and sustained application of thought, joy,)bliss and the fulfilment of two factors are called 'the fifth meditation. (The twofactors are) equanimity and unification of mind.

WHY FOUR AND FIVE MEDITATIONS ARE TAUGHT

Q. Why are four and five meditations taught?

A. Because the result depends on two sorts of men. In the secondmeditation there are two divisions: without initial and sustained application of thought, and without initial and only with sustained application of thought.

Q. How does a yogin induce the second meditation from the first?

A. He considers the coarseness of initial and sustained application ofthought, knows the disadvantages of initial and sustained application of thought, and induces the second meditation which is free from initial and sustained application of thought. This is the way of progress in the four meditations.

And again, there is another man. He is able to induce freely the secondmeditation out of the first meditation. He considers the coarseness of initial application of thought and knows the disadvantages of initial application ofthought. He discerns the state of being free from initial application of thought. Possessing restricted sustained application of thought, he induces the secondmeditation. This is the way of progress in the five meditations. Therefore, the five meditations are. taught.

And again, there are five kinds in concentration, namely, complete fixedmeditation in the five factors: joyfulness, blissfulness, mindfulness, luminous-ness and the perception of steadily moving thought. Here 'joyfulness' is in thefirst and the second meditations. 'Blissfulness' is in the third meditation. 'Mindfulness' is in the knowledge of others* thoughts. 'Luminousness' is inthe knowledge of the divine eye. The knowledge of steadily moving thoughtis born of reflection1 concentration. This is called 'the perception of steadilymoving thought'.

And again there are five kinds in concentration, namely, Right Concen-tration connected with the fivefold knowledge. These are consequences of present bliss and the bliss to be. These arise depending on the knowledge of the body.

- (1) This concentration is practised by the Noble Ones and is passion-free.
- (2) This concentration is practised by wise men.
- (3) This is the excellent bliss of solitude and the attainment of tranquillity. Although this accomplishes the unique, yet it does not overcome birth anddeath.
- 1. Lit. "That that knowledge".

On Distinguishing Concentration 47

- (4) This concentration is most pleasant and peaceful. This becomesone endowed with tranquillity. This does not overcome the (belief in) self(which is the cause) of birth and death.
- (5) This concentration moves in mindfulness and is a cause of mindfulness. These arise owing to knowledge of the body.

And now, (the acceptance of) objects of meditation, what is connected withthe requisites, and the inferior, the middling and the superior have been dis-tinguished. Thus there are many divisions of concentration.

(Further), it should be known that all concentration may be classified under the four meditations.1

ON APPROACHING A GOOD FRIEND

CHAPTER THE FIFTH

Q. Then how is concentration brought out?

A. If a man wishes to bring out concentration, he, at first, should approach pre-eminent friend. Why? If, at first, when a yogin wishes to accomplishexcellent concentration, he dwells apart from a good friend, he will not acquiresteadfastness. In a Discourse it is said: "Meghiya bhikkhu partakes ofdeterioration."1 It is comparable to a man who sets out alone on a distantjourney. None guides him. When a man sets out alone, he is like an elephantthat is not guided by the goad. If, when a yogin practises, he listens to the discourses and instructions of a good friend, he is able to remove his manydifficulties and get into the right method and practice. If he strenuouslyendeavours and strictly trains himself, then he is able to acquire excellentconcentration.

QUALITIES OF A GOOD FRIEND

A good friend who may be likened to a wealthy chief of merchants honouredby all, to a kind good-hearted person, to a dearly loved parent, steadies one, as the chain the elephant. A good friend on whom one relies and accomplishes all meritoriousactivities is like a mahout who causes (the elephant) to go backwards andforwards, is like a good road on which a man can take a yoke of oxen, like a physician who cures diseases and removes pain, like the rain from heavenwhich moistens everything, like a mother who nurses her child, like a fatherwho guides his son, like parents who ward their children from perils andlike a teacher who instructs (his pupils). Therefore, the Blessed One declared

The following is a more or less free rendering of the relativepassage from the Chinese Chu Agon (Madhyama Agama) No. 5, Fascicle X, SutraNo. 56: "Thus have I heard. At one time, when the Enlightened One was wanderingin the land of Magadha, he arrived at Jantugama, and his sole attendant was the VenerableElder Meghiya.

And in the morning, the Venerable Elder Meghiya taking bowl and robe went tothe village of Jantugama for alms. And after completing his alms-round, he wendedhis way to the bank of the river Kimilala. The land there was level meadow, andit was known as the Grove of Sweet Mango. Beside it ran the excellent waters of Kimi-lala, sparklingly clear. Seeing the pleasant place, the Venerable Elder Meghiya wasdelighted and thought: 'The land here is level meadow and is known as the Groveof Sweet Mango. Beside it runs the excellent waters of Kimilala, sparklingly clear. Meet is this spot for a clansman for the exercise of energy'.

And having finished his meal, put aside his bowl and robe, washed his hands andfeet, he, with one shoulder bared, went to the presence of the Enlightened One, bowedat the Enlightened One's feet, and sat on one side. And being seated he spoke thus: "Venerable Sir, in the morning, having taken bowl and robe, I went to the village of Jantugama for alms and T thought: 'The land here is level meadow and to (A)nanda: "Good companionship is the whole of the holy life."1 Therefore, one should search for the pre-eminently good man and make him the goodfriend.

What is meant by pre-eminent good friend? (Here), the fulfilment ofacquisition is the meaning (of 'pre-eminent'). The understanding of the Sutta, Abhidhamma and Vinaya is called 'fulfilment of acquisition'.

One understands the seed (?) of kamma and is endowed with beneficientworldly knowledge. One knows the Four Noble Truths.

These two kinds of men are merit-fulfillers. They should be searched for.

If these two kinds of merit-fulfillers cannot be found, the fulfiller of sevenqualities should be considered as a good friend. Such (a man) should also be searched for.

What are the seven qualities?2 Loveableness, esteem ableness, venerable-ness, the ability to counsel well, patience (in listening), the ability to deliverdeep discourses and the not applying oneself to useless ends.

What is 'lovableness'? Led by two kinds of practice, a man preacheswell: dwelling together happily, having come to a mutual understandingand not abusing one another.

sparklingly clear. Meet is this spot for a clansman for the exercise of energy'. How, Venerable Sir, if I should go to that calm place in the Grove of Sweet Mango and exerciseenergy?" ... ":.. ~;..,i z' -•

Then the Blessed One said: 'Meghiya, there is no one except you here. Stayawhile until another bhikkhu comes to wait on me. Then you may go to that calmplace in the Grove of Sweet Mango to exercise energy'. ...

A second and a third time the Venerable Elder Meghiya requested permissionand for a second and third time did the Blessed One refuse it.

Then the Venerable Elder Meghiya said: 'Venerable Sir, the Blessed One hasnothing more to do. The Blessed One need not exert energy any longer. But I,Venerable Sir, have much to do yet. Therefore, Venerable Sir, I wish to enter thatcalm place in the Grove of Sweet Mango and exercise energy'.

Then the Blessed One said: 'Meghiya, if you wish to exert yourself, I do not stopyou. Go Meghiya and do as you please'.

The Venerable Elder Meghiya hearing the words of the Enlightened One and accept-ing them, bowed at the Enlightened One's feet, walked round Him three times anddeparted. Arriving at the Grove of Sweet Mango, he went to the foot of a tree, prepared a seat and sat down.

And when he was thus seated in the forest, three demeritorious states of mind arosein him. namely, discursive thoughts connected with lust, discursive thoughts connected with hate and discursive thoughts connected with harming. Then the Venerable ElderMeghiya thought of the Blessed One, arose from his seat and forthwith returned to thepresence of the Blessed One (and told the Blessed One everything) and the Blessed Onesaid: 'Your mind is not yet ripe for deliverance. If you wish to cause it to ripen, you should train yourself in the five trainings. What are the five? Meghiya, a bhikkhuis a good friend and he should be in the company of a good friend, he should closely associate with a good friend.

'Msghiya, if your mind is not ripe for deliverance, and if you wish to cause it toripen, this is the first training '

- 'Esteemableness' means that one is tranquillized through the action of virtue, fulfils the protection of mindfulness, is not over-desirous and doesnot speak much. This is called 'esteemableness'.
- 'Venerableness' means that one is endowed with the merit of much learningand appreciates well the value of meditation. This is 'venerableness'.
- 'The ability to counsel well' means that one considers thus: "Let myspeech be lovable, esteemable, venerable and fruitful", and benefits othersand esteems the truth. Therefore, one restrains oneself from things thatought not to be done. Thus one observes to the end and does not forsake. This is called 'the ability to counsel well'.
- 'Patience (in listening)' means that one is like a saint, understands well, never hesitates in one's speech and does not flatter* This is called 'patience (in listening)'.

- '(The ability to deliver) deep discourses' means that one well understands* This is called '(the ability to deliver) deep discourses'.
- 'The not applying oneself to useless ends' means that he understandswell the place of kamma. This is 'the not applying oneself to useless ends'.

Thus the seven qualities are completed. These (are qualities of) a goodfriend who should be searched for.

THE SEARCH FOR A GOOD FPJEND

Q. How should one search?

A. If in such and such a place there is one who knows the accomplishment of these merits and is a teacher of meditation, one should go to that teacher. Though one may not know, yet if a fellow-student knows, one should goand serve him.

At the proper time in a befitting way (one approaches a fellow-student) and without expressing one's wishes, one worships him and exchanges the customary greetings and consults him as to what one should do, thus: "Inwhich country and in which place is it safe for a bhikkhu to dwell? Whichis the suitable place of meditation for a bhikkhu? What is the name of the teacher who dwells there? For what practices and for what merits is hehonoured by all"? Thus one should inquire.

The fellow-student will answer: "In such and such a country, in such and such a monastery, in such and such a place of meditation set apart forthe Order, such and such a teacher of meditation is honoured by all".

On hearing this, one should think on this and be happy, and going thitherserve that teacher and practise under him.

Unintelligible.

Adjusting one's robes one should go to the presence of one's preceptorland open to him one's happy heart: "O preceptor, hear me. I wish to goand serve such and such a teacher of meditation".

Hearing this the preceptor will reply: 4<Sadhu! I too am glad. Youraction is praiseworthy. It is called co-residence with a good man and is theaction of a good man. It is the practice that accompanies the truth. Greatis the merit of learning it and greater that of co-residence. You should go tohim. After you go there, you should not be negligent".

A BEGINNER'S DUTIES

If one is good, one studies earnestly, honours (one's teacher) whole-heartedly, not for a while but always. If one uses gentle speech and guardsthe body and the mouth, then, one may understand and fulfil the practice.

One relies completely on the teacher in all things, does not slight himand obeys him just as a newly-wed bride her mother-in-law. If one seesother bhikkhus lacking robes or liquid-medicine, one prepares (what is lacking)in the customary way.

When on going there one is instructed (through) exposition, precept andposture — in the Good Law — one should adjust one's robes, bow at the feetof the teacher and circumambulate him.

At the water-side which may be by the road or outside the village, hegoes to a certain spot, keeps his bowl, robe, sandals, washing-vessel and themeditation mat on a high place. He does not use the water which is near by, and without noise he bathes. After bathing he wears the upper-garment, 2 arranges his robes and, carrying bowl3 and robe and the meditation mat onhis right shoulder, rolls the shoulder-cloak4 or throws it across the shoulder.

On entering a monastery, he lowers his umbrella and circumambulatesthe relic mound. If he sees any bhikkhu, he goes to him and asks: "Is therea yogin living here? is there a 'dirt-rags' man living here? Is there a 'begged-food' man living here? Is there a teacher of discipline living here? Wheredoes he dwell? Which is the way to his dwelling? [409] If there is one,I wish to see him. If there are no such persons and if there is a (sub-) teacher of discipline, I wish to see him. If there is no teacher of discipline, who is the elder here? I wish to see him".

If that bhikkhu is a senior or a venerable one, one should not hand one'sbowl and robe. But if he is junior, one should. If there is none, one placesone's bowl and robe on the ground. When one sees the elder, one bowsat his feet and sits at one side.

A bhikkhu who lives there will give one a seat and water, show the washing-

- 2. Uttardsanga (transliteration), 4. Sanghdti (transliteration).
- 52 Vimuttimagga

place, serve, give information, take care of bowl and robe and point out theplace for easing.

According to the rules for visiting bhikkhus, one should go round, withinthe precincts of the monastery, before sundown.

If one sees a teacher of discipline, one should talk with him and ask himconcerning any faults with regard to which one is in doubt, and which one hasnot yet committed. Or, if one sees a teacher of Abhidhamma, one shouldinquire concerning the method of acquiring wisdom and about the aggregates, sense-spheres, elements and kamma. If one sees an observer of austerities, one should inquire concerning the benefits of the austerities connected withwisdom. If one dwells there, one should go to many and daily make inquiries. If one wishes to leave, one folds one's bedding and bows at the seniors' feetand informs them and leaves. These are the rules for visiting bhikkhus.

How does a yogin dwell in a monastery? When the teacher of meditationcomes, one should take his bowl and robe, even if he be a junior. According to the rule of the teacher of meditation, one should practise that which ought to be practised or not practise the ought-not-to-be-practised, and one shouldnot abandon the practising (of that which ought to be practised and of that which ought not to be practised). This is the practice that should be observed at first. Thus should one practise.

If the yogin wishes to let others learn the Law at first, he watches thedwelling-place and keeps the bowls and robes. After sometime has passed,he, at the proper time, approaches the teacher of meditation, salutes himrespectfully, and remaining silent a while, sits.

Should the teacher of meditation question the yogin, he expresses hisdesire. If the teacher of meditation does not question, the yogin should notspeak. Thereupon he should ask for tooth-sticks and water for washing, and should use them in the proper way.

When the time for the alms-round comes, he should ask permission ofthe teacher and follow the usual way.

When the meal-time arrives, one should wash the teacher's feet, arrangehis seat, give him the bowl and inquire of the teacher what he wants fromone's own bowl. Having partaken of the remainder, one gives what is leftover to the juniors. Thus one observes and abstains from quarrelling.

After finishing one's meal, one washes the teacher's bowl and puts it inthe proper place.

Seeing a suitable time, one approaches the teacher, respectfully saluteshim, and remaining silent a while, sits. Should the teacher question, oneshould express one's desires. Should the teacher not question, one worshipsand says: "I will now say what I wanted to say from the first. If I ampermitted, I wish to ask what I want". Should the teacher permit, oneexpresses everything. Should the teacher not question, one should worshiphim.

On Distinguishing Concentration 53

Finding a suitable opportunity, one should inform him (the teacher)concerning the reason for one's coming there thus: "O teacher, kindly listento me". If the teacher listens, one should tell him regarding all one's wants. The teacher will say, "Sadhu, I will instruct you in the regular manner. Youshould observe well. Therefore, the Blessed One uttered these stanzas:-1

'One goes, when 'tis the right and proper time, with lowly heart devoid of thoughts of pride, to him who guards the Law with holiness.

As when no wayward winds assail a tree,in pleasant practice of the Law he dwells, feeding on the joyous calm of truth. Thus dwelling in the Law he knows the Law and so expounds that others too may knowThe Sublime Law, just as it truly is.

He never speaks in dispraise of the Law, jests not, flatters not, speaks no fearful words.

He has done with ill will and slothfulness. He dwells not in anger, revenge, greed or pride, is not deluded, craves not, is not attached. Thus does he practise, conquer, and reject.

Conceit of righteous life he does not nurse. Sincere are his words and always true.

For meditation's sake he knows and learns. The self-indulgent, heedless, feckless man, unsuited ever is to know the truth, and is not one who grows in wisdom's light.

If there's a man conversant with the Law, a winner of the homage of gods and men, whose lustrous splendour adds to his faith, who by much learning ably guards the Law, who is a happy hearer of tidings glad, possessor of an ample stock of virtues good, a follower of truth and a practiser-well, who causes the arising of excellent wit, and who has himself reached high wisdom's peak —if there is such a teacher — under him, should one with zeal unremitting practise well".

CHAPTER THE SIXTH

KINDS OF BEHAVIOUR

Now, when the teacher 2 on whom one depends has observed one's behaviour for several months and has fixed upon a suitable subject of medita-tion, 3 he will instruct.

Here, 'behaviour' means the fourteen kinds4 of behaviour: passion-behaviour, hate-behaviour, infatuation-behaviour, faith-behaviour, intelligence-behaviour, excogitation-behaviour, passion-hate-behaviour, passion-infatuation-behaviour, hate-infatuation-behaviour, passion-hate-infatuation-behaviour, faith-intelligence-behaviour, faith excogitation-behaviour, intelligence-excogitation-behaviour, faith-intelligence-excogitation-behaviour.

And again, there are other kinds of behaviour such as craving-behaviour, pride-behaviour.5

Here, in the case of greed and the rest, the meaning does not deferfrom the above.6

FOURTEEN KINDS OF PERSONS

There are fourteen kinds of persons corresponding to the fourteen kinds of behaviour thus:

The person walking in passion,

The person walking in hate,

The person walking in infatuation,

- 1. Cariyd. 2. Acariya. 3. Kammatthana. 4. Rdga-°, dosa-\ moha-\ saddhd-, buddhi-°,vitakka-0, rdga-dosa-°, rdga-moha-°, dosa-moha-°, rdga-dosa-moha-, saddhd-buddhi-',saddhd-vitakka-°, huddhi-vitakka-°, saddhd-buddhi-vitakka-cariyd. (*Lit. qualities ofequal measure).
- 5. Tanhd-, ditthi-% mdna-cariyd. 6. The Chinese is unintelligible.

The person walkingThe person walkingThe person walkingThe person walkingThe person walkingThe person walkingThe person walking in faith, in intelligence, in excogitation,

in passion-hate,

in passion-infatuation,

in hate-infatuation,

in passion-hate-infatuation,1

in faith-intelligence,

The person walking in faith-excogitation,

The person walking in intelligence-excogitation,

The person walking in faith-intelligence-excogitation.2

Thus 'the person walking in passion', 'the person walking in passion-infatuation' and 'the person walking in passion-hate-infatuation' are called 'persons walking in passion'.3

One always behaves passionately and increases passion. This is called 'passion-behaviour'. The others should be distinguished in the same way.

FOURTEEN KINDS REDUCED TO SEVEN

These fourteen kinds of men may be reduced to seven kinds: throughthe walker in passion and the walker in faith becoming one, the walker inhate and the walker in intelligence becoming one, the walker in infatuationand the walker in excogitation becoming one, the walker in passion-hate andthe walker in faith-intelligence becoming one, the walker in passion-infatuationand the walker in faith-excogitation becoming one, the walker in hate-infatu-ation and the walker in intelligence-excogitation becoming one, the walker in faith-intelligence-excogitation becoming one.4

Q. Why does a walker in passion become one with a walker in faith?

A. In a passionate person, when he does good, faith is strong, because this quality approaches passion.

And again, passion and faith are alike owing to three traits: clinging, searching for the good, non-repulsion.

Here 'passion' means the being intent on passion. 'Faith' means thebeing intent on good. 'Passion' means the search for what is passionallygood. 'Faith' means the search for what is morally good. The nature of 'passion' is not to forsake what is bad. The nature of 'faith' is not to forsakewhat is good. Therefore, a walker in 'passion' becomes one with a walkerin 'faith'.

- 1. & 2. Qualities of equal measure. 3. Tentative rendering.
- 4. Raga^saddhd; dosa=buddhi; mohd=vitdkka; raga-dosa=sdddha-buddhi; raga-moha = saddhd-vitakka; dosa-moha= buddhi-vitakka; the last literally means: Through the two who walk in qualities of equal measure becoming one.

Q. Why does a walker in hate become one with walker in intelligence?

A. In a hating person, when he does good, intelligence is strong, because this quality approaches hate.

And again, hate and intelligence are alike owing to three traits: non-clinging, searching for faults, repulsion.

As a hating person does not cleave (to what is good), so an intelligent person does not cleave (to what is bad). As a hating person is given to fault-finding, so an intelligent person is given to the search for the faults 1 of wrongfulconduct. As a hating person repulses others, so an intelligent person repulses the conformations. Therefore, the walker in hate becomes onewith the walker in intelligence. They are alike.

Q. Why does a walker in infatuation become one with a walker inexcogitation?

A. In an infatuated person who endeavours to arouse virtuous states, incertitude increases, because this quality approaches infatuation and because of separation from faith and wisdom.

And again, infatuation and excogitation are alike owing to two traits:instability and movement. As infatuation is not peaceful because it is disturbed, so excogitation is not peaceful because of various trends of discursive thought. As infatuation moves, not knowing where to go, so excogitation moves because of levity. Therefore, a walker in infatuation becomes one with a walker inexcogitation. They are equal.

The others should be distinguished in the same way. Thus they are reduced to seven persons.

MODES OF PRACTICE

Among the seven which persons are of quick practice and which are ofslow practice?

The walker in passion is of quick practice, because he is easily led, isstrong in faith and because of the rarity of infatuation and excogitation in him.

The walker in hate is of quick practice, because he is easily led, is strongin intelligence and because of the rarity of infatuation and excogitation in him.

The walker in infatuation is of slow practice, because he is led with difficultyowing to infatuation and excogitation and because of the rarity of faith and intelligence in him.

The walker in passion-hate is of quick practice, because he is easily led, strong in faith and intelligence and because of the rarity of infatuation and excogitation in him.

1. Adinava.

The walker in passion-infatuation is of slow practice, because he is ledwith difficulty, is not believing and because infatuation and excogitation are strong in him.

The walker in hate-infatuation is of slow practice, because he is led withdifficulty, lacks intelligence and because infatuation and excogitation are strong in him.

The walker in qualities of equal measure (passion-hate-infatuation orfaith-intelligence-excogitation) is of slow practice, because he is led withdifficulty, does not dwell in intelligence and because infatuation and excogitationare strong in him.

SEVEN REDUCED TO THREE

Now, these seven persons may be reduced to three according to theirbasic defilement. They are: the walker in passion, the walker in hate andthe walker in infatuation.

CAUSES OF BEHAVIOUR

Q. What are the causes of these three kinds of behaviour? How may it be known that this man is a walker in passion, that man is a walker in hateand yet another is a walker in infatuation? How may they be distinguished through robes, food, bedding, resort and postures?

A. Deeds done in the past are causes of behaviour. The elements are causes of behaviour. The cardinal humours 2 are causes of behaviour.

How do deeds done in the past become causes of behaviour?

One who had accumulated good actions, in past existences, throughlovable means, becomes a walker in passion, and also one who passing awayfrom a heavenly mansion is reborn here.

One who (in past existences) had perpetrated inimical deeds of killing, maining and capturing, becomes a walker in hate, and also one who passingaway from a hell or a serpent-state, is reborn here.

One who (in past existences) had partaken freely of intoxicating drinkand was devoid (of learning and conversation) becomes a walker in infatuation, and also one who passing away from a bestial state is reborn here. Thusdeeds done in the past become causes of behaviour.3

ELEMENTS AS CAUSES OF BEHAVIOUR

How do elements become causes of behaviour?

Because of the heightening of two elements one becomes a walker ininfatuation. They are the element of extension and the element of cohesion.

Because of the heightening of two elements, one becomes a walker inhate. They are the element of mobility and the element of heat.

Because of the equalizing of all elements, one becomes a walker in passion. Thus the different elements become causes of behaviour.

THE HUMOURS AS CAUSES OF BEHAVIOUR

How do the cardinal humours become causes of behaviour? One whohas an excess of phlegm becomes a walker in passion. One who has an excess of choler becomes a walker in hate, and one who has an excess of wind becomes a walker in infatuation.

And again, there is another teaching: One who has an excess of phlegmbecomes a walker in infatuation, and one who has an excess of wind becomes walker in passion. Thus the cardinal humours become causes of behaviour.1

How may it be known that this man is a walker in passion, that man is awalker in hate and yet another is a walker in infatuation?

SEVEN ASPECTS OF BEHAVIOUR

A. It may be known through the seven aspects of behaviour, namely,through (the manner of seeing) objects, through the defilements, through(the manner of) walking, through (the manner of) robing, through (the manner of) eating, through work and through (the manner of) sleeping.2

How may it be known 'through (the manner of seeing) objects'?

One who walks in passion looks at an object as if he had not seen it before. He does not see its faults, and does not consider them. He does not makelight of even a little merit (of the object). He cannot free himself of the desire for it. Even after he reflects he cannot mend his ways. Towards the otherobjects of sense also he behaves in the same way. Thus it may be knownthat one is a walker in passion.

One who walks in hate looks at an object thus: he does not look longat an object, as though he were tired. When he is affected by the humours,

- 1. Cp. Vis. Mag. 103: Dvinnam pana dhdtunam ussannatta puggalo mohacarito hoti: patha-vidhdtuyd ca dpodhdtuyd ca. Itardsarh dvinnam ussanattd dosacarito. Sabbdsam samattdpana rdgacarito ti. Dosesu ca semhddhiko rdgacarito hoti, vdtddhiko mohacarito, semhd-dhiko vd mohacarito, vdtddhiko vd rdgacarito ti evam dhdtudosaniddna ti vadanti.
- 2. Cp. Vis. Mag. 104 ff: Iriydpatho kiccd bhojand dassanddito dhammappavattito c'eva cariydyo vibhdvaye ti.

he quarrels with others often. Even with very good things he is not pleased. Thus he rejects all things. His way of life is determined by the humours. Towards other objects of sense also he behaves in the same way. Thus it is known that one is a walker in hate.

One who walks in infatuation looks at an object thus: he believes othersas regards merits and demerits (of anything). He considers worthless whatothers consider worthless. He praises what others praise, because he doesnot know. Towards the other objects of sense also he behaves in the sameway. Thus it may be known that one is a walker in infatuation. Thus it maybe known 'through (the manner of seeing) objects'.

Q. How may it be known 'through the defilements'?

A. Five are the defilements of one who walks in passion. They are jealousy, pride, wiliness, deceitfulness, sensuality. These are the five Five are the defilements of one who walks in hate. They are anger, vindictiveness, hypocrisy, niggardliness, hatred. These are the five.

Five are the defilements of one who walks in infatuation. They are rigidity, negligence, uncertainty, anxiety, infatuation. These are the five. Thus it may be known, 'through the defilements'.

Q. How may it be known 'through (the manner of) walking'?

A. The natural gait of him who walks in passion is thus: Lifting uphis feet, he walks swiftly, with even pace. He raises his feet evenly and doesnot bring them down flat. In walking, he lifts his feet gracefully. Thus isone who walks in passion known 'through (the manner of) walking'.

The natural gait of him who walks in hate is thus: He lifts up his feetjerkily and jerkily puts them down. His feet rub against each other as heputs them down half-way, as if digging the ground. Thus is one who walksin hate known, 'through (the manner of) walking'.

The natural gait of him who walks in infatuation is thus: Shufflinglyhe lifts his feet up and shufflingly he puts them down. His feet graze againsteach other. Thus is one who walks in infatuation known, 'through (themanner of) walking'. Thus it may be known 'through (the manner of) walking'.

Q. How may it be known 'through (the manner of) robing'?

A. The natural manner of robing of him who walks in passion is thus:He robes neither shabbily nor tardily. His robes do not sit too low and arewell-rounded, elegantly worn and, in many ways, pleasing to see.

The natural manner of robing of him who walks in hate is thus: Herobes hurriedly. The robes sit too high, are not well-rounded, are inelegantlyworn and, in many ways, are not pleasing to see.

The natural manner of him who walks in infatuation is thus: He dressestardily. His robes are not well-rounded, are inelegantly worn, and in many ways are not pleasing to see. Thus it may be known, 'through (the manner of)robing'.

Q. How may it be known 'through (the manner of) eating'?A. A walker in passion relishes tasty, succulent, sweet food.A walker in hate relishes acid food.A walker in infatuation relishes anything at all.

And again, when a walker in passion eats, he serves himself a moderate quantity of food, takes it (to the mouth) in well-rounded, moderate lumps, and slowly enjoys its taste. Even if it is of little taste, he enjoys it very much.

When a walker in hate eats, he takes in big mouthfuls of immoderatelumps of food, not well-rounded. If the food is of little taste, he is displeased.

When a walker in infatuation eats, he takes in small, not well-roundedlumps of food. He smears his mouth with food. A part of the food entershis mouth and a part falls back into the vessel. In the act of eating, he isnot mindful. Thus it may be known, 'through (the manner of) eating'.

Q. How may it be known, 'through work'?

A walker in passion takes hold of the broom evenly,1 and unhuriedlysweeps. Without scattering the sand, he cleans well.

A walker in hate hurriedly takes the broom and sweeps, quickly, oneend to the other, scattering the sand on both sides and making a harsh noise. He sweeps clean, but not evenly.

A walker in infatuation takes hold of the broom tardily. Though hegoes over the ground, certain parts are not swept well and not evenly.

One who washes, dyes, sews and does everything evenly without lettinghis mind go astray, is a walker in passion.

A walker in hate does all things unevenly, but does not let his mind goastray.

A walker in infatuation is disturbed in mind. He does many things, but nothing successfully. Thus it may be known 'through work'.

Q. How may it be known, 'through (the manner of) sleeping'?

A. A walker in passion prepares his bed unhurriedly and in properorder. He lies down gently and sleeps drawing in his limbs. On beingawakened at night, he gets up immediately and answers hesitatingly.

A walker in hate hurries and lies down in any place he gets. He frownsin his sleep. On being awakened at night, he gets up immediately and answersangrily.

1. Lit. With even body.

The Distinguishing of Behaviour 6-1

A walker in infatuation does not prepare his bed in an orderly manner. In sleep, his limbs are out, and only his body is covered. On beingawakened at night, he murmurs and answers long after. Thus it may beknown 'through (the manner of) sleeping'.

ON ROBING, BEGGING, SITTING, SLEEPING, AND RESORT

Q. In what manner and with what thought should one wear the robes, beg, sit, and sleep and what should be one's resort?

A. A walker in passion should robe himself humbly, and his robesshould not sit too low. He should not wear bright robes. Thus should herobe himself.

A walker in hate should robe himself with minute care, cleanly and withrobes of bright colour. His robes should sit low and be elegant, Thus shouldhe robe himself.

A walker in infatuation should wear whatever robes he gets.

A walker in passion1 should beg humbly, should not look for clean andtasty food. He should beg little.

A walker in hate may look for succulent, pure and tasty food, and foras much as he likes.

A v/alker in infatuation should be satisfied with what he gets.

A walker in passion should sleep and sit under shade of trees, by thewater's edge, in small secluded woodland glades, or in some half-built shrine, or in a place where there are no beds. Thus should he sleep and sit.

A walker in hate should sleep and sit under shade of trees, by the water'sedge, in a level place, in a completed shrine, or in a place provided with bedsand sheets.

A walker in infatuation should dwell near his teacher, relying on him.

The resort of a walker in passion should be a place of humble drink andfood. When he enters the village for alms, he should, facing the sun, go to the meanest quarter. To such a place he should go.

The resort of a walker in hate is the place where rice, water, meat anddrink are complete. When he enters the village for alms, he should not facethe sun, and should go where there are many men of faith. To such a placehe should go.

The walker in infatuation should take what he gets.

The walker in passion should adopt the posture of standing or walkingto and fro; the walker in hate should adopt the posture of sitting or lyingdown; 1 the walker in infatuation [411] should adopt the posture of walking.

1. Text, Mohacarita. Obviously an error. 2. Cp.Vis. Mag. 108-9.

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

Here, there are miscellaneous teachings. A passionate man gains faiththrough lovable objects. A hating man gains faith through being bound upwith unlovely things. An infatuated man gains (faith) through non-investi-gation.

A passionate mau is like a servant. A hating man is like a master. Aninfatuated man is like venom.

A passionate man is little affected by the humours. He does not remove the defilements.

A hating man is much affected by the humours, and does not allow himselfto be stained by the defilements.

An infatuated man is much affected by the humours. He does not remove the defilements.

A man walking in passion is sensuous.

A man walking in hate is quarrelsome.

A man walking in infatuation is negligent.

THE DISTINGUISHING OF THESUBJECTS OF MEDITATION1

CHAPTER THE SEVENTH

THIRTY-EIGHT SUBJECTS OF MEDITATION

Now, the teacher on whom one depends, having observed one's behaviour, teaches one the thirty-eight subjects of meditation. And again, he teachesone the two associated subjects of meditation.

Q. What are the thirty-eight subjects of meditation?

A. Namely, the ten kasinas, — earth, water, fire, air, bluegreen, yellow,red, white, space, consciousness;2 the ten perceptions of putrescence, namely, the perception of bioatedness, the perception of discolouration, the perception of festering, the perception of the dismembered, the perception of the gnawed, the perception of the cut and the dismembered, the perception of the fissured, the perception of the blood-stained, the perception of worminess and the per-ception of the bony;3 the ten recollections, namely, Recollection of the Buddha, Recollection of the Law, Recollection of the Community of Bhikkhus, re-collection of virtue, recollection of liberality, recollection of deities, mindful-ness of death, mindfulness of body, mindfulness of respiration, recollection of peace;4 the four immeasurable thoughts: loving-kindness compassion, appreciative joy, equanimity; 5 the Determining of the elements; 6 the Per-ception of the foulness of food; 7 the sphere of nothingness, the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.8

METHOD OF DISCERNING THE QUALITIES

These are the thirty-eight subjects of meditation. The distinctive qualities of these thirty-eight subjects of meditation may be known (1) by way of medi-tation, (2) by way of transcending, (3) by way of increasing, (4) by way ofcause, (5) by way of object, (6) by way of speciality, (7) by way of plane, (8) byway of seizing, (9) by way of person.9

BY WAY OF MEDITATION

Q. How, 'by way of meditation'?

A. Namely, ten subjects of meditation fulfil access-meditation; eleven

1. Cp. Vis. Mag. 110 ff. 2. A.I, 41: Pathavi, dpo, tejo, vdyo, nita, pita, lohita, odata,akasa, vinfidna. For the last two kasinas subjects of meditation fulfil the first meditation; three subjects of meditationfulfil the three-fold meditation.

And again, one subject of meditation fulfils the four-fold meditation; nine subjects of meditation fulfil the four-fold and five-fold meditation. Andagain, four subjects of meditation fulfil the four-fold formless meditation.

- Q. Which ten subjects of meditation fulfil access-meditation?
- A. Excepting mindfulness of respiration and mindfulness of body, the remaining eight recollections, the determining of the four elements andthe perception of the foulness of food are called the ten (objects of) access-meditation.
- Q. Which of the eleven subjects of meditation produce the fiistmeditation?
- A, The ten perceptions of putrescence and mindfulness of body producethe first meditation.
- Q. Which three subjects of meditation produce the three-fold meditation?
- A. Namely, loving-kindness compassion and appreciative joy.
- Q. Which subject of meditation produces the four-fold meditation?

- A. Namely, equanimity.
- , Q. Which nine subjects of meditation comprise the four-fold and five-foldmeditations? ' '•-•:— "•.'*•"
- A. Excepting space-kasina and consciousness-tower, the remaining eightkasinas and Mindfulness of respiration.
- Q. Which four subjects of meditation comprise the four-fold formlessmeditation?
- A. Space-kasina, consciousness-/:^/^, the sphere of nothingness, the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception these are called the four subjects of meditation.

Thus these should be known 'by way of meditation'.BY WAY OF TRANSCENDING

Q. How 'by way of transcending'?

A. The sphere-subjects of meditation transcend form. Excepting theformless-towas, the remaining eight kasinas and what remain of the thirtysubjects of meditation, do not transcend form.

Three subjects of meditation transcend the object: the two formless-kasinas and the sphere of nothingness. The other thirty-five subjects of medi-tation do not transcend the object.

And again, one subject of meditation transcends perception and sensation, namely, the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception. The otherthirty-seven subjects of meditation do not transcend perception and sensation.

Thus these should be known 'by way of transcending'.

BY WAY OF INCREASING

Q. How, 'by way of increasing'?

A. Fourteen subjects of meditation should be increased, namely, theten kasinas and the four immeasurables. The other twenty-four shouldnot be increased.

Thus these should be known 'by way of increasing'.BY WAY OF CAUSE

Q How, 'by way of cause'?

BY WAY OF OBJECT

- Q. How, 'by way of object'?
- A. Twenty-one subjects of meditation have the sign as object. Twelvesubjects of meditation have their intrinsic nature as object.
- O. Which twenty-one subjects of meditation have the sign as object?
- A. Excepting the consciousness kasina, the remaining nine kasinas, the ten perceptions of putrescence, mindfulness of respiration and mindfulness of body.
- Q. Which twelve (subjects of meditation) have their intrinsic nature object?
- A. Consciousness kasina, the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception and the ten objects of access-meditation.
- O. Which five have neither the sign nor their intrinsic nature as object?
- A. Namely, the four immeasurables and the sphere of nothingness.
- 1. A. IV, 426: /// kho bhikkhave yavatd sanndsamapatti, tuvatd anhdpativedho.

And again, two subjects of meditation have: internally developed object; internal object.

And again, two subjects of meditation: internally developed object; external object.

And again, one subject of meditation: externally developed objectand internal object.

And again, twenty-one subjects of meditation: externally developedobject; external object.

And again, four subjects of meditation: internally developed object; internal object; prepared external object.

And again, four subjects of meditation: prepared internal object; prepareddeveloped external object; external object.

And again, two subjects of meditation: prepared internally developedobject; prepared externally developed external object; prepared internal object.

And again, one subject of meditation: internal-external developedobject; internal object.

And again, one subject of meditation: developed internal object; indes-cribable internal object; external object.

Two subjects of meditation: developed internal object; internal object, namely, consciousness kasina and sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.

And again, two subjects of meditation: internally developed object; external object, namely: mindfulness of respiration and mindfulness ofbody.

And again, one subject of meditation: externally developed object; internal object, namely: recollection of death.

And again, twenty-one subjects of meditation: externally developedobject; external object, namely, the ten perceptions of putrescence, the fourimmeasurable thoughts, the four colour kasinas, (limited-) space kasina, recollection of the Buddha and recollection of the Community of Bhikkhus.

And again, four subjects of meditation: internally developed object; internal object; prepared (object); prepared external object, namely, recol-lection of virtue, recollection of liberality, the determining of the four elements and the perception of the foulness of food.

And again, four subjects of meditation: prepared internally developed object; prepared externally developed object; prepared external object, namely, the four colour kasinas.

And again, two subjects of meditation: prepared internally developed object; prepared externally developed object; prepared internal object; prepared external object, namely, recollection of the Law and recollection of peace.

And again, one subject of meditation: internal-external prepared object; internal object, namely, recollection of deities.

And again, one subject of meditation: inner developed object; inner object; outer object; sphere object; namely, the sphere of nothingness.

And again, two subjects of meditation belonging to the past, namely, consciousness kasina and the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.

And again, one subject of meditation is of the future, namely, recollection of death.

And again, one subject of meditation is of the present, namely, recollection of deities.

And again, six subjects of meditation: prepared past object; preparedfuture object; namely recollection of the Buddha, recollection of the Com-munity of Bhikkhus, recollection of virtue, recollection of liberality, the determining of the four elements and the perception of the foulness of food.

And again, two subjects of meditation: prepared past object; preparedpresent object; prepared non-characterizable past-future; namely, ninekasinas, the ten perceptions of putrescence, the four immeasurable thoughts, mindfulness of respiration, mindfulness of body and the sphere of nothingness.

And again, four subjects of meditation, namely, fire kasina, air kasina, the perception of worminess and mindfulness of respiration, have unsteadyobjects. Movement is their medium, but their after-image is steady. Allthe other thirty-four have steady objects.

Thus these should be known 'by way of object'.

BY WAY OF SPECIALITY

Q. How, 'by way of speciality'?

A. Eight kasinas and the four formless (objects of) concentration arenamed special. The eight kasinas, being true objects, are called (objects of)speciality in concentration. And because in the fourth meditation, jhdna, onereaches a special plane, the four formless (objects of) concentration becomespecial.

The ten perceptions of putrescence and the perception of the foulness offood are called special perception, because of colour, form, space, direction, distinctiveness, combination and coherence, and because of the impurity-perception-obj ect.

The ten recollections are called special recollections, because of their subtility and because of attendveness.

[412] The four immeasurable thoughts are called special, because they cannot be surpassed.

The determining of the four elements is called the speciality of wisdom, because of its connection with the void.

Thus these should be known 'by way of speciality'.BY WAY OF PLANE

Q. How, 'by way of plane'?

A. Twelve subjects of meditation do not arise in the higher heavens. Namely, the ten perceptions of putrescence, mindfulness of body and the perception of the foulness of food.

And again, thirteen subjects of meditation do not arise in the formexistence. 1 Namely, the first twelve and mindfulness of respiration do notarise in the form existence.

No subject of meditation except the four formless (ones) arise in the formless existence.2

Thus these should be understood 'by way of plane'.BY WAY OF SEIZING

Q. How, 'by way of seizing'?

A. Seventeen subjects of meditation seize the sign through sight,- i.e., excepting air kasina and the formless kasinas, the remaining seven kasinasand ten perceptions of putrescence.

And again, one subject of meditation seizes the sign through contact. Namely, mindfulness of respiration.

And again, one subject of meditation seizes the sign through sight orcontact. Namely, air kasina.

The remaining nineteen subjects of meditation seize the sign throughaudition.

And again, five subjects of meditation should not be practised by thebeginner. Namely, the formless and equanimity. The remaining thirty-fivemay be practised by the beginner.

Thus these should be known 'by way of seizing'.

BY WAY OF PERSON

Q. How 'by way of person'?

A. A walker in passion should not practise the four immeasurables,

1. Riipahhava. According to Vis. Mag. 113, Brahmaloka. 2. Ariipabhava.

Subjects of Meditation 69

because of their auspicious sign. Why? A walker in passion is not good atappreciating the auspicious sign. It (the practice of the four immeasurablesby a walker in passion) is comparable to a man affected of a disorder of phlegmpartaking of very rich food that is harmful to him.

A walker in hate should not practise the ten perceptions of putrescence, because of the arising of resentment-perception. A walker in hate is notgood at appreciating it and is comparable to a man with a bilious ailmentpartaking of hot drinks and food which are harmful to him.

A walker in infatuation, who has not gathered wisdom, should not workat any subject of meditation, because of his lack of skill. Owing to lack ofskill, his efforts will be fruitless. It (the practice of meditation by a walkerin infatuation) is comparable to a man who rides an elephant without a goad. A walker in passion should practise the perception of impurity andmindfulness of body, because these help overcome lust.

A walker in hate should practise the four immeasurables, because thesehelp overcome hatred. Or he should practise colour kasina, because hismind attends to such.

A walker in faith should practise the six recollections beginning withrecollection of the Buddha. Then his faith will gain fixity.

A walker in intelligence should practise the determining of the fourelements, the perception of the foulness of food, recollection of death andrecollection of peace because he is profound.

And again, a walker in intelligence is not debarred from working at any subject of meditation.

A walker in excogitation should practise mindfulness of respiration, because it eradicates discursive thought. 1

A walker in infatuation should make inquiries regarding the Law, shouldhear expositions of the Law in due season, with reverential mind, and shouldhonour the Law. He should live with his teacher. He should heap upwisdom and should practise what pleases him of the thirty-eight subjects ofmeditation. Recollection of death and the determining of the four elements are specially suited to him.

And again, there is another teaching: "When I investigate the subjects of meditation, I see their distinctive qualities. The six persons may, through discernment, be reduced to three".

Q. If that be so, will there be difficulties at the beginning?

A. There are two kinds of men who walk in passion, namely, (the man)of dull faculties and (the man) of keen faculties. A walker in passion whohas dull faculties should practise the investigation of impurity in order toovercome lust. Thus he should practise and overcome lust.

1. A. I, 449: Cetaso vikkhepassa pahanaya dndpdnasati bhdvetabbd.

The walker in passion who has keen faculties should, at first, increasefaith. He should practise the recollections. Thus he should practise andovercome lust.

There are two kinds of men who walk in hate, namely, (the man) of dullfaculties and (the man) of keen faculties. A walker in hate who has dull faculties should practise the four immeasurables. By this he will be able to overcome hatred.

The walker in hate who has keen faculties, being one endowed withwisdom, should practise the (meditation of the) special sphere. Thus shouldone practise and dispel hatred.

There are two kinds of men who walk in infatuation, namely, (the man) of no faculties and (the man) of dull faculties. The walker in infatuationwho has no faculties should not work at any subject of meditation. Thewalker in infatuation who has dull faculties should practise mindfulness of respiration in order to dispel discursive thinking.

Thus (the six persons) can be reduced to three. Therefore, there shouldbe no difficulty. According to this teaching, the kasiyas and mindfulnessof respiration are developed (further) through space. All the activities canbe fulfilled without difficulty. If a man is endowed with merit, he will haveno difficulty in fulfilling all the excellent subjects of meditation.

Section One

Q. What is the earth kasina! 1 What is the practice of it? What is itssalient characteristic? What is its function? What is its near cause? Whatare its benefits? What is the meaning of kasina! How many kinds of earthare there? What is the earth sign? How is a mandala made? What is themethod of meditating on the earth kasina!

EARTH KASINA, ITS PRACTICE, SALIENT CHARACTERISTIC, FUNCTION AND NEAR CAUSE

A. The thought that is produced relying on the earth sign — this is called earth kasina. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind — this is called practice. Delight in being linked to the earth sign is its salient characteristic. Non-abandonment is its function. Non-differentiated thought is its near cause.

BENEFITS

What are its benefits?2 Twelve are its benefits, namely, the sign is easyof acquisition through meditation on the earth kasina; at all times and in allactions, mental activity is unimpeded; acquiring supernormal power, a manis able to walk on water just as on earth and to move freely in space; he gainsthe supernormal power of manifoldness, the knowledge of past lives, theheavenly ear and worldly higher knowledge; he fares well and draws near tothe verge of the ambrosial.

MEANING OF KASINA

Q. What is the meaning of kasina°t

A. Pervasiveness — this is called kasina. It is even as the EnlightenedOne taught in the stanza:-1

"When a man remembers

the worth of the 'wakened ones, the joy that wells within him floods his body through. So, when with spreading earth-thought Rose-apple Isle's suffused, the earth-wrought state is likened to the body with bliss perfused".

Meditating thus one causes this mandala to prevail everywhere.

KINDS OF EARTH

Q. How many kinds of earth are there? Taking which earth as signshould one practise?

A. There are two kinds of earth.2 1. Natural earth. 2. Preparedearth. Solidity is the property of natural earth. This is called natural earth. What is made of earth dug out by a man himself or by another is called preparedearth. Earth is of four colours, namely, white, black,3 red and the colour ofdawn. Here a yogin should not add anything to natural earth. He shouldexclude white, black and red. Why? When he meditates on earth of these colours, he does not get the after-image. By dwelling on white, black orred, he practises colour kasina. Why? If a yogin meditates on natural earthor prepared earth, he will get the (after-) image. If it (i.e., earth) is of dawn-colour, he should take that sign.

NON-PREPARED EARTH

Q. What is non-prepared earth sign?

A. Level ground which is free from thickets, free from roots of treesor tufts of grass, within the range of vision and which arouses steady mentalactivity — this is earth perception. This is called non-prepared earth.

A practised yogin gains the after-image of earth following either the difficult or the easy way, and dwells without falling. A beginner in the first meditation, jhana, takes prepared earth and makes a mandala. He shouldnot meditate on non-prepared earth.

ON MAKING A MANDALA

Q. How is a mandala made?

A. If a yogin desires to make a mandala on the ground, let him at firstselect a calm place in the monastery, or a cave, or a place under a tree, or adeserted, covered place unlit by the sun, or a place on an unused road. Inall such places, let him keep a distance of one fathom, sweep the place cleanand make it smooth. In such places let him, with clay of the colour of dawn, prepare the ground in order to cause the arising of the sign. Taking a moderate quantity in a vessel, let him carefully mix it with water and remove grass, roots and dirt from it. With the edge of a cloth let him remove any dirt thatmay be on the swept place. Let him screen the sitting place and exclude thelight, and make a couch of meditation. Let him make a circle accordingto rule, neither too near nor too far. Let the circle be flat and full and withoutmarkings. After that let watery clay unmixed with any other colour or un-mixed with special colour be applied. It should be covered and protecteduntil it is dry. When it is dry, [413] it should be edged with another colour. It may be of the size of a round rice-sifter, a metal gong and may be circular, rectangular, triangular or square. Thus it should be understood.

According to the principal teacher's instructions, a circle is the best. The mandala may be made on cloth, on a board or on a wall. But it is beston the ground. This is the teaching of predecessor teachers.

METHOD OF EARTH KASINA MEDITATION

Q. How should one meditate upon the earth kasinal

A. A yogin who wishes to meditate upon the earth kasina should at first consider the tribulations of sense-desires, and again he should consider the benefits of renunciation.

TRIBULATIONS OF SENSE-DESIRES ILLUSTRATEDIN TWENTY SIMILES

- Q. How should he consider the tribulations of sense-desires?
- A. Because they produce little pleasure and severe pain, they are full oftribulations.1 (1) Sense-desires are likened to a bone because of scanty yield of pleasure; (2) sense-desires are likened to a piece of flesh becausethey are followed by many (sufferings); (3) sense-desires are likened to a(flaming) torch carried against the wind because they burn; (4) sense-desires are likened to a pit of glowing embers because of the great and the small (?);

- (5) sense-desires are likened to a dream because they vanish quickly;
- (6) sense-desires are likened to borrowed goods because they cannot beenjoyed long; (7) sense-desires are likened to a fruit tree because they arechopped down by others; (8) sense-desires are likened to a sword becausethey cut; (9) sense-desires are likened to a pointed stake because they impale;(10) sense-desires are likened to the head of a venomous snake because theyare fearful;1 (11) sense-desires are likened to a flock of cotton blown aboutby the wind because they are unresisting by nature; (12) sense-desires are likened to a mirage because they bewilder the fool; (13) sense-desires arelikened to darkness because they are blinding; (14) sensedesires are likened to hindrances because they obstruct the way of good; (15) sense-desires arelikened to infatuation because they cause the loss of Right Mindfulness;

- (16) sense-desires are likened to ripening because they are subject to decay;
- (17) sense-desires are likened to fetters because they bind one to another;
- (18) sense-desires are likened (to thieves) because they rob the value ofmerit; (19) sense-desires are likened to a house of hate because they provokequarrels; (20) and sense-desires are painladen because they cause trialsinnumerable. Having considered the tribulations of sense-desires, in thismanner, he should consider the benefits of renunciation.

RENUNCIATION AND ITS BENEFITS

Renunciation. Namely, good practices, like the first meditation, jhdna, from the time one retires from the world — these are named renunciation.

Simile No. 14 — A. Ill, 63: Kdmacchando bhikkhave dvarano nivarano.

Simile No. 17 — D. I, 245: Kdma-guna ariyassa vinaye anduti pi vuccanti, bandhanan ti pi vuccanti.

In the Chinese 'Potaliya' (transliteration) Sutta, the simile of the snake is also found, and the eight doctrines taught in this sutta are illustrated with as many examples, though it is difficult to say exactly which illustration refers to which doctrine. In the Pali there are only seven illustrations. The following is taken from the Chu Agon {Madhyama Agama)No. 203: "Householder, it is as if, not far from a village, there were a huge venomoussnake, very vicious, poisonous, black and terrible of aspect, and a man not foolish, not deluded, not insane, in full possession of his senses, desirous of weal and shunning woe, disliking sorrow very much, wishing to live, not wishing to die and disliking death verymuch, were to come. What do you think, householder, would that man stretch out hishand or any other member of his body to the snake, saying, 'Bite me, bite me'?" Thenthe householder answered: "No, venerable Gotama, because on seeing the venomoussnake he would think: 'If I were to stretch forth my hand or other member of my bodyand let the snake bite it, I should die or suffer severely'. And so, on seeing that veno-mous snake, he wishes to flee from it". Householder, the learned, noble disciple alsothinks in the same way: 'Sense-desires are like a venomous snake. It was taught bythe Blessed One that sense-desires are like a venomous snake. They yield little pleasure,produce much suffering and are pain-laden'. And he abandons sense-desires, becomesfreed from evil states of mind and causes to perish all worldly enjoyment and clingsto nothing".

Q. What are the benefits of renunciation? A. Separation from thehindrances;1 the dwelling in freedom; the joy of solitude; the dwelling inhappiness and mindfulness and the ability to endure suffering; accomplishmentof much good and attainment of the ground of great fruition; the benefittingof two places2 through acceptance of gifts. This (renunciation) is profoundwisdom. This is the best of all stations. This is called 'beyond the threeworlds'.

And again, what is called renunciation is the renunciation of sense-desires. This is solitude. This is freedom from all hindrances. This is happiness. This is the absence of defilement. This is the super-excellent path. This washes away the dirt of the mind. Through this practice is merit gathered. Through this practice inward calm is won.

Sense-desires are coarse; renunciation is fine. Sense-desires are defiling; renunciation is non-defiling. Sense-desires are inferior; renunciation issuperior. Sense-desires are connected with hate; renunciation is unconnected with hate. Sense-desires are not friendly towards fruition; renunciation is the friend of fruition. Sense-desires are bound up with fear; renunciationis fearless.

METHOD OF PRACTICE OF EARTH KASINA

Having, in this manner, considered the tribulations of sensedesires andthe benefits of renunciation, one accomplishes happiness through renunciation. One arouses the heart of faith and reverence, and meditates either on thenon-prepared or the prepared. Taking food in moderation, one observes the rules regarding the bowl and robes, well. Bodily or mentally one is notheedless, and accepts little.

Having taken a moderate meal, one washes the hands and feet, and sitsdown and meditates on the Buddha's Enlightenment,3 the Law and the Order. Through the doing of good actions and through these recollections onebecomes happy and thinks: "Now it is possible for me to acquire perfection. Had I not renounced, long would it have been before I reached peace. There-fore, I should endeavour earnestly". And taking the mat of meditation toa place neither too far from nor too near the mandala, i.e., about the lengthof a plough-pole or a fathom (from the mandala), one sits down with legscrossed under him, faces the mandala, holds the body erect and arouses mindfulness from the very depths of his being, with closed eyes.

After sometime, one is able to exclude all disturbances of body and mind, collect his thoughts and unify his mind. Then opening the eyes neither toowide nor too narrowly, one should fix one's gaze on the mandala.

- 2. Cp. A. II, 80: Atthi bhikkhave dakkhina dayakato c'eva visujjhati pafiggahakato ca.
- 3. Bodhi transliteration.

THREE WAYS OF SIGN-TAKING

The yogin should meditate on the form of the mandala and take the signthrough three ways: through even gazing, skilfulness and neutralizing disturbance.

Q. How, through even gazing?

A. When the yogin dwells on the mandala, he should not open his eyestoo wide nor shut them entirely. Thus should he view it. If he opens hiseyes too wide, they will grow weary, he will not be able to know the true nature of the mandala, and the after-image will not arise. If he faces the mandalaclosing the eyes fast, he will not see the sign because of darkness, and he willarouse negligence. Therefore, he should refrain from opening his eyes toowide and closing them fast. He should dwell with earnestness on the mandala. Thus should the yogin dwell (on the mandala) in order to gain fixity of mind. As a man looking at his own face in a mirror sees his face because of themirror, i.e., because the face is reflected by the mirror, so the yogin dwellingon the mandala sees the sign of concentration which arises, because of themandala. Thus should he take the sign by fixing the mind through evengazing. Thus one takes the sign through even gazing.

Q. How, through skilfulness?

A. Namely, through four ways. The first is to put away any internallack; the second is to view the mandala squarely; third is to supply the efficiency should a partial sign or half the mandala appear; (fourth:) atthis time if his mind is distracted and becomes negligent, he should endeavourlike a potter at the wheel1 and, when his mind acquires fixity, he should gazeon the mandala, and letting it pervade (his mind) fully and without faults consider calmness (?). Thus should skilfulness be known.

Q. How, through neutralizing disturbance?

A. There are four kinds of disturbance: the first is endeavour that is too quick; the second is endeavour that is too slow; the third is elation; the fourth is depression.

Q. What is endeavour that is too quick?

A. It is hurried practice. The yogin is impatient. He sits (to meditate)in the morning. By evening he ceases (to endeavour), because of wearinessof body. This is called hurried doing.

Q. What is endeavour that is too slow?

A. It is to stray away from the way of meditation. Though the yoginsees the mandala he does not dwell on it with reverence. Often he gets up.Often he lies down.

1. Cp. M. II, 18: Seyyathdpi Uddyi, dakkho kumhhakaro vd kumbhakdrantevdsi yd supari-kamrnakatdya mattikdya yam yad eva bhajanavikatim dkankheyya, tarn tad eva kareyyaabhinipphddeyya.

When a yogin endeavours too vigorously, his body becomes weary andhis mind flags. Or, the mind wanders and loses itself in frivolous thoughts. When he endeavours too slowly, his body and mind become dull and lazyand sleep overtakes him.1

Elation: If the yogin's mind becomes lax through losing itself in frivolousthoughts, he becomes discontented with the subject of meditation. If he,at first, does not delight in frivolous thoughts, his mind becomes elated throughwilling. Or again, it becomes elated, if he does many deeds through the willfor happiness and bliss.

Depression: The yogin fails owing to agitation and thereby partakes ofuneasiness, and dislikes the subject of meditation. If he dislikes the subjectof meditation from the start he resents activity and, accordingly through resent-ment, his mind becomes depressed. And again, his mind becomes weary ofinitial and sustained application of thought, falls from distinction and, owingto craving, becomes depressed.

When this yogin's mind falls into a state of agitation, quickly, he over-comes and abandons agitation, with the faculty of mindfulness and the faculty of concentration. When his mind falls into a state of negligence, he shouldovercome and abandon that state of mind-negligence with the faculty ofmindfulness and the faculty of energy. When the man of elated mind falls into a lustful state, he should abandon lust forthwith. When the man ofdepressed mind falls into an angry state, he should abandon anger forthwith. In these four places a man accomplishes and makes his mind move in" onedirection. If his mind moves in one direction, the sign can be made to arise.

GRASPING SIGN

There are two kinds of signs, namely, the grasping sign and the after-image. What is the grasping sign? When a yogin, with undisturbed minddwells on the mandate, he gains the perception of the mandala and sees it were in space, sometimes far, sometimes near, sometimes to the left, sometimes to the right, sometimes big, sometimes small, sometimes ugly, sometimes lovely. Occasionally (he sees it multiplied) many (times) andoccasionally few (times). He, without scanning the mandala, causes the grasping sign to arise through skilful contemplation. This is named grasping sign.

THE AFTER-IMAGE

Through the following of that (the grasping sign) again and again theafter-image arises. The after-image means this: what when a man contemplates appears together with mind. Here the mind does not gain collectednessthrough viewing the mandala, but it (the after-image) can be seen with closedeyes as before (while looking at the mandala) only in thought. If he wills tosee it far, he sees it afar. As regards seeing it near, to the left, to the right, before, behind, within, without, above and below, it is the same. It appearstogether with mind. This is called the after-image.

1. A. Ill, 375: Accdraddhavhiyam uddhaccdya samvattati atilinaviriyam kosajjdya samvattati. Tasrha ti ha tvam Sana viriyasamatam adhitthaha indriydnah ca samatam pativijjha tatthaca nimlttam ganhdhi 'ti.

THE SIGN

What is the meaning of sign?

The meaning of (conditioning) cause is the meaning of sign. It is even as the Buddha taught the bhikkhus: [414] "All evil demeritorious states occurdepending on a sign".1 This is the meaning of conditioning cause. And again, it is said that the meaning of wisdom is the meaning of the sign. The Buddha has declared: "With trained perception one should forsake".2 This is called wisdom. And again, it is said that the meaning of image is the meaning of the sign. It is like the thought a man has on seeing the reflection of hisown face and image. The after-image is obvious.

PROTECTING THE SIGN

After acquiring the sign the yogin should, with heart of reverence towardshis teacher, protect that excellent sign. If he does not protect, he will, surely,lose it.

Q. How should he protect it?

A. He should protect it through three kinds of actions: through refrainingfrom evil, practice of good and through constant endeavour.

How does one refrain from evil? One should refrain from pleasure ofwork, of various kinds of trivial talk, of sleeping, of frequenting assemblies, immoral habits; (one should refrain from) the non-protection of the faculties, 3 intemperance as regards food, non-practice of the meditations, jhdnas, and non-watchfulness in the first and last watches of the night, non-reverence forthat which he has learned (the rule), the company of bad friends and seeing improper objects of sense. To partake of food, to sit and to lie down, at the improper time, are not wholesome. To conquer these states is (to do)good. Thus he should always practise.

- Q. What is the meaning of constant endeavour?

- A. That yogin having taken the sign always contemplates on its meritas if it were a precious jewel. He is always glad and practises. He practises constantly and much. He practises by day and by night. He is glad whenhe is seated. He is at ease when he lies down. Keeping his mind fromstraying hither and thither, he upholds the sign. Upholding the sign, hearouses attention. Arousing attention, he meditates. Thus meditating,he practises. In his practice, he contemplates on the mandala. Throughthis constant endeavour, he sees the sign and protecting the sign in this way,he acquires facility. And if the (after-) image appears in his mind, he gainsaccess-meditation. And if access-meditation appears in his mind, he, by meansof this, accomplishes fixed meditation.1

ACCESS-MEDITATION

Q. What is access-meditation?

A. It means that the man follows the object unimpeded by his inclinations. Thus he overcomes the hindrances. But he does not practise initial and sustained application of thought, joy, bliss, unification of mind and the fivefaculties of faith and so forth. Though he gains meditation-strength, diversetrends of thought occur yet. This is called access-meditation.

FIXED MEDITATION, JHANA

Fixed meditation, jhdna, follows access. This state acquires the power of mental progress. This is the power of application of thought, faith andthe others. This state does not move in the object. This is called fixed medi-tation, jhdna.

Q. What is the difference between access and fixed meditation, jhdnal

A. The overcoming of the five hindrances is access. One overcomesthese five and thereby fulfils fixed meditation, jhdna. Through access oneapproaches distinction in meditation, jhdna. When distinction in meditationis accomplished, it is fixed meditation, jhdna. In access-meditation mindand body, not having attained to tranquillity, are unsteady like a ship onwaves. In fixed meditation, jhdna, mind and body having attained to tran-quillity are steady like a ship on unruffled water. Because the factors2 arenot powerful the mind does not dwell long on the object, in access-meditation, like a child.3 All factors4 being powerful (in fixed meditation, jhdna) onedwells on the object peacefully and long, like a powerful man.5 In access-meditation one does not practise with facility. Therefore yoga is not accomp-lished. It is like the forgetfulness of a discourse-reciter who has stopped(reciting) for a long time.1 In fixed meditation, jhdna, practice being facile, yoga is accomplished. It is like a discourse-reciter who keeps himself intraining, always, and who does not forget when he recites.

If a man does not overcome the (five) hindrances, he is blind as regardsaccess-meditation.2 These are the teachings regarding impurity. If a manovercomes the hindrances well, he gains sight (lit. becomes not-blind).

Concerning the accomplishment of fixed meditation, jhdna, these arethe teachings of purity:—From the state of facility in the sign to (the state of)repelling is called access. Continued repelling of the hindrances is calledfixed meditation, jhdna.

Q. What is the meaning of access?

A. Because it is near meditation, jhdna, it is called access, as a roadnear a village is called a village road. The meaning is the same, though thenames differ.

What is the meaning of fixed meditation, jhdnal Fixed meditation, jhdna, means yoga. Fixed meditation, jhdna, is like the mind entering the mandala. There is no difference in meaning between renunciation, meditation {jhdna} and fixed meditation, {jhdna}. Here the yogin, dwelling in access, fixed meditation {jhdna} or the first meditation {jhdna} should increase the kasina.

INCREASING OF THE KASINA

Q. How should he increase?

A. Namely, the kasina which is a span and four fingers, at the start, should be gradually increased. Thus should he contemplate; and he will beable gradually to increase with facility. Let him progressively increase itto the size of a wheel, a canopy, the shadow of a tree, a cultivated field, asmall neighbourhood, a village, a walled village and a city. Thus should heprogress gradually until he fills the great earth. He should not contemplateon such things as rivers, mountains, heights, depths, trees and protuberances, all of which are uneven; he should contemplate on earth as if it were thegreat ocean. Increasing it in this way, he attains to distinction in meditation.

SKILFULNESS IN FIXED MEDITATION, JHANA

If the yogin attains to access-meditation but is unable to obtain fixedmeditation, jhdna, he should effect the arising of skilfulness in fixed meditation, jhdna, in two ways: the first, through causes; the second, through "goodstanding".

- 1. A. IV, 195: Asajjhayamala bhikkhave manta.
- 2. Cp. S. V, 97: Pahcime bhikkhave nivarana andhakarana ackkhukarana.

TEN WAYS

By means of ten ways he effects the arising of skilfulness in fixed medi-tation, jhdna, through causes: (1) By the consideration of cleansing thephysical basis. (2) By the consideration of equalizing (the work of) the faculties.(3) By skilfulness in taking the sign. (4) By restraining and regulating themind. (5) By repressing negligence. (6) By (overcoming) mental inactivity.(7) By gladdening the mind. (8) By steadying the mind and fulfilling equani-mity. (9) By separation from him who does not practise concentration andby associating with a concentration-practiser. (10) By intentness on fixedmeditation concentration.1

(1). Q. What is the consideration of cleansing the physical basis?

A. Through three kinds of action one accomplishes the cleansing ofthe physical basis. Namely, through the partaking of suitable food, theenjoyment of the ease of agreeable weather and the practice of a posture that is pleasant.

SIMILE OF THE HORSE-CHARIOT

(2). By the consideration of equalizing (the work) of the faculties, i.e., faith or any of the other four faculties should not be allowed to fall back, through negligence. It is comparable to a swift horse-chariot.2

SIMILE OF THE INKED-STRING

- (3). Skilfulness in taking the sign: The mind-faculty takes (the sign)well, i.e., neither too hastily nor too slowly. It is like a skilful carpenter,who, having determined well, pulls the inked-string, lets it go at the rightmoment and thereby marks an even, uncurved line.
- (4). By restraining and regulating the mind: There are two ways. By these two, the mind is regulated: the first, through intense effort; thesecond, through profound investigation of the spheres or the mind becomes discursive, wandering to distant and unsuitable spheres and is thus disturbed.

Through two ways one restrains the mind: One arouses energy. Onetakes (food) temperately every day. If the mind wanders to unsuitable spheresand objects, one restrains the mind having considered the evil results (of such actions). Thus one overcomes in two ways: through investigation of varioussufferings and through the search for the reward of evil deeds.

(5) (6) and (7). By repressing negligence: Through two ways negligenceof mind is fulfilled: through lack of distinction in concentration and throughmental inactivity. When there is much negligence, the mind becomes sluggishand torpid. This means that, if the yogin does not gain distinction in concentration, his mind is steeped in negligence because of mental inactivity. Through two ways one should repress. Namely, through the consideration of merit and through the arousing of energy. He should repress negligence of torpor and idleness of mind in four ways:— If he is a voracious personhe considers (the faults of) negligence and practises the four restraints. Fixinghis mind on the sign of brightness, he dwells in a dewy place, makes his mindrejoice and gets rid of attachment. Through three ways mental inactivity takes place: through insufficiency of skill, dullness of wit, non-obtainment of the ease of solitude. If a yogin's mind is inactive he makes it active inthese two ways: through fear and through gladness.

If he considers birth, decay, death and the four states of woe, owingto fear, anxiety and mental agony arise in his mind.1 If he practises the re-collections of the Buddha, the Law, the Community of Bhikkhus, virtue, libera-lity and deities, he sees the merits of these objects and is gladdened.

(8). By the mind becoming steady and fulfilling equanimity: Throughtwo actions (the mind) fulfils access-meditation: by destroying the hindrancesthe mind fulfils fixity. Or, arousing the meditation (jhdna) factors on alreadyacquired earth (kasina), the mind attains to fixity.

After a yogin attains to calmness, there are two states to be abandoned:that which causes inattention, and that which causes middling skill.

(9). Separation from those who do not practise concentration meansthat a man who has not attained to fixed meditation, access-meditation orrestraint meditation, and he who does not train himself in these or practisethese should not be served. Association with a meditation practiser meansthat if a man has attained to fixed meditation, jhdna, he should be followed. Under him one should learn. Him should one serve.

(10). By intentness on fixed meditation, jhdna, means that the yoginalv/ays reverences, enjoys (meditation) and practises much (regarding it)as the deepest depth, as a fountain and as a tender plant.

Through the practice of these ten, fixed meditation, jhdna, is obtained.

- Q. How (does the yogin) produce skilfulness in fixed meditation, jhdna, well, through good standing?
- A. That yogin, having well understood the causes (which induce concentration), enters into solitude. With the sign of concentration which he haspractised, he induces, in mind, desirous ease, with facility. Through this state, the mind acquires good standing. Through the arising of joy, themind acquires good standing. [415] Through the arising of body-bliss, the mind acquires good standing. Through the arising of brightness, themind acquires good standing. Through the arising of harmlessness, the mindattains to calmness. Through this calmness, the mind acquires good standing. Thus observing well, the mind attains to equanimity and acquires good standing. Liberating itself from limitless passions, the mind acquires good standing. By reason of freedom, the mind accomplishes the one-function-of-the-Lawland practises. Therefore, owing to this excellence, the mind gains increase. Thus established in good standing, the yogin causes the arising of skilfulnessin fixed meditation, jhdna. Understanding causes and good standing well, in this way, he, in no long time, brings out concentration.
- 1. Cp. Nd1. 371: Jdtibhayam jardbhayarh byddhibhayam maranabhayarh duggatibhayam.

THE FIRST MEDITATION, JHANA

That yogin, having separated himself from lust, having separated himselffrom demeritorious states, attains to the first meditation, jhdna, which isaccompanied by initial and sustained application of thought, born of solitude, and full of joy and bliss. 2 This is the merit of earth kasina.

THREE KINDS OF SEPARATION FROM LUST ANDDEMERITORIOUS STATES

Now, there are three kinds 6f. Tepair4ii6hTrbm..lu^,.yfe., pY the body, *ofthe mind and of the defilements.3

- Q. What is separation from (lust of) the body?
- A. (A man) separates himself from desires, goes to a hill or moor anddwells there. What is separation from (lust of) the mind. With pure hearta man reaches a station of distinction. What is separation from (lust of) thedefilements? A man is cut off from kindred, birth and death.

And again, there are five kinds of separation, namely, suppression-separation, part-separation, eradication-separation, tranquillity-separation, emancipation-separation. What is suppression-separation? Namely, practise of the first meditation jhdna, and the suppression of the five hindrances. Whatis part-separation? Namely, practice of penetration-concentration and thesuppression of views. What is eradication-separation? Namely, the practice of the supramundane Path and the cutting down of many defilements. Whatis tranquillity-separation? It is the joy of the time when one acquites the (Noble) Fruit. What is emancipation-separation? Namely, Nibbdna.1

TWO KINDS OF LUST

There are two kinds of lust: the first is lust for things; the second is lustfor pleasure. The lust for heavenly mansions and forms, odours, flavours andtangibles which men love is called lust for things. A man clings to this lustfor things and attends to it.2 The separation from these lusts through mindand through suppression — this is solitude, this is renunciation, this is freedom, this is the unassociated, this is called separation from lust.

ROOTS OF DEMERIT

Q. What is separation from demeritorious states?

A. Namely, there are three kinds of roots of demerit: the first is lust, the second is hatred and the third is ignorance. 3 The sensations, perceptions, formations and consciousness connected with these and the actions of body, speech and mind (connected with these) are called demeritorious states.

According to another tradition, there are three kinds of demerit: the first is natural; the second is associated; the third is causally produced. The thie roots of demerit aie named natural. Sensations, perceptions, formations and consciousness which are connected with these are named associated. The actions of body, speech and mind which are produced are called causally produced. The separation from these three demeritorious states is called renunciation, freedom, the unassociated. This is called separation from demeritorious states. And again, separation from lust means the separation from the hindrance of lust. Separation from demeritorious states is separation from the other hindrances.4

REASONS FOR TREATING LUST AND DEMERIT SEPARATELY

- Q. Since separation from demeritorious states is preached and lust as demeritorious state is already within it, why should separation from lust beseparately preached?
- A. Lust is conquered through emancipation. Every Buddha's teachingcan remove the defilements well. "The separation from lust is renunciation".1This is the teaching of the Buddha. It is like the attainment of the first meditation, jhdna. The thought connected with the perception of lustpartakes of the state of deterioration.

Thereby lust is connected with the defilements. With the dispersion of lust all defilements disperse. Therefore, separately, the separation from lustis preached.

And again, thus is separation from lust: After gaining emancipation, aman accomplishes the separation from lust.

SEPARATION FROM DEMERITORIOUS STATES

Separation from demeritorious states is thus: Through the acquisition of non-hatred, a man fulfils separation from hatred; through the acquisition of the perception of brightness, he fulfils separation from torpor; through theacquisition of nondistraction, he fulfils separation from agitation and anxiety; through the acquisition of non-rigidity, he fulfils separation from rigidity; through the acquisition of fixed meditation, ihdna, he fulfils separation fromuncertainty; through the acquisition of wisdom, he fulfils separation fromignorance; through the acquisition of right thought, he fulfils separation from wrong mindfulness; through the acquisition of bliss, he fulfils separation from non-bliss; through the acquisition of the twin bliss of the mind, he fulfilsseparation from suffering; through the acquisition of all meritorious states, he separates from all demerit. This is just as it is taught in the Tipitaka thus: "He is full of dispassion, therefore he fulfils separation from lust. He is fullof nonhatred and non-delusion, therefore he fulfils separation from demeri-torious states".2

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LUST AND DEMERIT

And again, separation from lust is taught as the emancipation of thebody, and separation from demeritorious states is taught as the emancipation of the mind.

- 1. It. 61: Kdmdnam-etam nissaranarh yad-idam nekkhammam,
- 2. Prof. Bapat in his Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, p.46 traces this passage to Petako-padesa. He quotes from the printed Burmese edition=P.T.S. Ed. 141: Tatthaalobhassa paripuriyd, vivitto hoti kdmehi. Tattha adosassa paripuriya amohassa pari-puriyd ca vivitto hoti pdpakehi akusalehi dhammehi.

And again, separation from lust is taught as the abandoning of discursivesensuous thought, and the separation from demeritorious states is taught as the abandoning of discursive thoughts of hate and harm.

And again, separation from lust is taught as eschewing of sense-pleasures, and separation from demeritorious states is taught as the eschewing ofnegligence thiough indulgence of the body.

And again, separation from lust is taught as the abandoning of the sixfoldpleasures of sense and of delight therein. Separation from demeritorious tates is taught as the abandoning of discursive thoughts of hate and harm, anxiety and suffering. Also it is taught as (1) the mowing down of pleasure, (2) as indifference.

And again, separation from lust is present bliss of relief from sense-pleasures, and separation from demeritorious states is present bliss of relieffrom non-subjection to tribulation.

And again, separation from lust is to get beyond the senseflood entirely. Sepaiation from demeritorious states is the surpassing of all other defilements which cause rebirth in the sense and form (planes).

INITIAL AND SUSTAINED APPLICATION OF THOUGHT

Accompanied by initial application and sustained application of thought: What is initial application of thought? To perceive, to think, to be composed, to excogitate and to aspire rightly, though without understanding, constitute initial application of thought. Such are the qualities of initial application ofthought. Owing to the fulfilment of initial application of thought there is initial application of thought in the first meditation, jhdna. And again, one dwells on the earth kasina and considers the earth sign without end. These constitute initial application of thought. It is comparable to the reciting of discourses by heart.

Q. What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation andnear cause of initial application of thought?

What is sustained application of thought? When one practises sustainedapplication of thought, the mind dwells in non-indifference following thatwhich sustained application of thought investigates. This state is calledsustained application of thought. In association with this one accomplishesthe first meditation, jhdna. The first meditation, jhdna, is (conjoined) withsustained application of thought. And again, the meditator who dwells onthe earth kasina considers many aspects which his mind discerns when workingon the earth sign. This is sustained application of thought.

- 1. This passage is unintelligible.
- Q. What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of sustained application of thought?

A. Reflection following investigation is its salient characteristic. Thebrightening of the mind — this is its function. The seeing that follows initial application of thought — this is its near cause.

INITIAL APPLICATION AND SUSTAINED APPLICATIONOF THOUGHT DISCRIMINATED

Q. What is the difference between initial application and sustainedapplication of thought?

SIMILES OF THE BELL ETC.

A. It is comparable to the striking of a bell. The fust sound is initial application of thought. The reverberations that follow constitute sustained application of thought. And again, it is comparable to the relation of themind to its object. The beginning is initial application of thought; the restis sustained application of thought. And again, to wish for meditation, jhdna, is initial application of thought; to maintain is sustained application of thought. And again, to recall is initial application of thought. And again, the stateof the coarse mind is initial application of thought and the state of the finemind is sustained application of thought. Where there is initial application of thought there is sustained application of thought, but where there is sustainedapplication of thought, there may or may not be initial application of thought. It is taught in the Tipitaka thus: "The mind beginning to dwell on anythingis initial application of thought. If, having acquired initial application ofthought, the mind is still unfixed, it is sustained application of thought". Tosee a person coming in the distance, without knowing whether one is a manor woman and to distinguish the form as male or female is initial application of thought. Thereafter to consider whether he or she is virtuous or not, isrich or poor, noble or humble, is sustained application of thought. Initialapplication of thought wants (a thing), draws it and brings it near. 2 Sustainedapplication of thought keeps it, holds it, follows and goes after it.

SIMILES OF THE BIRD ETC.

Like a bird taking off from a hill flapping its wings, is initial application of thought and the planing movement (of a bird in the sky) is sustained application of thought. The first spreading (of the wings) is initial application ofthought. The spreading (of the wings) when it is continued long is sustained application of thought. With initial application of thought one protects; with sustained application of thought one searches. With initial application of thought one considers; with sustained application of thought one continues to consider. The walker in initial application of thought does not think ofwrong states; the walker in sustained application of thought induces meditation.

Sustained application of thought is like a man who is able, while recitingthe discourses in mind, to gather the meaning. Initial application of thoughtis like a man who sees what he wants to see and after seeing understands itwell. Expertness in etymology and dialectic is initial application of thought; expertness in theory and practice is sustained application of thought; to understand the distinction of things is sustained application of thought. These are the differences between initial application and sustained application of thought.

SOLITUDE

Born of solitude. It is called solitude because of separation from thefive hindrances. This is named solitude. And again, it is the merit-faculty of the form plane. And again, it is taught as the access of the first meditation, jhdna. And again, it is taught as the meditation-thought. What is produced from this is called born of solitude, as the flower which grows on earth is called earth-flower and the flower which grows in water, water-flower.

JOY AND BLISS

Joy and bliss. The mind at this time is greatly glad and at ease. Themind is filled with coolness. This is called joy.

Q. What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of joy and how many kinds of joy are there?

A. Joy: the being filled with joy is its salient characteristic; to gladdenis its function; the overcoming of mental disturbance is its manifestation; buoyancy is its near cause.

How many kinds of joy are there? There are six kinds of joy: one

1. Vis. Mag. 142: Dukanipdtatthakathdyam pana dkdse gacchato mahdsakunassa ubhohipakkhehi vdtarh gahetvd pakkhe sannisiddpetvd gamanam viya drammane cetaso abhiniropanabhdvena pavatto vitakko; (so hi ekaggo hutvd appeti;)

2. Here again Prof. Bapat has traced this passage to the Petaka, 142; Yathd paliko tunhikosajjhdyam karoti evam vitakko, yathd tarn yeva anupassati evam vicdro. Yathd aparihndevam vitakko, yathd parihna evam vicdro. Niruttipatisambhiddyah ca patibhdnapatisam-bhiddyah ca vitakko, dhammapatisambhiddyah ca atthapafisambhiddyan ca vicdro.

proceeds from lust; one, from faith; one, from non-rigidity; one from solitude; one, from concentration and one, from enlightenment factors.

Which, from lust? The joy of passion and the joy that is bound up withthe defilements are called joy that proceeds from lust.1

Which, from faith? The joy of a man of great faith and the joy producedon seeing a potter.2

Which, from non-rigidity? [416] The great joy of the pure-hearted and the virtuous.

Which, from solitude? The joy of the individual who enters the firstmeditation, jhana?

Which, from concentration? The joy of the individual who enters the second meditation, jhana^

Which, from the enlightenment factors? The joy that follows the treading of the supramundane path in the second meditation, jhana.

FIVE KINDS OF JOY

And again, it is taught that there are five kinds of joy, namely, the lesserthrill, momentary joy, streaming joy, swiftly going joy, all-pervading joy.5

The lesser thrill is like the raising of the hairs of the body caused by beingwet with fine rain. Momentary joy suddenly arises and suddenly passes away. It is comparable to showers at night. Streaming joy is like oil that streaksdown the body without spreading. Swiftly going joy is joy that spreads throughthe mind and vanishes not long after. It is comparable to the store of a poorman. All-pervading joy permeating the body, continues. It is like a thunder-cloud that is full of rain. Thus the lesser thrill and momentary joy cause thearising of the access through faith. Streaming joy becoming powerfulcauses the arising of the access. Swiftly going joy dwelling on the mandatecauses the arising of both the good and the bad, and depends on skill. All-pervading joy is produced in the state of fixed meditation.

- Q. What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of bliss? How many kinds of bliss are there? What are the differences between joy and bliss? A. Its function is its salient characteristic. Dependence on an agreeable object—this is its agreeable function. Peaceful persuasionis its manifestation. Tranquillity is its near cause.

FIVE KINDS OF BLISS

How many kinds of bliss are there? There are five kinds of bliss, namely, caused bliss, fundamental bliss, the bliss of solitude, the bliss of non-defilement, the bliss of feeling.

What is called caused bliss? Thus it is according to the Buddha's teaching: "The bliss of virtue lasts long". This is called caused bliss. This is a meritof bliss. Thus is fundamental bliss according to the Buddha's teaching: 'TheEnlightened One produces worldly bliss".1 The bliss of solitude is the develop-ment of concentration-indifference and the destruction of meditation, jhdna. The bliss of non-defilement is according to the Buddha's teaching "highestNibbdna". '2, The bliss of dwelling is generally called the bliss of dwelling. According to this treatise, the bliss of dwelling should be enjoyed.3

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN JOY AND BLISS

What are the differences between joy and bliss? Buoyancy is joy, easeof mind is bliss. Tranquillity of mind is bliss. Concentration of mind is joy. Joy is coarse; bliss is fine. Joy belongs to the formations-group; bliss belongsto the sensation-group. Where there is joy there is bliss, but where there is bliss there may or may not be joy.

FIRST MEDITATION (JHANA)

The first is the basis for producing the second. After accomplishing theacess one enters the first meditation, jhdna. The meditation-factors are initial application of thought and sustained application of thought, joy, blissand unification of mind.

What is meditation, jhdnal It is equalized meditation on an object. It is the plucking out of the five hindrances. It is to meditate and to overcome.

Enters the first meditation, jhdna, and acquires good standing: Havingalready acquired, having already touched, having already proved, one dwells.

And again, thus is separation from lust and demeritorious states: Thefirst meditation, jhdna, is called the special characteristic of separation from theworld of sense. The second meditation, jhdna, has the special characteristic of separation from initial application and sustained application of thought. In solitude are joy and bliss; therefore joy and bliss are called the specialcharacteristics of solitude. 1

And again, thus is separation from lust and demeritorious states: It isto remove well, and to overcome well.

With initial application and sustained application of thought: This issaid to be the characteristic of (the first) meditation, ihdna.

Joy and bliss born of solitude: This state resembles meditation.

Acquires good standing enters and dwells: One acquires the first medita-tion, jhdna, separates from five factors, fulfils five factors, three kinds of good-ness, ten characteristics,2 and accomplishes the twenty-five merits. Withthese merits one can obtain rebirth in the Brahma or the deva world.3

FIVE HINDRANCES

Separation from five factors: This is separation from the five hindrances. What are the five? Sense-desire, ill will, rigidity and torpor, agitation and anxiety, uncertainty.4

Sense-desire: (This refers to) a mind defiled by the dust of passion. Illwill: This is the practice of the ten defilements. Rigidity: This is negligenceof the mind. Torpor: This is the desire for sleep owing to heaviness of thebody. There are three kinds of torpor: the first, proceeds from food; thesecond, from time; the third, from the mind. If it proceeds from the mind, one removes it with meditation. If it proceeds from food and time as in thecase of the Arahant, because it does not proceed from the mind, it is not a hin-drance. If it proceeds

- from food and time, one cuts it with energy as the Venerable Elder Anuruddha taught: "Since first I destroyed the cankersfor fifty-five years, have I not slept the sleep that proceeds from the mind. And during this period for twenty-five years, have I removed the sleep that proceeds from food and time".5

- Q. If torpor is a bodily state, how can it be a mental defilement? A. Thebody is produced only by mental defilement. It is like a man drinking wine andtaking food. Thus should it be known.

Q. If torpor is a bodily state and rigidity is a mental property, how dothese two states unite and become one hindrance? A. These two states haveone object and one function. What are called torpor and rigidity become one. Agitation is non-tranquillity of mind; anxiety is unsteadiness of mind; the characteristics of these are equal. Therefore they become one hindrance. Uncertainty is the clinging of the mind to diverse objects. There are fourkinds of uncertainty: the first is a hindrance to serenity, 1 the second, to insight, 2the third, to both and the fourth, to things non-doctrinal.

Here, is serenity won through the ending of these uncertainties, or is itpossible or not to win tranquillity while having these uncertainties or theuncertainty concerning the self? If one has that uncertainty, it is called ahindrance to serenity; uncertainty concerning the Four Noble Truths andthe three worlds is called a hindrance to insight; uncertainty concerning theBuddha, the Law and the Community of Bhikkhus is called a hindrance toboth. Uncertainty concerning things like country, town, road, name of manor woman is called hindrance to things non-doctrinal. Uncertainty concerningthe Discourses is a hindrance to solitude. Thus should these be understood. What is the meaning of hindrance? Hindrance to vehicle;3 superposing, defilement, fetter. These are obvious.

Q. There are many fetters such as those which cover the defilements, and others. They are fetters. Then, why are only five hindrances taught?

A. Because these five include all. And again, the attachment to sense-desires includes all attachment to passion; all demeritorious states (of hatred) are included in the attachment to anger; and all demeritorious states of infatu-ation are included in the attachment to rigidity and torpor, agitation andanxiety and uncertainty. Thus all defilements are included in the attachment to the five hindrances. Because of this the five hindrances are taught.

FIVE FACTORS

Five factors: These are fulfilled (through the fulfilment of) initial and sustained application of thought, joy, bliss, and unification of mind.

- Q. It is said that the five factors together constitute the first meditation, jhdna. Therefore, it cannot be said that there is a meditation (jhdna) outside the five factors. If there is a meditation, jhdna, outside the five factors, howcan it be said that the first meditation, jhdna, consists of the five factors?
- 1. Samatha (transliteration). 2. Vipassand (transliteration).
- 3. Yana.

SIMILES OF CHARIOT AND ARMY

A. By means of the meditation, jhdna, factors, meditation (jhdna) isfulfilled. There is no meditation, jhdna, separate from meditation (jhdna)factors. Such meditation, jhdna, there is not. One can speak of a chariotbecause of all the parts of a chariot. There is no chariot outside the parts. Owing to all the parts of an army, one can speak of an army. There is noarmy separate from the parts. Thus owing to meditation (jhdna) factors, it is called meditation, jhdna. There is no meditation, jhdna, separate from themeditation (jhdna) factors. The factors combined are named meditation, jhdna. Separately, they are named factors. It is taught that the object iscalled meditation, jhdna, and the attributes, factors. By way of clan they are meditation, jhdna. By way of caste they are factors.

- Q. In spite of there being mindfulness, energy and others, why are onlyfive factors taught?
- A. Because these five through combination accomplish meditation, jhdna.
- Q. What are the characteristics of combination?

A. Initial application of thought follows the object of mind and acquiresfixed meditation. Sustained application of thought goes together with the observing mind. When initial and sustained application of thought areunmixed, they cause the arising of skilfulness. If one is skilful, one producesjoy and bliss. If one is skilful, one can produce the heart of joy, and afterincreasing that, produce the heart of bliss. With these four qualities themind becomes peaceful. If the mind becomes peaceful, it acquires concentration. These are called the characteristics of combination. Thus, thesefive, through combination, accomplish (meditation, jhdna).

And again, the hindrances are overcome by the perfection of the five. The overcoming of the first hindrance is the first meditation, jhdna. Thusthe overcoming of the five hindrances results in five meditations, jhdnas. Inthe first meditation, jhdna, initial application of thought is the special factor; through initial application of thought lust is abandoned. If initial application of thought enters into right concentration, the other factors are also awakened. Among the five factors, sustained application of thought is the beginning ofthe second meditation; joy, of the third meditation; bliss, of the fourth; and unification of mind, of the fifth. These are the special factors of themeditations, jhdnas.

And again, with the overcoming of the five hindrances, the five are fulfilled, as it is taught in the Tipitaka: "Unification of mind is the overcoming of sensuous desire, joy is the overcoming of anger, initial application of thought

- 1. S. I, 135: Yatha hi angasambhdrd hoti saddo ratho iti.
- 2. Sp. I, 146: Yatha pana sarathd sapattisend ti vutte senangesu eva send eva send samutti—evam idha pancasu angesu yeva jhdnasammuti veditabbd.

is the overcoming of rigidity and torpor, bliss is the overcoming of agitation and anxiety, sustained application of thought is the overcoming of uncer-tainty".1 Thus, through the overcoming of the hindrances, the five arefulfilled.

- Q. Meditating on the earth kasina sign, [417] how does the yogin causethe arising of joy and bliss?
- A. The earth kasina does not bring joy and bliss. They (joy and bliss)naturally follow the separation from the five hindrances. Thus the son oftruth2 causes the arising of joy and bliss.
- Q. If that be so, why does the son of truth not arouse joy and bliss in he fourth meditation, jhdnal
- A. Because it is not a suitable state, and because he removes joy andbliss in the fourth meditation, jhdna. And again because of his having skilfullyrooted out the joy and bliss which he caused to arise at first, and because, he, seeing the tribulation of bliss, forsakes it, and attaches himself to deep tran-quillity. For these reasons, he does not cause the arising of joy and bliss.

THREE KINDS OF GOODNESS

The three kinds of goodness: These are the initial, medial and final stagesof goodness. Purity of practice is the initial stage; the increase of equanimity is the medial stage; rejoicing is the final stage.3 What is purity of practice? It is the foundation of all goodness. What is the increase of equanimity? It is fixed meditation. What is rejoicing? It, is reflection. 1 Thus there are three kinds of goodness in the first meditation, jhdna.

TEN CHARACTERISTICS

Fulfilment of the ten characteristics: These comprise the three charac-teristics of the purity of practice, the three characteristics of the increase of equanimity and the four characteristics of rejoicing. 5 What are the three characteristics of the purity of practice? A. The mind purifies itself of that hindrance to the meditation, jhdna. Because of purity, the mind acquires the middle sign of serenity, and from that *hc mind leaps forward. These are called the three characteristics of the purity of practice.

- Q. What are the three characteristics of the increase of equanimity?
- 1. Vis. Mag. 141: Tathd hi samddhi kdmacchandassa patipakkho, piti vydpddassa, vitakkothinamiddhassa, sukkham uddhacca-kukkuccassa, vicdro vicikicchdyd ti Petake vuttarh.

5. Cp.Ibid. 147. ff.

A. If the mind is pure, it fulfils equanimity; if it attains to solitude, itfulfils equanimity; if it dwells on one object, it fulfils equanimity. These arecalled the three characteristics. Q. What are the four characteristics ofrejoicing? A. Among these ten characteristics, there is rejoicing by reason of the gradual arising of the states produced; there is rejoicing by reason ofthe functions of the faculties becoming one; there is rejoicing by reason ofthe possession of energy; and there is rejoicing by reason of devotion (tothese states). These are called the four characteristics. Thus, in the firstmeditation, ihdna, the ten characteristics are fulfilled.

TWENTY-FIVE BENEFITS

Twenty-five benefits: In the first meditation, initial and sustained application of thought, joy, bliss and unification of mind are accomplished. Faith, energy, mindfulness, concentration and wisdom are accomplished. The initial, medial and final stages (of goodness) are accomplished....x

accomplished. Freedom is accomplished. Purity is accomplished, and thesuper-excellent purity is accomplished. Thus a man dwells together withthe twenty-five benefits. These are the excellent stations of the deities. They are produced from tranquillity and are called the abodes of joy and bliss. Insuch excellent abodes surpassing the human do the deities.dwell... Hence the Blessed One, the Buddha* declared to the bhikkhus:

SIMILE OF THE BATH-ATTENDANT

"Just as a skilful bath-attendant or his apprentice heaps up bath-powderin a lovely copper vessel, adds water to it, kneads it, and makes it round, saturating it so that it adheres and does not scatter, just so a bhikkhu, havingcalmed his body and mind, produces joy and bliss and lets it evenly moistenand saturate (him) in such a way that there is no part of him that is not saturated with it. There is no place in his body or mind that is not saturated with joy and bliss born of solitude".5 Like the skilful bath-attendant or hisapprentice is the yogin. The copper vessel is the kasina sign. Thus it should be known.

- Q. What is the kasina sign? A. As the copper vessel contains the hard
- 1—4. These terms are not clear, Prof. Bapat has rendered them as: sankhepa-sangaha, sangaha, anunaya and sevana respectively at p. 49, Vim. Mag. and Vis. Mag.
- 5. D.I, 74 and A. III, 25: Seyyathdpi bhikkhave dakkho nahdpako vd nahdpakantevdsi vd kam-sathdle nahdniyacuwidni dkiritvd udakena paripphosakam paripphosakarh sanneyya, sd'ssanahdniyapindi snehdnugatd snehaparetd santarahdhird phutd snehena na ca paggharati,evam eva kho bhikkhave bhikkhu imam eva kdyam vivekajena pitisukhena abhisandetiparisandeti paripureti parippharati, ndssa kind sabbdvato kdyassa vivekajena pitisukhenaapphutam hoti.

bath-powder which is made fine and bright, so the kasina sign contains the hard(earth) out of which one produces joy which is soft and pure and thereforebright. Because the mind and the mental properties fill the object, the coppervessel is said to be like the kasina sign. Mind and the mental properties are like the bath-powder. Thus it should be understood.

Q. Why is the bath-powder likened to the mind and the mental properties?

A. As bath-powder, owing to coarseness, does not adhere and is scattered by the wind, so the mind and mental properties when they are separated from joy and bliss, become coarse. And if they are separated from concentration they do not adhere and are scattered by the winds of the five hindrances. There-fore it is said that the bath-powder is like the mind and mental properties. What is comparable to water? Namely, joy and bliss and concentration. Aswater moistens, renders malleable, makes it round, so joy and bliss moistenand render malleable the mind and mental properties, and produce concentration. Therefore water is like joy and bliss. Like the stirring of thebath-powder with water are initial and sustained application of thought. Thus they should be understood.

Q. What is likened to the rounded thing?

A. Namely, initial and sustained application of thought. As a skilful bath-attendant puts the bath-powder into the copper vessel, mixes it with water, makes it round with his hand, and having made it round, he rounds it furtherwith more wet powder and puts it into the vessel without scattering, so does theyogin place his mind and mental properties in the object and produce tranquillitywell. In the first meditation, jhdna, joy and bliss should be regarded as water, initial and sustained application of thought as the hand that stirs and makesit (the powder) round. Thus one is able to produce tranquillity well. Themind and mental properties become rounded with joy and bliss and are not cattered because of the mind being kept on the object of meditation. Thusthe rounded bath-powder is like initial and sustained application of thought. Just as the bathpowder is moistened thoroughly and just as it, through adhering, does not scatter, so the yogin in the first meditation, ihdna, is filled with joyfrom head to foot and from foot to skull, skin and hair, and dwells withoutfalling. Thus one dwells in the realm of Brahma.

Q. Joy and bliss are called formless states. How then can they fill thebody?

A. Name depends on form. Form depends on name. Therefore, ifname is full of joy, form also is full of joy. If name is full of bliss, form also isfull of bliss. And again, form that is bliss-produced, causes calm of body, and owing to the bliss of form the entire body is tranquillized. Thus there is no contradiction.

THREE KINDS OF REBIRTH

The merit which can produce rebirth in the world of Brahma is thus; In the first meditation, jhdna, there are three kinds: lower, middling and upper. When a man considers the special means, but does not remove the five hind-rances well and does not reach the state of freedom, it is called lowermeditation, jhdna. When a man considers the special means and removes the five hindrances, but does not reach the state of freedom, it is called middlingmeditation, jhdna. When a man considers the special means, removes thehindrances well and reaches the state of freedom, it is called higher medi-tation, jhdna. If a yogin attains to the lower first meditation, jhdna, afterhis death he will join the retinue of Brahma, and his life-span will be a third an aeon; if he practises the middling first meditation, ihdna, he will, afterhis death, be reborn as a chief Brahma, and his life-span will be half an aeon; if he practises the higher first meditation, jhdna, he will be reborn as a GreatBrahma, and his life-span will be one aeon.1

Subjects of Meditation 97

MEDITATION WHICH PARTAKES OF DETERIORATION, STABILITY, DISTINCTION AND PENETRATION

There are four kinds of men who acquire the merit of rebirth in the worldof Brahma. A man partakes of deterioration, a man partakes of stability, aman partakes of distinction and a man partakes of penetration.2

A man of dull faculties causes the arising of meditation, jhdna, but isheedless. And again, through two kinds of conduct in meditation, jhdna, aman partakes of deterioration:— (1) Owing to the denseness of the encom-passing impurities3, a man has not sufficient energy to destroy the evildiscursive thinking which he caused to arise in the past. Thus, owing to thedenseness of the encompassing impurities, he deteriorates. (2) Or, a manwho is desirous of meditation, jhdna, is given to talk, addicted to sleep, anddoes not endeavour. Hence he deteriorates.

Q. Who falls back and how?

A. There is an opinion that if a man becomes impure of mind, he willfall back. And again, there is an opinion: Through slow pollution of themind, one falls back. And again, there is another opinion: If a man losesserenity, he falls back. And there is yet another opinion: If a man does not practise for a long time on the sign he caused to arise in the past, he becomes incapable of making it to arise as he likes and does not attain to concentration. So, he falls back. If a man of dull faculties dwells heedfully, he acquires therecollectedness of that state and partakes of stability in meditation, jhdna.

If a man of keen faculties dwells heedfully, he can acquire facility in the secondmeditation, jhdna, which has no initial application of thought. If he develops further, he partakes of distinction in meditation, jhdna. If a man of keen faculties dwells heedfully, he can attain to insight with ease. Dispelling the thoughts of agitation and anxiety, and developing further, he, through absence of passion, partakes of penetration in meditation, jhdna.

Section Two

Here I show how to get the second meditation, jhdna. I consider the tribu-lation of the first meditation, jhdna, and the benefits of the second meditation, jhdna}

THE SIMILE OF THE YOUNG COW

Now, the yogin who practises the first meditation, jhdna, with facilitywishes to cause the arising of the second meditation, ihdna. Why? If theyogin is not able to practise the first meditation, jhdna, with facility, thoughhe wishes to remove initial and sustained application of thought and attain to the second meditation, jhdna, he falls back and is not able to enter the second meditation, jhdna. Further, he cannot re-enter the first meditation, jhdna. Hence the Blessed One taught the simile of the young mountain cow which, being foolish, knows not good pasturage, and which, though inexperienced, wanders to a far off precipitous place. She thinks: "How, if I were to enterthe place I never entered before, eat the grass I never ate before and drink thewater I never drank before"? Without planting her fore leg firmly, she raisesher hind leg, becomes restless and is not able to go forwaid. And not beingable to enter the place she never entered before, eat the grass she never ate before, drink the water she never drank before, she thinks thus: "I cannot go forward. I must return to the old pasturage".2

- 2. This passage does not occur in the Chinese Ekottara Agama. A. IV, 418: Seyyathdpi bhikkhave gdvi pabbateyyd bald avyatta akhettahnu akusald visame pabbate caritum,tassa evam assa 'yan nunaham agatapubban ceva disarh gaccheyyani, akhaditapubbani

There is a bhikkhu. He has not yet attained (meditation, jhdna). Hedoes not know a subject of meditation.1 He has not yet separated himselffrom lust and does not know how to enter the first meditation, jhdna. He doesnot practise this teaching nor study it, but thinks thus: "How, if I were toenter the second meditation, jhdna, and rid myself of initial and sustainedapplication of thought"? Being not at ease, he again thinks: "I cannot enterthe second meditation, jhdna, and I cannot rid myself of initial and sustainedapplication of thought. I must retire, (from this), enter the first meditation, jhdna, and separate myself from lust". This foolish bhikkhu is as ignorantand inexperienced as the young mountain cow. Therefore, he should practisethe first meditation, jhdna. He should make the mind free (from lust).

ENTRANCE INTO THE SECOND MEDITATION, JHANA

Before and after his meal, in the first and in the last watches of the night, according to his wish, a bhikkhu practises adverting, entering, establishing, rising and reflecting. If he enters (the meditation, jhdna,) often and goes out of it often and acquires facility in the practice of the first meditation, jhdna, he can acquire the bliss of facility, cause the arising of the second meditation, jhdna, and surpass the first meditation, jhdna. And again he thinks thus: "This first meditation, jhdna, is coarse; the second meditation, jhdna, is fine". And he sees the tribulations of the first and the merits of the second meditation, jhdna.

Q. What are the tribulations of the first meditation, jhdnal

A. The hindrances as the near enemy (of this meditation, jhdna,) stirup initial and sustained application of thought and cause negligence of bodyand disturbance of mind. Thereby the concentration becomes coarse andincapable of producing higher knowledge. Therefore, one does not relishthe first meditation, jhdna, or partake of distinction in it. These are thetribulations of the first meditation, jhdna? The merits of the second medita-tion, jhdna, consist in the overcoming of these. Thus we have seen the tribula-tions of the first meditation, jhdna, and the merits of the second.

Here the mind separates itself from the first meditation, jhdna, and takingthe kasina sign as the object of the second meditation, jhdna, dwells on it. The mind, dissociated from initial and sustained application of thought, at ease in joy and bliss born of concentration, attains (to the second meditation,jhdna). If the yogin strives, he accomplishes the destruction of initial and sustained application of thought quickly. He is at ease in joy and bliss born of concentration and cause the mind to abide tranquilly.

Here I show the four factors of the second meditation, jhdna.

That yogin "attains to and dwells in the second meditation, jhdna, which, through the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought, develops internal tranquillity and the state of mind-predominance, is without initial and sustained application of thought, born of concentration, full of joy and bliss". 1 This is the merit of the earth kasina. The stilling of initial and sustained application of thought is the stilling of initial and sustained application ofthought through clear understanding. And also it is named ending.

Q. What is "the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought"?

A. It is the destruction of the tribulations of initial and sustained application of thought pertaining to the first meditation, jhdna. It is the destruction of the roots of all initial and sustained application of thought. It is the co-destruction of the tribulations of initial and sustained application of thought, roots of initial and sustained application of thought, and initial and sustained application of thought themselves. This is "the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought".

And again, after separating himself from the lower coarse meditation, jhdna, the yogin attains to the upper fine meditation, jhdna, and causes it(the lower) to perish.

"Internal": what is one's own is named "internal". There are three kindsin what is internal: the first is internal in the sense of personal; the second isinternal concentration; the third is internal object.

What is "internal in the sense of personal"? The six internal sense spheres. "Internal concentration": The contemplation on one's own bodily state is called "internal concentration". The thought which is inward (subjective), does not go outwards, and the nature of which is to understand is called "internal object". In this treatise "internal in the sense of personal" means "to be in a state of blissfulness".

Faith,2 right faith and the faith which develops meditation, jhdna, are called "tranquillity". In internal concentration this is internal tranquillity.

What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of internal tranquillity? Non-disburbance is the salient characteristic internal tranquillity. Repose is its function. Non-defilement is its mani-festation. Initial and sustained application of thought are its near cause.

1. A. I, 53: Vitakka-vicdrdnam vupasamd ajjhattam sampasddanam cetaso ekodibhdvarhavitakkarh avicdram samddhijam pitisukkarh dutiyajjhdnam upasampajja viharati.

2. Saddhd.

"Develops the state of mind-predominance": the dwelling of the mindin right concentration is called the development of the state of mind-predomi-nance. What is the meaning of "development of the state of mind-predomi-nance"? "Mind" means mentality. "Predominance" is a name for mindfulness. "State" has the same meaning as that of "natural state" which is taught inthe science of sound. "State" means nature. The stilling of initial and sustained application of thought and the arousing of the state of mind-predominance through unification of mind is called "the development of the state of mind-predominance".

What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of 'the state of mind-predominance'?

Pure righteousness is its salient characteristic; repose is its function; unruffledness is its manifestation; and the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought is its near cause.

Q. (It is said that the yogin) "develops internal tranquillity and the state of mind-predominance". If that be so, why are these not included in the first meditation, jhdnal

A. In the first meditation, jhdna, owing to the waves of initial andsustained application of thought, the mind is muddied.

"Internal tranquillity and the state of mind-predominance": just as, owing to waves, water becoming turbid, does not clearly reflect any image, cast on it, just so in the first meditation, jhdna, because of turbidity due to the movement of the waves of initial and sustained application of thought, internal tranquillity and the state of mind-predominance are not clear. Therefore, they are not included in the first meditation, jhdna.

'Without initial and sustained application of thought": After the stilling of initial application of thought, there is no initial application of thought. After the stilling of sustained application of thought, there is no sustainedapplication of thought.

Q. The stilling of initial and sustained application of thought is the state that is without initial and sustained application of thought. Are theretwo kinds of ending of initial and sustained application of thought? Whyare two kinds taught?

A. The stilling of initial and sustained application of thought develops internal tranquillity. The state of mind-predominance becomes the cause of the state that is without initial and sustained application of thought, owing to the appearance of the excellent characteristic of joy and bliss which is bornof solitude.

And again, the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought isthus: Seeing through initial and sustained application of thought, the tribula-tion of initial and sustained application of thought, he abandons them. The state that is without initial and sustained application of thought is the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought of the form element.

And again, in what is without initial and sustained application of thoughtthere are two divisions: the first is "without initial and sustained applicationof thought" that is not due to the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought "without initial and sustained application ofthought" that is due to the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought. Thus, without the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought, the five branches of higher knowledge and the third meditation, jhdna, are without initial and sustained application of thought. The second meditation, jhdna, is without initial and sustained application of thought through skilfulseclusion and the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought. These are the two divisions.

"Born of concentration": This refers to concentration. The first medi-tation, jhdna, comes from that consciousness and the second meditation, jhdna, comes from the first meditation, jhdna. And again, "concentration" means that the second meditation, jhdna, comes together with unification of mind.

- "Joy and bliss born of concentration": Joy and bliss have already been expounded.
- "The second meditation, jhdna": It is called so because it follows the first.
- "Attains to the second meditation, jhdna", means that he enters the secondmeditation, jhdna.
- "Meditation, jhdna": Internal tranquillity, joy and bliss and unification of mind are called "meditation, jhdna".
- "Attains to and dwells in the second meditation, jhdna": He acquires the second meditation, jhdna, which is free from two factors, endowed with two factors, three kinds of goodness and ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-three merits. This is the heavenly abode. This is merit. This is birth in the Abode of Resplendence.1 This has been expounded at lengthbefore.

SIMILE OF THE POOL OF WATER

"Heavenly abode" means that he dwells in a plane surpassing the humanbecause of joy and bliss that proceed from concentration. Therefore it is called "heavenly abode". Hence the Blessed One taught the bhikkhus thus:

1. A.II, 127: Puna ca pararh bhikkhave idtf ekacco puggalo vitakkavicdrdnam viipasamdajjhattam sampasado cetsao ekodibhdvam avitakkam avicdram samddhijam pitisukham dutiyajjhdnam upasampajja viharati. So tad assddeti tabbahulavihdri apirihino kdlarh kurumdno Abhassardnam devdnarh sahavyatam uppajjati.

"As in a pool of water with a spring and into which no water flows from the four directions, nor rain descends, the water wells up cool and pure from within, saturates the entire pool and over-flowing spreads afar, even so [419]joy and bliss, cool and pure, welling up from concentration saturates everypart of the body of a bhikkhu. Thus joy which is produced from concentration saturates the body and the mind".1

A yogin entering the second meditation, jhdna, should consider his bodyin the light of this simile of the pool with water welling up from within. Theabsence of any stream flowing from any of the four directions is to be under-stood as the stilling of initial and sustained application of thought. As thewater welling up from within fills the pool without causing waves to arise in it,[419] so joy and bliss springing from concentration fills the mental and bodilyfactors and there is no disturbance of mind. As water that is cold cools thebody, so joy and bliss born of concentration causes all the mental and bodilyfactors to be at ease.

Thus is the reward of the practice of concentration: One is reborn in the Abode of Resplendence. There are three kinds of rewards pertaining to thethree divisions of the second meditaton, jhdna: lower, middling and higher. The yogin who practises the lower meditation, jhdna, will, after his death, bereborn in the Abode of Lesser Light. His life-span will be two aeons. 2 If hepractises the middling meditation, jhdna, he will, after his death, be reborn in the Abode of Measureless Light. His life-span will be four aeons. 3 If he practises the higher meditation, jhdna, he will, after his death, be reborn in the Abode of Resplendence and his life-span will be eight aeons. 4

THE THIRD MEDITATION, JHANA

/ consider the tribulations of the second meditation, jhdna.

Now a yogin having practised the second meditation, jhdna, and acquiredfacility therein thinks: "The second meditation, jhdna, is coarse; the thirdmeditation, jhdna, is fine". Knowing the tribulations of the second meditation, jhdna, and seeing the merits of the third meditation, jhdna, he causes thethird meditation, jhdna, to arise.

What are the tribulations of the second meditation, jhdna! This concen-tration has initial and sustained application of thought as its near enemy. This meditation, jhdna, being accompanied by joy, is coarse. The mind exults in the possession of joy and is not able to arouse other (higher) meditation(jhdna) factors. To be attached to joy is a fault. If he understands thesefaults, he becomes fault-free. One is not able to acquire supernormal power; or one gains the second meditation, jhdna, and is not able to partake of distinction. Thus should one understand the tribulations of the second meditation, jhdna. The merits of the third meditation, jhdna, lie in the overcoming of these (tribulations). If one considers the tribulations of the second meditation, jhdna, and the merits of the third, he can remove joy through meditation, jhdna, on the kasina sign and be at ease because of freedom from joy. Con-sidering thus he can in no long time attain to fixed meditation, jhdna, throughbliss free from joy.

/ will elucidate the factors of the third meditation, jhdna.

That yogin "through the absence of the desire for joy, abides in equanimity, mindful and completely conscious, experiencing in the body that bliss of whichthe Noble Ones say: "Endowed with equanimity and mindfulness, and com-pletely conscious, he abides in bliss. So he abides in the attainment of thethird meditation, jhdna".1

"Through absence of desire for joy": Joy has already been explained."Absence of desire": Removing joy one dwells in equanimity. What is "equanimity"? Equipoise, protection, nonretreating, non-advancing, serenity and evenness of mind are called "equanimity". There are eight kinds of equanimity: equanimity of feeling, of effort, of insight, of the enlightenmentfactors, of the immeasurable states, of the six members (senses), of the medita-tion (jhdna) factors and of purity2. The equanimity of feeling is the equanimity of the five faculties. Reflection on the sign of equanimity from time to time—this is the equanimity of effort. If, saying, "I will remove the cause of suffering", one attains to equanimity, it is called the equanimity of insight. The practising of the enlightenment factors is the equanimity of the enlightenment factors. Kindness, compassion, appreciative joy and equipoise — these are called the equanimity of the immeasurable states.

If, on seeing a form, one, being indifferent, is neither glad nor sad, it is called the equanimity of the six members. The dwelling in the attainment of

- 1. A.I, 53: Pitiyd ca virdgd upekkhako ca viharati sato ca sampajdno sukhah ca kdyenapatisamvedeti yan tarn ariyd dcikkhanti upekkhako satimd sukha-vhdri ti tatiyajjhdnamupasampajja viharati.
- 2. Vedanupekkhd, viriyupekkhd, vipassanupekkhd, bojjhangupekkhd, appamdnupekkhd, cha/an-gupekkhd, jhdnupekkhd, pdrisuddhupekkhd, Cp. Vis. Mag. 160 where brahmavihdrupekkhdis substituted for appamdnupekkhd.

equanimity because of dispassion is called the equanimity of the meditation(jhdna) factors. Equanimity-mindfulness purity is the equanimity of purity.

And again, there are three kinds of equanimity: equanimity regarded as avehicle of concentration; regarded as the state of little activity; and regarded as non-action. The equalized skilfulness that is present in all meditations, jhdnas, and is neither hasty nor slow is "equanimity considered as a vehicle ofconcentration". This inferior equanimity is near the second meditation, jhdna, and removes exultation of mind. If the mind is not active, it is called "equani-mity regarded as a state of little activity". This equanimity is near the thirdmeditation, jhdna, and removes all exultation of mind. If one's mind is notactively concerned with objects, through imperturbability of thought and body, it is called "equanimity regarded as non-action". This equanimity is near thefourth meditation, jhdna.

What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and near causeof equanimity? Equipoise is its salient characteristic. Non-attachment isits function. Non-action is its manifestation. Dispassion is its near cause.

Q. Why is it taught that equanimity is in this meditation, jhdna, and notin the second and the first meditations, jhdnas 1

A. In the second and the first meditations, jhdnas, the mind, being fullof joy, does not become detached. Because of joy and bliss, exultation ofmind is not removed. Therefore, this equanimity is not taught as being presentin the second and the first meditations, jhdnas. Owing to absence of joy andbliss, owing to dispassion and owing to the removal of the process of combi-nation in the third meditation, jhdna, this meditation (jhdna) factor arises.Because of the mastering of the meditation (jhdna) factors, it is said "abidesin equanimity, mindful and completely conscious".

Q. What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of "mindfulness"?

A. Recollectedness is its salient characteristic; non-forgetting is its function; protection is its manifestation; and the four foundations of mind-fulness are it near cause.

What is it to be "completely conscious"? To be conscious is to be aware. It is to be completely conscious rightly. There are four kinds in being completely conscious rightly. I They are the being completely conscious of oneself; the being completely conscious of one's distinctive mark; the being completely conscious undeludedly; the being completely conscious basically. Here, to becompletely conscious of the four postures, is to be completely conscious of oneself.

Entering solitude is to be completely conscious of one's distinctivemark. To know the eight worldly conditions2 is to be completely conscious

1. Cp. D.- a. I, 184: Sdtthaka-sampajahham sappdya-sampajannam gocara-sampajanhamasammoha-sampajahnan ti catubbidham sampajannam.

2. Affha loka-dhammd.

undeludedly. To dwell on the object of concentration is to be completely conscious basically. In this treatise ("completely conscious" in the sense of) "being completely conscious basically" has been taken.

What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and near causeof the being "completely conscious"? Non-bewilderment is its salient charac-teristic; decision is its function; investigation of states is its manifestation; toconsider rightly is its near cause.

Q. Should one be mindful and completely conscious in all places?

A. If a man is not mindful and is not completely conscious he is not evenable to cause the arising of the access stage of meditation, jhdna.

Q. Why is it taught in the third meditation, jhdna and not in the secondand the first meditations, jhdnasl

A. Here, joy and all other coarse meditation (jhdna) factors are stilled. Concentration becomes fine, enters a place of fineness, and through the state ofbeing completely conscious remains firm in the third meditation, jhdna. Thushe gains facility in the exercise of the meditation (jhdna) factors.

Again, the foolish mind longs for happiness and easily turns to the bliss ofthis meditation, jhdna, for its exceedingly sweet and named "alluring". Thus(through mindfulness and through the state of being completely conscious)one is able to remove joy and acquires facility in this meditation, jhdna.

SIMILE OF THE CALF

Again, joy and bliss are intimate. So, understanding mindfulness and the state of being completely conscious one dwells on the object in bliss separate from joy. It is like a calf following its mother. Unless someone holds itback by the ears, it will follow its mother with its head against her side. Oneunderstands bliss that is separate from joy, conjoined with mindfulness, and the state of being completely conscious, and dwells on the object of concentration. 10n the contrary, if one does not understand, one re-enters joy and partakes ofdeterioration in concentration. For the acquiring of mastery over the medita-tion (jhdna) factors, mindfulness and the state of being completely consciousare taught. Thus equanimity, mindfulness and the state of being completely conscious are accomplished. Therefore, it is said "abides in equanimity, mindful and completely conscious, experiencing in the body that bliss".

- Q. What is mental bliss?
- A. Bliss experienced in mind is mental bliss. It comes from mentalcontact. This is the meaning of mental bliss. This is called "bliss".
- Q. What is "body"? The perception-group, formations-group and cons-ciousness-group these are called "body".
- 1. Cp. Vis. Mag. 163: Yathd dhenupago vaccho dhenuto apanito arakkhiyamdno punad-evadhenum upagacchati. This simile, common to both the Vis. Mag and the Vim. Mag.,has not been traced to its source.
- "Experiencing in the body that bliss" means to acquire ease of body.
- Q. Then, why is it said that there is no joy in this bliss and that it is notexperienced in the body?
- A. In the third meditation, jhdna, the faculty of bliss is removed. This is according to the teaching of the Blessed One which says, that in the thirdmeditation, jhdna, the faculty of bliss is removed.
- "That bliss of which the Noble Ones say": "Noble Ones" means the Buddha and his disciples. "Say" means to reveal, establish, explain, pointout. Thus is "that bliss of which the Noble Ones say" to be known.

Q. Why do the Noble Ones praise this state of body and not any other?

A. In the third meditation, jhdna, although the yogin can easily dwellin pleasing bliss, he does not hold to bliss. The Noble Ones dwell lookingbeyond bliss. This is an accomplishment of the Noble Ones. Therefore,the Noble Ones praise this excellent meditation, jhdna.

"Endowed with equanimity and mindfulness, he abides in bliss": Equani-mity, mindfulness and bliss have already been explained.

"Abides in the attainment of the third meditation, jhdna": It is called "third" because of the second. The third meditation, jhdna, comprises equani-mity, mindfulness, the state of being completely conscious, bliss and unification of mind. The accomplishment of these is called (the third) meditation, jhdna. "Abides in the attainment" means that one who acquires the third meditation, jhdna, separates from one factor, fulfils five factors, three kinds of goodness, ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two merits.

To dwell in the heaven world means to be born in the Abode of All Lustre. IIt is to be understood in the same way as it was taught in the first meditation, jhdna. "To dwell in the heaven world" is to dwell in that pleasant dwellingwhich is free from joy. "To dwell in the heaven world" is to dwell in amanner surpassing humans.

SIMILE OF THE LOTUS POND

Hence, the Buddha taught the bhikkhu thus: "Just as in a pond of blueand white lotuses, the blue, red and white lotuses are born, grow and standin the water and are immersed in the cold water from root to neck, so thisbody is filled and saturated with bliss that is free from joy".2 As the blue,red and white lotuses stand in the water, so he abides in the third meditation,

jhdna. His body should be known thus: as the lotuses born in the water [420] are immersed in the water from root to neck, so he abides in the third medi-tation, jhdna, with body and mind filled and saturated with bliss that is freefrom joy.

Thus is the reward of the practice of concentration: One is reborn in the Abode of the All Lustrous. There are three kinds of rewards pertaining to the three divisions of the third meditation, jhdna, namely: higher, middling and lower. If a yogin practises the lower meditation, jhdna, he will, after hisdeath, be reborn in the Abode of Lesser Lustre. His lifespan will be sixteen acons. If he practises the middling meditation, jhdna, he will, after his death, be reborn in the Abode of Measureless Lustre. His life-span will be thirty-two acons. If he practises the higher meditation, he will be reborn in the Abode of All Lustre. His life-span will be sixty-four acons 1.

THE FOURTH MEDITATION, JHANA

/ consider the tribulations of the third meditation, jhdna.

Now, a yogin, having practised the third meditation, jhdna, and acquiredfacility therein, wishes to cause the arising of the fourth meditation, jhdna, andto transcend the third meditation, jhdna. (He thinks), "The third is coarse. The fourth is fine". He sees the tribulations of the third meditation, jhdna, and the merits of the fourth meditation, jhdna. What are the tribulations ofthe third meditation, jhdna? Joy is the hear enemy. Right concentrationwith bliss is coarse. So he is not able to acquire supernormal power. Thethird meditation, jhdna, does not partake of distinction. Thus he sees thetribulations of the third meditation, jhdna. The merits of the fourth meditation, jhdna, consist in the over-coming of these (tribulations).

Thus the yogin, on seeing the tribulations of the third meditation, jhdna, and the merits of the fourth meditation, jhdna, meditates on the kasina signand removes bliss at once. After removing it he can dwell with the mind of equanimity. Thus meditating his mind quickly attains to fixed meditation, jhdna, owing to equanimity.

/ will elucidate the factors of the fourth meditation, jhdna.

That yogin, "having abandoned pleasure and pain, leaving behind formerjoy and grief, painless, pleasureless, in the purity of equanimity-mindfulness, accomplishes the fourth meditation, jhdna, and dwells".1 This is a merit ofthe earth kasina.

"Having abandoned pleasure": This is the abandoning of bodily pleasure. Having abandoned "pain": This is the abandoning of bodily pain. "Leavingbehind former joy and giief": Joy is the bliss of the mental properties. 2 This is the leaving behind of these.

Q. It is said, "having abandoned pleasure and pain, leaving behindgrief". Where were these abandoned and left behind? A. They wereabandoned and left behind at the access moments of the meditation, jhdna. The Buddha taught the removal of pain in this fourth meditation, jhdna..Q. Where does the faculty of pain that has arisen cease entirely? A. TheBuddha taught the bhikkhus thus: "In the first meditation, jhdna, separation from sense-desires is fulfilled. There the faculty of pain which has arisenceases entirely".3 Q. Why does the faculty of pain cease entirely in the first meditation, jhdna! A. Because of the fullness of joy, there is bodily ease. 4Because of bodily ease, the faculty of pain is ended, i.e., through transcending, it is abandoned. Therefore, in the first meditation, jhdna, the faculty of painis removed. In the second meditation, jhdna, the faculty of grief is removed. According to the teaching of the Buddha, the removal of the faculty of griefis thus: "Where does the faculty of grief that has arisen cease entirely? Here, bhikkhus, initial and sustained application of thought are stilled, and heabides in the attainment of the second meditation, ihdna. Here, the faculty of grief which has arisen ceases entirely".5 Why does the faculty of grief, cease in the second meditation, jhdna! If a man has initial and sustained application of thought for long, his body and mind become negligent. If his mind becomes negligent, the faculty of grief arises immediately, in thesecond meditation, jhdna, initial and sustained application of thought are stilled. In the third meditation, ihdna, the faculty of bliss is removed. TheBuddha taught thus: "Where does the faculty of bliss which has arisen ceaseentirely? Here, bhikkhus, owing to the distaste for joy, one abides, in theattainment of the third meditation, jhdna. Here the faculty of bliss which has arisen ceases entirely".1 Q. Why does the faculty of bliss cease in thethird meditation, jhdna? A. Joy perishes, and so, bliss that arises depending joy also perishes. Therefore, in the third meditation, jhdna, the faculty of bliss perishes.

Q. If the faculties of pain, bliss and grief were removed in the thirdmeditation, jhdna, why is their ending taught in the fourth meditation, jhdna?

A. These faculties were removed in the third meditation, jhdna. Thethird meditation, jhdna, is an approach to the fourth meditation, jhdna. Inthe third meditation, jhdna, these having arisen, passed away. Therefore, their removal is taught in the fourth meditation, jhdna.

And again, "accomplishes" the "painless" and "pleasureless" means theovercoming of pain and pleasure. Therefore, the overcoming of pain and pleasure is taught as the accomplishment of the painless and pleasureless. And again, it is because in the fourth meditation, jhdna, attainment and over-coming occur together. And again, equanimity removes the defilements immediately and entirely. The attaining to the "painless" and "pleasureless" means that the mind does not receive and thought does not reject. This is called the attaining to the "painless" and "pleasureless".

What are the salient characteristic, function, manifestation and nearcause of the accomplishing of the "painless" and "pleasureless"?

Middleness is the salient characteristic. Dwelling in a middle positionis the function. Abandoning is the manifestation. Removal of joy is thenear cause.

What is the purity of. equanimity-mindfulness? Neutrality is called equanimity. That is called equanimity. "Mindfulness" is called attentiveness, recollectedness and Right Mindfulness. These are called "mindfulness". The mindfulness that is clarified and purified by equipoise is called "purity of equanimity-mindfulness".

Q. How is mindfulness clarified and purified by equipoise? A. Hereimperturbability and non-action are fulfilled, owing to the abandoning of alldefilements and owing to resemblance and closeness to that attainment. Thisnon-action is associated with equipoise. Therefore, mindfulness reachesimperturbability and fulfils impassivity. Therefore, this mindfulness isequanimity and acquires clarity and purity.

"Fourth": This means that because of the third, the fourth is fulfilled. "Accomplishes the meditation": This refers to the equanimity-mindfulness and unification of mind of the fourth meditation, jhdna. This is the meaning of "accomplishes the meditation".

"Accomplishes" and "dwells": Oneseparates from one factor, fulfils three factors, three kinds of goodness andten characteristics, and is associated with twenty-two merits. Thus oneabides in the attainment of the fourth meditation, jhdna. The reward of this (meditation) is rebirth in the heaven world. The merit of this causes rebirthin the Abode of Great Fruition.1 This was taught fully before. "To dwellin the heaven world": This is to dwell in a manner surpassing humans. This is to dwell in the bliss of equanimity. This is called dwelling in the heavenworld.

SIMILE OF THE WHITE CLOTH

Therefore the Blessed One taught the bhikkhus thus: "As a man mightsit down and cover his body with a white cloth from head to foot, in such away that no part of his body is left uncovered, so a bhikkhu covers his bodyand limbs with purified mindfulness, in such a way that no part of him is notcovered with purified mindfulness".2 The yogin is like a man who has coveredhimself with a white cloth. Freed from all subtle defilements, he dwells inthe fourth meditation, jhdna. Thus should it be known. As the man whocovers his body from head to foot with a white cloth is protected fromextremes of heat and cold, experiences an even temperature and is undisturbed body and mind, so that yogin who enters the fourth meditation, jhdna, experiences neither pain nor pleasure. This is the bliss of equanimity. Withit he fills his body.

Thus is the merit of concentration: One is reborn in the Abode of GreatFruition. A commoner who practises the fourth meditation, jhdna, will, after his death, be reborn in the Abode of Great Fruition. If his mind dislikes effort, he will be reborn in the Abode of the Unconscious. His life-span will be fifty aeons.3 If the yogin is a recluse, he will be reborn in the Abode of Great Fruition, or in one of the five Pure Abodes.4 Such are the retributory fruits of this meditation, jhdna.

- A. There are differences of "coarse" and "fine", according to result, in the third meditation, jhdna. Therefore, the excellence of the fruition-ground is taught through the partaking of distinction. In the fourth medita-tion, jhdna, the yogin reaches the limit of the partaking of distinction. Outsidethis there is no other partaking of distinction. Therefore, there is no partaking of distinction of the fruition-ground.

THE SPHERE OF THE INFINITY OF SPACE

/ consider the tribulations of the fourth meditation, jhdna.

Now, the yogin who has acquired boundless happiness in the fourthmeditation, jhdna, wishes to enjoy the space-concentration and to transcend therealm of form. He considers thus: "Concentration of form is coarse; space-concentration is fine". That yogin sees the tribulations of form and themerits of space-concentration. What are the tribulantions of form? Thereare many (tribulations) such as the taking up of sticks and weapons, beating, quarrelling, slander, lying, maiming and the like. There are many sufferingssuch as pain of the eye and other bodily ills, cold and heat, hunger and thirst. These are the severe trials of the sensuous form.

What are the tribulations of the fourth meditation, jhdnal The dependingon form objects has satisfaction for near enemy. It is called coarse. Onewho is attached to form and delights in it cannot partake of distinction. Butdepending on space, one liberates oneself peacefully. In this concentrationone fulfils the gross. Thus the yogin sees the tribulations of the fourth meditation, jhdna, in form. The merits of space-concentration consist of the over:coming of these.

/ have considered the troubles of the fourth meditation, jhdna. And now Ishow how to enter the concentration of the sphere of the infinity of space.

That yogin having seen form and the great tribulations thereof and themerits of space-concentration, rises from that (form) concentration, abandonsthe earth kasina, the earth sign^andj)ractises space-concentration.

He should dwell on space regarding it as an infinite object. If he meditatesthus, he quickly completes the destruction of the earth sign and his mindrises out of the earth sign and goes beyond the earth sign to space. Throughthe acquisition of facility in the perception of the sphere of the infinity of spacehe attains to fixed meditation, jhdna.

That yogin "by passing entitely beyond perception of form, by the dis-appearance of the perception of impact, by being freed from attention to perceptions of diversity, thinking, 'Infinite is space', enters into and abidesin the sphere of infinite space.1

"Entirely" means without remainder. "By passing beyond perception of form": What is perception of form? The perception, the perceiving, the state of having perceived pertaining to one who dwells in the concentration of the formelement — these are called perception of form. "Passing beyond"means the surpassing of this. [421] "By the disappearance of the perception of impact": What is the perception of impact? The perception of visible objects, of sounds, of odours, of flavours, and of tangibles — these are called the perception of impact. "Disappearance" means the ending of these variouskinds of (impact-) perception. "By being freed from attention to perceptions of diversity": What are perceptions of diversity? The perception, the perceiving, the state of having perceived pertaining to one who has not attained to concentration and who is endowed with the mind element and the conscious-ness element — these are called perceptions of diversity. "Freed fromattention to perceptions of diversity" means that one is freed from attending to these perceptions of diversity.

Q. Why is it that only the surpassing of perception is taught and notthe surpassing of feeling, formations and consciousness?

A. If a man passes beyond perception of form, he passes beyond allthe others; and if a man is not freed from perception of form, his mind isnot capable of passing beyond the others. Hence the Blessed One taught thesurpassing of perception of form with the intention of setting forth the surpassing of all form-objects, because all (form) objects of concentration are dependent on perception.

Q. If that does not happen (i.e., if he does not transcend the perception of form) is there or is there not perception of impact and diversity?

A, There is the perception of impact and diversity in form concentration, because these are removed (later).

Q. Why does he not proceed further in that concentration?

A. He dislikes form, therefore, he does not remove (these perceptions)in that (concentration). This is according to the teaching of the Buddhawhich says that, owing to the non-removal of these (perceptions of impact)in that (form concentration), sound is a thorn to one entering the first meditation, jhdna.2 Thus disliking form, he goes further. He destroys them here. Therefore, he attains to the imperturbability of the formless attainment andthe peacefulness of liberation. Alaia Kalama and Uddaka Ramaputta whenthey entered the formless attainment, did not see nor hear those five hundred carts passing and repassing.1 Therefore, it is taught as the destruction of the(sense) spheres; and thus, surpassing of all form perception is taught as the destruction of the form states and the perception of impact. "By being freedfrom attention to perceptions of diversity" means the destruction of the sensestates. Again, the surpassing of all form perception is taught as the attainment of the realm of the formless. The disappearance of the perception of impactis taught as the destruction of the outer disturbance to that concentration(of the formless) and the purification of imperturbability. "Freed fromattention to perceptions of diversity" is taught as destruction of the innerdisturbance to that concentration and the purification of the peacefulnessof liberation.

Q. "The sphere of infinite space": What is space?

A. It is the sphere of space, the element of space and vacuity.2 Thatwhich is untouched by the four primaries — this is called vacuity. When aman tranquillizes the mind by means of the perception of limitless space, it is said that he thinks, "Infinite is space". Infinite space means the enteringinto limitless space. The mind and the mental properties which enter spaceare called "sphere of space". What is "sphere of space"? Boundlessnessis the nature of space. This boundless nature is the "sphere of space". This istaught as the meaning of space. As dwelling in heaven is called heaven, so (dwelling in) the concentration of the sphere of space is called "sphere of space". "Enters into and abides in the sphere of infinite space" means thathe acquires the concentration of the sphere of infinite space, passes beyondall form objects, fulfils three factors, three kinds of goodness and ten characteris-tics, is associated with twenty-two merits and dwells peacefully in the enjoyment of the reward of concentration practice. By reason of these good qualities, he will be reborn in the sphere of infinite space, as it was fully taught before. "By these good qualities he will be reborn in (the sphere of infinite) space" means that he who practises the concentration of the sphere of space will,

THE CONCENTRATION OF THE SPHERE OF INFINITECONSCIOUSNESS

/ consider the tribulations of the concentration of the sphere of infinite space.

Now, that yogin having acquired mastery in the practice of (the concen-tration of) the sphere of infinite space wishes to cause the arising of the concen-tration of the infinite consciousness kasina and to transcend the infinite spacekasina. Considering the concentration of (the sphere of) space as coarse,he sees the fineness (of the concentration) of the sphere of infinite consciousness.

And again, he sees the tribulations of the sphere of infinite space andthe merits of the sphere of infinite consciousness. What are the tribulations of the sphere of infinite space? This concentration has form for near enemy. The object of the concentration of the sphere of infinite space is gross, and the perception of impact and the perceptions of diversity have not yet brokenaway from each other. Here, owing to attachment, the yogin is not able topartake of distinction. Thus he sees the tribulations of the concentration of the sphere of infinite space. The merits of the consciousness kasina lie in the overcoming of these.

That yogin, having seen the severe troubles of the concentration of thesphere of infinite space and the merits of the sphere of infinite consciousness, should consider the sphere (of infinite consciousness) as calm, and steadily attend to the arising of the consciousness which proceeds spreading throughspace with the thought, "Infinite is consciousness". Thus his mind is heldin the perception of the sphere of infinite consciousness. Thus he meditates and in no long time the mind rises out of the perception of the sphere of infinitespace, and passes into the sphere of infinite consciousness. In this perception of the sphere of infinite consciousness, the mind attains to fixed meditation, jhdna. Thus "passing entirely beyond the sphere of infinite space, that yogin, thinking, 'Infinite is consciousness', enters into, and abides in the sphereof infinite consciousness". "Entirely" means without remainder. "Passingbeyond the sphere of infinite space" means the passing beyond the sphereof infinite space. "Passing beyond" means to go rightly beyond. This is called "passing entirely beyond the sphere of infinite space". "Infinite space":"He attends to that consciousness as infinite with which space is filled".

- 1. Here 'two thousand* is obviously an error. Should read 'twenty thousand'. Cp.Vbh. 425; A. I, 267: AkasanaHcayatanupaganam bhikkhave devdnarh visatim kappa-sahassdni dyuppamariam.
- Q. Among the form and formless states, which are infinite?
- A. Only formless states are infinite, because there are no bounds to theformless, and because they cannot be held. And again, space is limitless. Therefore, it is called infinite. The word "infinite" (ananta) means infinite(ananta). Thus, the word "infinite" is used. So is the word consciousness.
- "Abides in the sphere" means abides in the sphere of infinite consciousness. The mind and the mental properties are called the sphere of infinite consciousness. What is the "sphere of infinite consciousness"? It is boundless con-sciousness. This is called "the sphere of infinite consciousness". As dwellingin heaven is called heaven, so (dwelling in) the concentration of infinite con-sciousness is called the sphere of infinite consciousness. When this conscious-ness is held in concentration, it is called "the sphere of infinite consciousness". "Enters into and abides in the sphere of infinite consciousness" means that hesurpasses the spatial object in that concentration of the sphere of infiniteconsciousness. He fulfils three factors, three kinds of goodness, ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two merits, and dwells peacefully in theenjoyment of the reward of concentration-practice. By reason of these goodqualities, he will be reborn in the sphere of infinite consciousness. This wasfully taught before.

Thus is the merit of the practice (of the concentration) of the sphereof infinite consciousness. A man who practises the concentration of infiniteconsciousness will, after his death, be reborn in the sphere of infinite conscious-ness. His life-span will be four thousand aeons.1

(The exposition of) the sphere of infinite* consciousness has ended.

THE SPHERE OF NOTHINGNESS

/ consider the tribulations of the sphere of infinite consciousness.

Nov/, that yogin, having acquired mastery in the practice of the concen-tration of the sphere of infinite consciousness, wishes to cause the arising of the concentration of the sphere of nothingness, and to transcend the sphere of infinite consciousness.

Again, he considers thus: "The concentration of the sphere of infiniteconsciousness is coarse; the concentration of the sphere of nothingness isfine". And he sees the tribulations of the sphere of infinite consciousnessand the merits of the concentration of the sphere of nothingness. What are the tribulations of the concentration of the sphere of infinite consciousness ?This concentration has space for near enemy. The consciousness objectis coarse. Here, the yogin, owing to attachment, is not able to partake of distinction through the considering of infinite perception. The merits of thesphere of nothingness lie in the overcoming of these. That yogin, havingseen the tribulations of the sphere of infinite consciousness and the meritsof the sphere of nothingness, rises out of the sphere of infinite consciousnesspeacefully, does not proceed along that consciousness again, does not reflecton it again and puts away that consciousness. Seeing the freedom of thesphere of nothingness, he wishes to attain to it, and considering thus he quicklyrises out of consciousness perception. Owing to the perception of the sphereof nothingness, he attains to fixed meditation, jhdna. Passing entirely beyondthe sphere of infinite consciousness, that yogin, thinking, "There is nothingwhatsoever", enters into and abides in the sphere of nothingness.

"Entirely" means without remainder. "Passing beyond the sphere ofinfinite consciousness" means to go rightly beyond consciousness. Thisis called "passing entirely beyond the sphere of infinite consciousness". "Nothingness" means that he does not practise (consciousness concentration)again; does not discern again; goes out of that consciousness (sphere), and seesonly nothingness. Thus should nothingness be known. "Sphere (of nothing-ness)": The mind and the mental properties which enter the sphere of nothing-ness, are called "sphere of nothingness". What is the sphere of nothingness? That which is without the nature of consciousness and empty. The sphereof nothingness is taught as "holding to nothing*'. "Enters into the sphere" means "attains to the concentration of the sphere of nothingness". "Entersinto and dwells": He attains to the concentration of (the sphere of) nothing-ness, passes beyond the consciousness object, fulfils three factors, three kinds of goodness, ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two merits, anddwells peacefully in the enjoyment of the reward of concentration. By reason of these good qualities, he is reborn in the sphere of nothingness. This wasfully taught before. The merit by which a man is reborn in the sphere ofnothingness is thus: He who practises the concentration of the sphere of nothingness will be reborn, after his death, in the sphere of nothingness. Hislife-span will be six thousand aeons.1

(The exposition of) the concentration of the sphere of nothingness hasended.

THE SPHERE OF NEITHER PERCEPTION NOR NON-PERCEPTION

/ consider the tribulations of the sphere of nothingness.

Now, the yogin having acquired mastery in the practice of concentration of the sphere of nothingness wishes to cause the arising of the concentration of neither perception nor nonperception, and to transcend the sphere of nothingness. He considers thus: "The sphere of nothingness is coarse; the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception is fine". And again, he seesthe tribulations of the sphere of nothingness and the merits of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception. [422] What are the tribulations of the sphere of nothingness? It has consciousness for near enemy. It is accom-panied by coarse perception. Therefore it is gross. Owing to attachment to itone does not partake of distinction. Thus he sees the tribulations of the sphereof nothingness. The merits of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception lie in the overcoming of these. And again, this perception is a disease, a boil, a thorn. Non-perception — this is right, tranquil and lofty. Thus hesees the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception. And having seenthe sphere of nothingness, having entered it and having reflected upon it, that yogin practises the other concentration by causing calmness to arise out of the solitude of the sphere of nothingness. Meditating thus he passes outof the perception of the sphere of nothingness in no long time, and attains to fixed meditation, ihdna, in the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.

/ will show the sphere of neither perception nor nonperception.

"Passing entirely beyond the sphere of nothingness, that yogin enters into and dwells in the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception". "Entirely" means without remainder. "Passing beyond the sphere of nothingness" means the surpassing of the sphere of nothingness and the going beyond it rightly. This is called "passing entirely beyond the sphere of nothingness". "Neither perception nor non-perception": He, piactises the other concentra-tion by causing calmness to arise out of the solitude of the sphere of nothingness. This is called the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception. "Sphere ofneither perception nor non-perception": The mind and the mental properties which enter the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception are called the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception. What is the meaning of 'sphere of neither perception nor non-perception"? Through the removal of coarse perception, he is endowed with non-perception. Through therebeing a remainder of fine perception, he enters the sphere of neither perceptionnor non-perception. Thus should "sphere" and "neither perception nornon-perception" be understood. "Enters into and abides": He attains to the concentration of the sphere of neither perception nor nonperception, passesbeyond the sphere of nothingness, fulfils three factors, three kinds of goodnessand ten characteristics, is associated with twenty-two merits and dwells in theenjoyment of the reward of concentration practice. By reason of these goodqualities, he will be reborn in the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception. This was fully taught before. "By reason of these good qualities hewill be reborn in the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception" meansthat he who practises the concentration of neither perception nor non-perception will be reborn, after his death, in the sphere of neither perceptionnor non-perception. His life-span will be eighty-four thousand aeons.1

Q. Why is this called "sphere of neither perception nor non-perception", and not "sphere of the infinity of consciousness"?

A. He separates from the attachment to infinitude and causes the arising of subtle perception. Therefore, he does not attain to the sphere of the infinity of consciousness. Q. Why are the cankers not destroyed through this concentration?

A. If a man separates himself from gross perception, he will not be ableto see the Path. And again this concentration is exceedingly fine. So hecannot discern the nature of neither perception nor non-perception. Thereforehe is not able to destroy the cankers.

(The exposition of the) sphere of neither perception nor non-perceptionhas ended.

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

I further elucidate the meaning of the above.

Q. What are the miscellaneous teachings in the field of concentration?

A. Stoppage of sounds; overturning; rising; transcending; access; initialapplication of thought; feeling; uncertainty. "Stoppage of sounds": Inthe first meditation, jhdna, speech is stopped. On entering the fourth medit-ation, jhdna, the yogin stops breathing.2 Gradual stoppage of sounds: Whenthe yogin enters into concentration, he hears sounds, but he is not able to speakbecause the faculty of hearing and that of speech are not united. To a manwho enters form concentration, sound is disturbing. Hence the Buddha taught: "To a man who enters meditation, jhdna, sound is a thorn". 3 "Overturning": 4A man, concentrating on the earth kasina develops earth perception throughnon-earth perception.

Q. If that be so, does he not fulfil "overturning"?

A. This earth perception should be known as that perception. It differs from the four kinds of overturning of perception. Therefore, it does not fulfil "overturning".5 "Rising":6 The rising from concentration is conditioned by five causes, namely, painfullness of posture; many bonds; arising ofhindrances; unequal skill; and inclination.

When a man enters formless concentration, he does not "rise" owingto "many bonds", because he dwells in imperturbability. If he enters theattainment of dissolution and the attainment of fruition, 1 he can "rise" throughprevious action 2 and not through any other cause. "Transcending": Intranscending there are two kinds, namely, transcending the factor3 and transcending the object.4 To pass from form meditation, jhdna, to form meditation, jhdna, is called "transcending the factor". To pass from form meditation, jhdna, to formless concentration, and from formless concentration to formless concentration is called "transcending the object". "Access" is the accessof all meditation, jhdna. It consists of five factors. "Initial application ofthought": In the second meditation, jhdna, and the others through continued suppression, the state that is without initial and sustained application of thoughtis fulfilled. "Feeling": In the fourth meditation, jhdna, and the others, through continued suppression, the state that is with equanimity arises withoutextremes. "Uncertainty": Owing to this, one does not remove the hindrances of sense-desires and the others, and abides in the sphere of neither perceptionnor non-perception. This is called "with remainder". It is as if, fearinga poisonous snake, a man were to climb up a tree.

There are four kinds of men who cannot enter into concentration. They, surely, will be reborn in states of woe. Without cause they commit the fiveimmediately effective deeds. 5 They are of perverted vision.

practising. Absorption in the water kasina is its salient characteristic. Non-abandonment of water perception is its function. Undivided thought is itsnear cause.1

There are five distinctive kinds of benefits belonging to (the practice of)the water kasina: a man is able to dive into the earth and come out of iteasily; to shake palaces, mountains or the earth; to bring down rain; causewater to gush from his body and make that (v/ater) appear as it were the ocean. The (other) benefits of the water kasina are the same as those of the earthkasina. One who practises the water kasina well, sees water in all places.

"How is the sign grasped"?: The man who accepts the water kasinagrasps the sign in water, i.e., natural or prepared water. Here, a practisedyogin grasps the water sign in a place where there is no water or on seeingwater in various places, i.e., in a well, pot, pond, swamp, river, lake or lagoon. Thus he can see (the sign) wherever he likes, and can arouse the after-imageof water. He is unlike a new yogin. A new yogin has to grasp the signin a prepared place. He is not able to practise the water kasina with skill inan unprepared place. Thus that yogin, at first, should find out a calm place, in the monastery or in a rock cave or under a tree, which is not too dark andwhere the sun does not scorch. It should be a place where there is no dustor wind and where there are no mosquitoes, gadflies or other impediments. In such a place, he buries a bowl or a water pot in clean earth, and makes therim level with the ground. The circumference should be one fathom. Itshould be filled with rain-water and unmixed with any colour. The bowl orpot should be full to the brim. Here, he should dwell on the perception of water, and take the sign through three ways: through even gazing, skil-fulness and the elimination of disturbance. The rest is as fully taught beforeunder the earth kasina and the sphere of neither perception nor nonperception.

The water kasina has ended.

THE FIRE KASINA

Q. What is the fire kasina? What is the practising of it? What are itssalient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? Howis the sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on fire —this is called the firekasina. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind —- this is called practising. The skilfulness of sending the mind forth into the fire sign is its salientcharacteristic. Non-abandonment of fire perception is its function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits"? There are five distinctive benefits. These are displayed in the fire kasina. A man is able to produce smoke and flame, is able to reveal things through producing brightness, is able to destroy the light of other forms, is able to burn whatever he likes,1 is able to know firethrough the arising of brightness. The other benefits are equal to those of the earth kasina. Owing to the practice of the fire kasina, a man is able to see fire everywhere.

1. In the question it is "manifestation".

"How is the sign grasped"?: The man who takes up the fire sign graspsthe sign in fire, i.e., in a natural or a prepared place. Here, a practised yogingrasps the natural sign. (He grasps the sign) on seeing any fire, i.e., a grass-fire, a wood-fire, a forestfire or a house that is on fire. He develops the natural orthe prepared as he pleases and sees the appropriate sign. Thus the after-image of fire occurs to him. The new yogin is different. He is able to graspthe sign only in a prepared place and not in an unprepared place. He follows what is expedient in the practice of the fire kasina. The new yogin shouldat first gather fuel, heap it up in a clean place and burn it. He burns it frombelow, at about the time the sun rises or sets. He does not think of the smokeor the flames that rise up. He sends his mind towards the fire sign by directingit to the middle of the thick flames and grasps the sign through three ways:through even gazing, skilfulness [423] and the elimination of disturbance. (The rest) is as was fully taught before.

The fire kasina has ended.

THE AIR KASINA

Q. What is the air kasina! What is the practising of it? What are itssalient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? Howis the sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the air sign — this is calledthe air kasina. The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mind are calledthe practising of the air kasina. Sending forth the mind into the air sign is itssalient characteristic. The non-abandoning of air perception is its function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": There are three distinctive benefits in airkasina: a man is able to go about with the speed of air, to cause windto rise and coolness to prevail. The other benefits are the same as thosetaught in the earth kasina. One follows what is expedient in the practice of the air kasina.

"How is the sign grasped?": A new yogin grasps the air kasina throughtwo ways: through sight and touch. How does he grasp the sign throughsight? That yogin, seeing a field of sweet potatoes, a bamboo grove or agrass-land moved by the wind, reflects on air perception. He grasps the sign through three ways: through even gazing, skilfulness and the elimination of disturbance. Thus he grasps the sign through sight. How does he graspthe sign through touch? In a calm abode, a new yogin makes an opening in the wall, inserts a pipe of bamboo or reed into it and sits near it, letting the wind that comes through it touch his body. Thus he grasps the air signthrough touch.

A practised yogin is able to grasp the sign whenever the wind toucheshis body whether he is sitting, walking, standing or lying down. Thus theafter-image of air occurs to him. He is unlike the new yogin.

The air kasina has ended.

THE BLUE-GREEN KASINA

Q. What is the blue-green kasinal What is the practising of it? Whatare its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits ?How is the sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the blue-green kasina — thisis called the blue-green kasina. The training and undisturbed dwelling of themind are called practising. Sending forth the mind into the blue-green signis its salient characteristic. Non-abandoning of the blue-green perception isits function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": There are five benefits. In the blue-greenkasina, a man attains to the emancipation of the beautiful. He acquiresthe position of mastery of the blue1 that is like a blue flower. He can changeall things to blue. He sees the colour of blue anywhere through the practice of the blue kasina.2

"How is the sign grasped?": The yogin grasps the sign in a preparedplace or in a natural place. That yogin sees (the sign) in blue flowers, blueclothes or in blue-coloured things everywhere. He sees it always before him,in pleasure or in pain, and thus the after-image of the blue-green sign occursto him. A new yogin is different. He grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is not able to grasp it in an unprepared place. He follows what is expedient

He edges it round with another colour. Thus he preparesthe blue-green sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: even gazing, skilfulness and the elimination of disturbance. The rest is as was fully taughtbefore.

THE YELLOW KASINA

- Q. What is the yellow kasinal What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? Howis the sign grasped?
- A. The thought that is produced relying on the yellow sign—this is calledthe yellow kasina. The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mind —these are called the practising of it. Sending forth the mind into the yellow signis its salient characteristic. Non-abandoning of the perception of yellow isits function. Undivided thought is the near cause.
- "What are its benefits?": There are five distinctive benefits. A man isable to attain to the emancipation of the beautiful. He acquires the positionof mastery of the yellow. He considers various yellow colours similar tothat of the Kanikara flower.2 Practising the yellow kasina, he sees yelloweverywhere.
- "How is the sign grasped?": The man who takes up the yellow kasiriagrasps the yellow sign either in a prepared place or in a natural place. (Thepractised yogin) grasps the sign in a non-prepared place. That yogin seesthe yellow colour of yellow flowers or yellow clothes anywhere. He sees italways, in pleasure or in pain. Thus the after-image of yellow occurs to him. The new yogin is different. The new yogin grasps the sign in a prepared

This yogin makes a mandalawith yellow of the colour of the Kanikara flower, on cloth, plank or wall,in the shape of a triangle or square. He edges it with another colour. Thushe prepares the yellow sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: evengazing, skilfulness and the elimination of disturbance. The rest is as wasfully taught before.

The yellow kasina has ended.

THE RED KASINA

Q. What is the red kasina! What is the practising of it? What are itssalient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? Howis the sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the red sign — this is calledthe red kasina. The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mind —these are called the practising of it. Sending forth the mind into the red signis its salient characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of red isits function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": There are four distinctive benefits. A man isable to attain to the emancipation of the beautiful in the red kasina. Heacquires the position of mastery of the red.1 He is able to change things into the colour of red. The other benefits are equal to those taught under the earthkasina. He who practises the red kasina sees the colour of red prevailing everywhere.

"How is the sign grasped?": A man who takes up the red kasina, graspsthe red sign either in a prepared place or in a natural place. The practisedyogin grasps the sign in a natural place, i.e., on seeing red flowers or redclothes anywhere. He sees always, in pleasure or in pain. Thus the after-image of the red sign occurs to him. The new yogin is different. The new

This yogin applies a red colour resembling that of the Bandhujivaka floweron cloth, plank or wall, in the shape of a triangle or a square. Or, he makesa mandala of red flowers. He edges it with another colour. Thus he preparesthe red sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: through even gazing, skilfulness and the elimination of disturbance. The rest is as was fully taughtbefore.

The red kasina has ended.

THE WHITE KASINA

Q. What is the white kasina? What is the practising of it? What areits salient characteristic, function and near cause? How is the sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the white sign—this is calledthe white kasina. The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mind—these are called the practising of it.

Sending forth the mind into the white sign isits salient characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of white isits function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": There are eight distinctive benefits. A man isable to attain to the emancipation of the beautiful, and the positions of masteryof the white.1 He overcomes rigidity and torpor, dispels darkness, producesbrightness and arouses the divine eye through the white kasina. The otherbenefits are the same as those taught in the earth kasina. He who practises the white kasina sees the colour of white prevailing everywhere.

"How is the sign grasped?": A man who takes up the white kasina graspsthe white sign either in a prepared or natural place. The practised yogingrasps the sign in a natural place. He sees the sign in various places—inwhite flowers, moonlight, sunlight, starlight or a round mirror. Beginning with these, he sees the sign always before him, through pleasure and throughpain. Thus the after-image of the white sign occurs to him. The new yoginis different. The new yogin grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is notable to grasp it in a nonprepared place. He follows what is expedient in the practice of the white kasina. This yogin makes a mandala on cloth, plankor wall in the shape of a triangle or a square, with colour resembling that of the morning star. He edges it with another colour. Thus he prepares thewhite sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: even gazing, skilfulnessand the elimination of disturbance. (The rest) is as was fully taught before.

THE LIGHT KASINA

[424] Q. What is the light kasina! What is the practising of it? What areits salient characteristic, function and near cause?

How is the sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the light sign—this is calledthe light kasina. The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mind—theseare called the practising of it. Sending forth the mind into the white sign isits salient characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of light isits function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": They are equal to those of the white kasina. He who practises the light kasiria sees light everywhere.

"How is the sign grasped?": A man who takes up the light kasina, graspsthe light sign in a prepared or in a natural place. The practised yogin graspsthe sign in a natural place. He sees the sign in various places — in moonlight, sunlight, lamplight or in the light of gems. Beginning with these he sees (the sign) always through pleasure or through pain. Thus the after-image of the light sign occurs to him. The new yogin is different. The new yogin graspsthe sign in a prepared place, and is not able to do so in a non-prepared place. He follows what is expedient in the practice of the light kasina. This yoginchooses a wall facing east or west. He fills a bowl with water and keeps it ina sunny place nearby. This water causes a mandala of light. From thismandala, light rises and is reflected on the wall. Here he sees the light sign. He grasps it in three ways: through even gazing, skilfulness and the elimina-tion of disturbance. (The rest) is as was fully taught before.

THE (SEPARATED) SPACE KASINA

What is the (separated) space kasinal What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are itsbenefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. In the space kasina, there are two kinds: The first is space that isseparate from form; the second is space that is not separate from form. The sign of the space kasina is space that is separate from form; the space signthat is grasped in an opening is space that is not separate from form. The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mind — these are called the practising of it. Sending forth the mind into space perception is its function. Undivided thought is its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": There are two distinctive benefits, thus: A manis able to pass through obstructions such as walls, mountains and the like. His bodily activities are not impeded, and he becomes fearless.

"How is the sign grasped?": The man who takes up the space kasina*grasps the sign in space that is natural or prepared. The practised yogingrasps the sign in a natural place. He sees the sign in various places — insome opening (in a wall), in the space of an open window, in the space which isbetween the branches of trees. Beginning with these, he sees it always, inpleasure and in pain. Thus the after-image of the space sign occurs to him. The new yogin is different. The new yogin grasps the sign in a preparedplace; and not in a non-prepared place. This yogin goes to a calm abodeon the outside of which are no obstructions. He makes a circular opening(in the wall) and grasps the space sign, through three ways: through even gazing, skilfulness and the elimination of disturbance. In this space kasina, the fourth and the fifth meditations, jhdnas, are produced. The rest is aswas fully taught before.

The {separated) space kasina has ended.

THE CONSCIOUSNESS KASINA

Q. What is the consciousness kasina!

A. It is the concentration of the sphere of infinite consciousness. This is called the consciousness kasina. The rest is as was fully taught before.

The ten kasinas have ended.1

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

Q. What are the miscellaneous teachings regarding these kasinas!

A. If one acquires facility in one sign, all other signs follow. If oneacquires facility in the first meditation, jhdna, through one kasina, one isable to acquire facility through the other kasinas also and is able to causethe arising of the second meditation, jhdna. In the same way, if one acquiresfacility in the second meditation, jhdna, one is able to cause the arising ofthe third meditation, jhdna. If one acquires facility in the third meditation, jhdna, one is able to cause the arising of the fourth meditation, jhdna.

Q. Which are the most excellent of all kasinas!

A. The four colour kasinas are the most excellent, because through themone attains to the emancipations and the positions of mastery. The whitekasina is excellent, because it illumines and because through it an unobstructed tate of mind is attained.

Here (the yogin) produces the eight attainments on eight kasinas, insixteen ways, peacefully. (1) He dwells wherever he likes and (2) practises the concentration that he likes, (3) whenever he likes, (4) without hindrance, (5) in the direct order 3 and (6) in the reverse order, 4 (7) in the direct and in the reverse order, 5 (8) by developing separately 6 (9) by developing together, (10) by skipping over the middle, 7 (11) by limiting 8 the factor, (12) by limiting the object, (13) by limiting the factor and the object, (14) by fixing 9 the factor, (15) by fixing the object, (16) by fixing the factor and the object.

- 6. Lit. Increasing each one. 7. Lit. Making little or restricting the middle.
- 8. Lit. Making little or restricting the factor. 9. Lit. Together with the factor.
- (1) "He stays wherever he likes": He dwells in the village or forest —whichever he likes and enters into concentration.
- (2) "Practises the concentration that he likes": He produces the concentration which he desires.(3) "Whenever": He enters into concentration at the time he likes. (4)("Without hindrance"): He is able to remain firm in (concentration) atall times. (5) "In the direct order": He enters the first meditation, jhdna, and by degrees rises up to the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception.
- (6) "In the reverse order": Starting from the sphere of neither perceptionnor non-perception, he comes down by degrees to the first meditation, jhdna.
- (7) "In the direct and in the reverse order": He excels in ascending andin descending. He enters the third meditation, jhdna, from the first meditation, jhdna. From the third meditation, jhdna, he enters the second, and fromthe second he enters the fourth. 1 Thus he enters the concentration of thesphere of neither perception nor non-perception. (8) "By developing sepa-rately": Having gradually entered the fourth meditation, jhdna, he ascendsor descends. (9) "By developing together": He enters the fourth meditation, jhdna. From that he enters space, and then enters the third meditation, jhdna. Thus he enters into concentration in these two ways. (10) "Skipping overthe middle": He enters the first meditation, jhdna. From this he enters thesphere of neither perception nor non-perception. From this he enters thesecond meditation, jhdna, and therefrom attains to the sphere of nothingness. Thus he abides in that attainment, and understands the sphere of the infinity of space. (11) "Limiting the factor": He enters into the concentration of meditation, jhdna, on eight kasinas. (12) "Limiting the object": Heenters into eight kinds of concentration on three kasinas. (13) "Limiting the factor and the object": Two meditations, jhdnas, and one kasina. (14) "Fixing the factor": On three kasinas, he enters (Lit. two, two meditation, jhdnas). (15) "Fixing the object": He enters two meditations, jhdnas, on (Lit. two, two kasinas). (16) "Fixing the factor and the object": This consists of the two (preceding) sentences.

THE TEN PERCEPTIONS OF PUTRESCENCE

(1) THE PERCEPTION OF BLOATEDNESS

Q. What is the perception of bloatedness? What is the practising it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? Whatare its benefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. "The perception of bloatedness": The state of being swollen through-out like a cast off smelly corpse which distends its bag of skin — this is called "bloatedness".1 The viewing of bloatedness with right knowledge — this iscalled "perception". The training and the undisturbed dwelling of the mindin that perception — these are called the practising of it. The sending forthof the mind into the perception of bloatedness is its salient characteristic. The disgust connected with the perception of bloatedness is its function. Re-flection on malodour and impurity are its near cause.

"What are its benefits?": Nine are the benefits of the perception ofbloatedness, thus: A man is able to gain mindfulness as regards the interior of his body, is able to gain the perception of impermanence and th£ perception of death. He increases disgust and overcomes sense-desires. He removes the clinging to form and well-being. He fares well and approaches the ambrosial.

"How is the sign grasped?": The new yogin who grasps the sign of theputrescence of bloatedness goes alone, without a companion, establishedin mindfulness, undeluded, with his faculties drawn in and his mind not goingto things outside, reflecting on the path of going and coming. Thus he goes tothe place of putrescent corpses. Avoiding contrary winds, he remains theie, standing or sitting, with the putrescent sign before him, and not too far fromnor too near it. And that yogin makes a rock, an ant-hill, tree, bush or acreeper, near the place where the putrescent thing lies, one with the sign, one with the object, and considers thus: "This rock is impure, this is theimpure sign, this is the rock". And so also with the ant-hill and the others.

- (b) S. V. 131: Uddhumdtakasannd bhikkhave bhdvitd bahulikatd mahato phdsuvihdrayasarhvattati,
- [425] After making the sign and making the object, he practises, consideringthe putrescent sign from its intrinsic nature in ten ways: From colour, sex,region, locality, limitation, joints, cavities, low parts, high parts and all sides. He considers all sides of it. "From colour" means: "He determines blackas black, the neither black nor white as neither black nor white. He determineswhite as white and malodorous skin as malodorous". "From sex" means: "He determines whether it is the body of a male or a female, and whetherit is that of a young, an adult or an old person". To determine is to determine the long as long, the short as short, the fat as fat, the small as small. "Fromregion" means: "He determines that in this direction is the head; in this,a hand; in this, a leg; in this, the back; in this, the abdomen; in this, thesitting place; in this, the putrescent sign". Thus he understands. "Fromlocality" means: "He determines that on this place 1 is the hand; on this, a leg; on this, the head; on this, the sitting-place; on this, the putrescentsign". "From limitation" means: "He determines (the limit of the body) from head to foot, from below up to the head and the edge of the scalp, under-standing the whole body as an assemblage of dung". "From the joints" means: "He determines that there are six joints in the two hands, six jointsin the two legs, and that there is one joint of the neck and one at the waist". These are known as the fourteen great joints. "From the cavities" means: "He determines whether the mouth is open or closed, and whether the eyesare open or closed. He determines the hollows of the hands and the feet". "From low parts and from high parts" means: "He determines whether theputrescent sign is in a low place or in a high place; and again, he determinesthus: 'I am in a low place, the putrescent sign is in a high place', or, Theputrescent sign is in a low place, I am in a high place' ". "He considers fromall sides" means: "He determines a distance of two or three fathoms from the sign, because he does not grasp the sign by being too near it or too farfrom it, and considering all things, he grasps the sign (saying), "Sddhu! sddhu!". Thus observing he is contented.

That yogin having grasped the sign, noted it well and determined it well,goes alone, without a companion, established in mindfulness, undeluded,with his faculties drawn in and his mind not going to things outside, reflectingon the path of going and coming. To and fro he walks on the path or hesits absorbed in the putrescent sign.

Why does he go without a companion? It is for the sake of acquiringcalmness of body. "Established in mindfulness" means: "Owing to non-delusion the faculties are drawn in and the mind does not go to things outside".

Why does he reflect on the path of going and coming? It is for the sakeof acquiring calmness of body. Why does he avoid contrary winds? It isfor the sake of avoiding malodour. Why does he sit neither far nor near the sign? If he sits far, he cannot grasp the sign. If he sits near, he cannot 1. Lit. Bright place — a double translation of avakdsa.

get a dislike for it, or see its nature. If he does not know its nature, he isnot able to grasp that sign. Therefore, he sits neither too far from nor toonear it. Why does he consider the sign on all sides? It is for the sake ofnon-delusion. Non-delusion is thus: When a yogin goes to a still placeand sees the putrescent sign, fear arises in him; at such a time, if the corpseappears to stand up before him, he does not stand up, but reflects. In thisway he knows, recollects, rightly understands, regards well and fully investigatesthe sign. In the same way he considers all signs. This is (the indication of)non-delusion.

Q. Why does he grasp the sign in ten ways? A. It is for the sake ofbinding the mind.

Why does one reflect on the path of going and coming? It is for thesake of progress in the course. "Progress in the course" means: "Thougha yogin enters a still place, his mind is sometimes disturbed. If he does not always investigate it, the putrescent sign does not arise. Therefore, a yogininvestigates the sign with all his heart by reflecting on the path of going andcoming. He investigates the place of meditation. He investigates all signs. Thus should he investigate the sign to be grasped, in the ten ways.

That yogin thus investigates again and again, and sees the sign as if it werewith his eyes. This is (the indication of) progress in the course. A newyogin, meditating on a corpse, perceiving (it as) a jewel, rejoices, bears itin mind, resorts to it always, causes the hindrances to perish and arousesthe factors of meditation, jhdna. Remote form sense-desires and demeritoriousstates, he abides in the attainment of the first meditation, jhdna, which iswith initial and sustained application of thought, born of solitude and full ofjoy and bliss, through the perception of putrescence.

Q. Why is the first meditation, jhdna, only developed through the per-ception of putrescence and not any other meditation, jhdnal A. This perception always follows initial and sustained application ofthought because (they go together) and because it is tied down to a place. When initial and sustained application of thought are present, this sign becomes manifest. Without initial and sustained application of thought, the yogin isnot able, here, to gain the calming of the mind. Therefore, the first meditation, ihdna, is developed and not any other.

And again, it is said that colour, sex and the others of this putrescent signare considered in many ways. "Are considered in many ways": These(colour, etc.) are objects of initial and sustained application of thought. Separate fr initial and sustained application of thought, these cannot beconsidered. Therefore, only the first meditation, jhdna, is developed and notany other.

And again, it is said that this putrescent sign is an unenduring object. On an unenduring object the mind does not go higher. In an impure placejoy and bliss can only arise by the rejection of initial and sustained application of thought, which, in a place such as this, depend on malodour. Therefore, only the first meditation, jhdna, is developed and not any other.

Q. On an unenduring object how do joy and bliss occur?

A. The unenduring object is not the cause of joy and bliss. And again, joy and bliss arise owing to the removal of the heat of the hindrances and thetraining of the mind. The rest is as was fully taught above.

The perception of bloatedness has ended.

(2) THE PERCEPTION OF DISCOLOURATION

Q. What is discolouration? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. One, two or three nights after death, the body becomes discoloured, and appears as if it were stained blue. This is the discolouration sign. This discolouration is called the blue sign. The understanding of this throughright knowledge is called the perception of discolouration. 1 The \mdisturbeddwelling of the mind (on the sign) is the practising of it. The reflection on theblue sign is its salient characteristic. (The perception of) disagreeableness isits function. The thought of non-durability is its near cause. Its benefitsare equal to those of bloatedness; The way of grasping the sign is as was fullytaught above.

(The perception of) discolouration has ended.

(3) THE PERCEPTION OF FESTERING

Q. What is perception of festering? What is the practising of it? Whatare its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. "Festering": Two or three nights after death, the body festers andmatter exudes from it like ghee that is poured out. This is the festering of thebody. The understanding of this through right knowledge is called the perception of festering. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind (on the sign) is the practising of it. The reflection on the festering sign is its salient characteristic.

(The perception of) disagreeableness is its function. The thought of non-durability is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of bloatedness. The way of grasping the sign is as was fully taught above.

(The perception of) the festering has ended.

(4) THE PERCEPTION OF THE FISSURED

Q. What is the meaning of the fissured? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause?

A. "The fissured" means: "What resembles the scattered parts of abody that has been hacked with a sword". Again, a corpse that is thrown awayis also called the fissured. The understanding of this through right knowledge called the perception of the fissured. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind, (on the sign), is the practising of it. The reflection on the sign of the fissured its salient characteristic. (The perception of) disagreeableness is its function. The thought of putrescence is its near cause. Its merits are equal to those ofbloatedness.

Q. "How is the sign grasped?"

A. The sight of two ears or two fingers that are separated (from a body)causes the arising of the fissured sign. The sign thus grasped appears without or two inches of space intervening. The xest is as was fully taughtabove.

(The perception of) the fissured has ended.

(5) THE PERCEPTION OF THE GNAWED

Q. What is the meaning of the gnawed? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are itsbenefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. "The gnawed": (leavings of a) corpse on which crows, magpies, brown kites, owls, eagles, vultures, wild pigs, dogs, jackals, wolves, tigers or leopards have fared — this is called the gnawed. The understanding of the gnawed sign through right knowledge — this is (the perception of) the gnawed. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind (on the sign) — this is called the practising of it. The reflection on the gnawed is its salient characteristic. (The perception of) disagreeableness is its function. The consideration of putrescence is

(6) THE PERCEPTION OF THE DISMEMBERED

- Q. What is the meaning of the dismembered? What is the practising it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? Whatare its benefits? [426] How is the sign grasped?
- A. The state of (severed) limbs scattered hither and thither is called "the dismembered". The understanding of this through right knowledge —this is called the perception of the dismembered. The undisturbed dwellingof the mind (on the sign) is called the practising of it. The reflection on the dismembered sign is its salient characteristic. (The perception of) disagreeable-ness is its function. The thought of putrescence is its near cause. Its benefitsare equal to those of bloatedness.
- "How is the sign grasped?": All the (scattered) limbs are gathered and placed together so that they are about two inches apart from each other. Havingarranged them thus, one grasps the sign of the dismembered. This is how the sign is grasped. The rest is as was fully taught above.

{The perception of) the dismembered has ended.

(7) THE PERCEPTION OF THE CUT AND THE DISMEMBERED

Q. What is the meaning of the cut and the dismembered? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. "The cut and the dismembered": Corpses, lying in various places, of those done to death with stick, sword or arrow — these are called, the cutand the dismembered.2 To know the put and the dismembered through rightknowledge is called the perception of the cut and the dismembered. Theundisturbed dwelling of the mind (on the sign) is the practising of it. Thereflection on the sign of the cut and the dismembered is its salient characteristic.(The perception of) disagreeableness is its function. The thought of putrescence is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of bloatedness.

(8) THE PERCEPTION OF THE BLOOD-STAINED

Q. What is the meaning of the blood-stained? What is practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are itsbenefits? How is the sign grasped?

A. The blood-besmeared state of the body and the severed limbs isknown as "the blood-stained".1 The undisturbed dwelling of the mind (onthe sign) is called the practising of it. The reflection on the blood-stainedsign is its salient characteristic. (The perception of) disagreeableness is itsfunction. The thought of putrescence is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of bloatedness.

"How is the sign grasped?": This was fully taught above. (The percepion of) the blood-stained has ended.

(9) THE PERCEPTION OF WORMINESS

- Q. What is worminess? What is the practising of it? What are itssalient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? Howis the sign grasped? '•\
- A. "Worminess": The state of a body covered with worms as with aheap of white pearls is called worminess. The understanding of this throughright knowledge is called the perception of worminess.2 The undisturbeddwelling of the mind (on the sign) is the practising of it. The reflection onthe sign of worminess is its salient characteristic. (The perception of) dis-agreeableness is its function. The thought of putrescence is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of bloatedness. "How is the sign grasped?": This is as was fully taught above.

(The perception of) worminess has ended.

- A. "What is the bony"? The state of bones linked chain-like by means of flesh, blood and sinews or by sinews without flesh and blood, or without flesh and blood is called "the bony". 1 The understanding of this through right knowledge is called the perception of the bony. The undisturbeddwelling of the mind (on the sign) is called the practising of it. The reflection on the sign of the bony is its salient characteristic. (The perception of) disagreeableness is its function. The thought of putrescence is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of bloatedness.

"How is the sign grasped"? This is as was fully taught above. {The perception of) the bony has ended.MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

Q. What are the miscellaneous teachings regarding putrescence?

A. The beginner, being one who is affected by severe passion, shouldnot grasp the sign in that which is not of the same kind. That which is "notof the same kind" means: "Like the body of a man to a woman".

If one is of a calling associated with the perception of putrescence, he should not grasp the putrescent sign, because he, owing to the close connection with these objects, does not develop the idea of their disagreeableness. One does not cause th® arising of pure perception on the bodies of beasts (?). On $ causes the arising of the sign in one bone and grasps the . sign in-the bone with facility.

And again, if a man grasps the sign of putrescence through colour, heshould meditate on the kasina. If a man grasps the sign of putrescence throughspace, he should meditate on that element. If a man grasps the sign ofputrescence through putrescence, he should meditate on putrescence.

Q. Why are there ten putrescences and neither more nor less?

A. Because the faults of the body are of ten kinds and because there are ten kinds of perception awing to ten kinds of persons. A passionate person should meditate on the perception of bloatedness. A sensual personshould meditate on discolouration. A passionate lover of the beautiful should always meditate on the festering. The others should be understood in the same way.

And again, the sign of putrescence is grasped with difficulty. All signsof putrescence are means of overcoming passion.

Therefore, whenever thewalker in passion sees the putrescent sign, he should grasp it. Because ofthese reasons, it is said that among the putrescences there are ten kinds ofputrescence perception.

- 1. Cp. A. III, 324; M. I, 58; D. II, 296: Atthi-samkhalikam apagata-marhsa-lohitarh naharu-sambandharh....pe....,so imam eva kayam upasamharati: "Ayam pi kho kayo evamdhammo evam-bhavi etarh anatito ti\
- Q. Why are these (putrescence signs) not increased?

A. When a man wishes to separate From passion, he causes the arising of the perception regarding the nature of his body. Because, if he has the perception of the nature of his body, he can quickly acquire the perception of its disagreeableness and cause the arising of the after-image. If the perception of putrescence is increased, the sign which he has grasped in his body will disappear. If he loses the perception of his own body, he will not be ableto acquire the thought of disagreeableness quickly. Therefore, he shouldnot increase.

And again, it is taught that if a man is without passion, he may increase it for the sake of developing the great thought. This is in accordance withthe teaching of the Abhidhamma: "One dwells without passion and the rest, practises the first meditation, jhdna, rightly, dwells on the perception of bloatedness and causes the arising of the boundless object". 1 The great ElderSingalapita uttered this stanza:

The heir of the Buddha, he,

the almsman, in the fearful wood, has with "bony-precept" filled this earth, entirely. J think this almsman will, in no long time, abandon lust.2,

THE RECOLLECTION OF THE BUDDHA

Q. What is the recollection of the Buddha? What is the practising ofit? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The Enlightened One is the Blessed One who by his own efforts, with-out a teacher, understands the Noble Truths which were never heard before. He knows all. He possesses power. 3 He is free. Because of these qualities, he is called the Enlightened One. The yogin remembers the Enlightened One, the Blessed One, the Supremely Enlightened One and the worth of the Enlightenment, He recollects, repeatedly recollects, recollects again and again, does not forget to recollect on these. He remembers (the Enlightened One's) faculties and powers. He practises right recollectedness. Thus is the recollection of the Buddha. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind (in the recollection of the Buddha) — this is called the practising of it. The remembering of the Buddha's worth is its function. The growth in confidencets its near cause.

He who practises the recollection of the Buddha acquires the following eighteen benefits: increase of confidence, mindfulness, wisdom, reverence, merit, great joy, ability to endure hardship, fearlessness, shamefastness in the presence of evil, the state of living near the Teacher, enjoyment of activity belonging to the ground of the Buddhas, (the happiness of) faring well and approaching the ambrosial.1

According to the Netti Sutta,2 if a man wishes to meditate on the Buddha,he should worship Buddha images and such other objects. "What is theprocedure?": The new yogin goes to a place of solitude and keeps his mindundisturbed. With this undisturbed mind, he remembers him who comesand goes in the same way, the Blessed One, consummate, supremelyenlightened, endowed with true knowledge and conduct, sublime, knower ofthe world, matchless guide of men to be tamed, teacher of divine and humanbeings, enlightened, blessed.3 Thus he reaches the further shore of merit.

"Blessed One": Because he gets the praise of the world, he is called theBlessed One. Because he has attained to excellent truth, he is called theBlessed One. Because he is worthy of offerings, he is called the Blessed One. Because he has acquired the highest merits, he is called the Blessed One andbecause he is the Lord of the Way-Truth, he is called the Blessed One. Forthese reasons is he called the Blessed One.

"Consummate": Because he is the recipient of gifts, he is consummate*Because he has killed the defilement-foes, he is consummate. Because hebreaks the spokes of the wheel of birth and death, he is consummate.4

"Supremely enlightened": Because he knows rightly all things, inall his activities, he is called the supremely enlightened. Because he haskilled ignorance, he is called the supremely englightened and because he hasattained to the enlightenment that is unrivalled, by himself, he is called the supremely enlightened.5

"Endowed with true knowledge and conduct": Knowledge means thethree kinds of knowledge, i.e., the knowledge of past existences, the knowledge of the passing away and the arising of beings and the knowledge of the extinction of the cankers. The Blessed One has removed the ignorance of the past withthe knowledge of past existences, the ignorance of the future with the knowledge*of the passing away and the arising of beings, and the ignorance of thepresent with the knowledge of the extinction of the cankers.1 Having removed the ignorance of the past, the Blessed One sees, when he recollects, all paststates in the course of all activities. Having removed the ignorance of thefuture, the Blessed One sees, when he recollects, all future states in the course of his activities. Having removed all present ignorance, the Blessed One sees, when he recollects, all present states in the course of his activities.

"Conduct" means: "The being endowed with virtue and concentration".

"Virtue" means: "Endowed with all good states". He is called "perfectin knowledge and conduct".

"Perfect" means: "Endowed with supernormal powers". Hence he iscalled "perfect'in knowledge and conduct". (Again) "endowed" means: "possessed of all concentration".

Thus the Blessed One has great compassion and appreciative joy because of omniscience, the three kinds of knowledge and conduct. He acquiredknowledge with facility, because he had benefitted the world [427]. He opened the path of science, because he knew all spheres. He is perfect in knowledgebecause none can surpass him, because he has destroyed all defilements and because of pure right action. He is perfect in conduct, because he has becomethe eye of the world and because he has blessed those who were unblessed. He is perfectly enlightened through knowledge, because he has become themainstay of the world and because he has rescued the fear-stricken. He savesthrough conduct, because he has acquired the supernormal power of thehighest truth. He, without a teacher, has acquired that excellent equiposeof behaviour towards all things, because he has promoted the weal of theworld. Thus, through being perfect in knowledge and conduct, he is called the Blessed One. Thus is "perfect in knowledge and conduct" to be under-stood.2

- "Sublime": Because he has reached the good road, he is named "sublime". Because he will not return again, and because he has attained to the extinction, Nibbdna, that is without residue of the substratum of being, 1 he is named "sublime". Again, because his teaching cannot be overturned he is called "sublime". And again, because his teachings are not untrue, he is called "sublime". And again, because his teachings are without disadvantages, heis called "sublime". And again, because his teachings are neither too manyor too few, he is called "sublime".

"Knower of the world": World is of two kinds, i.e., the world of beingsand the world of formations.2 The Blessed One knows the world of beingin the course of all his actions. Through the varying desires of beings, throughthe difference of faculties, through past lives, through the knowledge of thedivine eye, through the knowledge of the passing away and arising of beings,through combination, through fulfilment, through various modes of differentia-tion, through various states of durability and non-durability, through variousbirths, through various states of birth, through various planes, through variousactions, through various defilements, through various results, through variouskinds of good and evil and through various kinds of binding and unbinding,the Blessed One knows the world of beings.

And again it is said "the world of formations": The Blessed One knowsall action and he knows the many formations. Through concentration perception, through causes and conditions, through moral, immoral and the amoral, through various aggregations, through various worlds, through various spheres, through perfect understanding, through impermanence, sorrow and not-selfand through the born and the unborn, the Blessed One knows the world offormations. Thus is "knower of the world" to be understood.

"Matchless": Because he is unsurpassable, in the world, he is called "matchless". And again, because he is without an equal, because he is most excellent, because he is incomparable and because others cannot excel him, he is named "matchless".3

"Guide of men to be tamed": There are three kinds of persons: a manhears the Law and quickly is able to expound it; another man elucidates the principles of causes and conditions; and yet another makes clear the knowledge of past existences. But the Blessed One, having mastered the eightfold way of emancipation, has tamed beings. Therefore, he is named "guide of men to betamed".1

"Teacher of divine and human beings": The Blessed One has rescueddivine and human beings from the fearful forest of birth, decay and death. Therefore, he is called "teacher of divine and human beings". And again, he has taught the way of insight and the way of meditation, jhdna. Therefore, he is called "teacher of divine and human beings". Thus, in these ways should man recall (the qualities) of him who comes and goes in the same way.

Further, there is the teaching of the principal teacher: In four waysshould the Blessed One be remembered. He came to the world for the lasttime by his own efforts in the past. He was endowed with excellent virtue. He benefitted the world. During twenty incalculable 2 aeons from his firstaspiration to his last birth, he had seen the faculties and the bases of faculties ofcountless 3 number of commoners. Therefore, he pities the world thus: "Ihave attained to liberation; now, I should liberate these. I have tamed myself;now, I should tame these. I have gained knowledge; now, I should causeknowledge to arise in these. I have reached Nibbdna; now, I should causethese also to reach it".4

He has reached completion and contentment in the fulfilling of charity, virtue, renunciation, fortitude, truth, resolution, lovingkindness, equanimity, energy and wisdom. He revealed the birth stories of the time when he was aBodhisatta, in order to encourage others to gain the light. He was born as ahare and practised charity. 5 One should recollect on virtue through the Sarhkhapala birth-story; 6 on renunciation, through the Maha-Govinda birth-story;7 on fortitude, through the Khanti birth-story; 8 on truth, through the Maha Sutasoma birth-story; 9 on resolution, through the Dumb-Cripple's birth-story; 10 on loving-kindness, through the Sakka birth-story;11 on equanimity, through the Lomaharhsa birth-story; 12 on energy, through the Chief of Mer-chants' birth-story; 13 (on wisdom), through the Deer birth-story. 14 One should also recollect on the word of the father in the Dighiti-Kosala birth-story 15 and one should recollect on the reverence of the White Sixtusked Elephant-sage.16

Through the White-Horse birth-story1 one should recollect the visit of theBodhisatta to help all beings. One should recollect that the Bodhisatta forsookhis own life and saved another's life in the Deer birth-story.2 One shouldrecollect that the Bodhisatta, in the (Great) Monkey birth-story,3 saved a beingfrom great suffering; and further one should remember that seeing a man whohad fallen into a pit, he rescued him with heart of compassion and offered himroots, and fruits of trees and when that man, wishing to eat flesh, hurt theBodhisatta's head, he taught that man the truth and pointed out the right roadto him, in the Great Monkey birth-story.4 Thus, one should concentrateon the merits of the birth-stories of the Blessed One in many ways.

How should one recollect on the merits of the sacrifices of the Blessed One? The Blessed One fulfilled all things in his previous births. When he wasyoung he removed the longing for all abodes. He removed the longing forchild, wife, parents and friends. He forsook that which was hard to forsake. He lived alone in empty places. He aspired after Nibbdna. He crossed the Neranjara in Magadha. He sat under the Bodhi tree, conquered the king ofdeath and the demon armies. In the first watch of the night, he rememberedhis past lives; in the middle watch of the night, he gained the divine eye; and in the last watch of the night, he understood sorrow and its cause and saw the excellent. 5 Through the practice of the Noble Eightfold Path, he was ableto destroy the cankers and attain to Enlighenment. He removed his bodyfrom the world and entered the highest and purest place of the extinction of the cankers. Thus one should recollect the sacrifices of the Blessed One inmany ways.

How should one recollect the virtues with which the Blessed One wasendowed? The Blessed One acquired emancipation and the state of mindthat is together with it, thus: through being endowed with the ten powers ofhim who comes and goes in the same way, the fourteen kinds of Buddhaknowledge6 and the eighteen Buddhavirtues;7 through fulfilment of manymeditations, jhdnas, and through reaching the further shore of freedom. Thusshould the yogin recollect.

What are the ten powers of the Blessed One? He knows the properfrom the improper, according to reality; knows the causes and consequences of good actions of the past, future and present, according to reality; knows the various intentions of beings, according to reality; knows the various kindsof behaviour, according to reality; knows the causes and consequences leadingto the world of deities, humans and others, according to reality; knows the differences in the faculties of beings, according to reality; knows the pure andthat which is with defilement in meditation (jhdna), emancipation, concentra-tion and attainment, according to reality; knows the passing away and the arising of beings, according to reality; knows the extinction of the cankers, according to reality.1 The BlessedOne is endowed with these ten powers.

What are the fourteen kinds of Buddha-knowledge? They are, namely,knowledge of sorrow, knowledge of sorrow's cause, knowledge of sorrow'scessation, knowledge of the way, knowledge of the analysis of meaning,knowledge of the analysis of derivation,knowledge of the analysis of argument, knowledge of the causes and consequ-ences leading to the world of deities, humans and others, knowledge of the differences in the faculties of beings, knowledge of the twin miracle, knowledge of the great thought of compassion, omniscience, and knowledge that is withoutthe hindrances. These are the fourteen kinds of Buddha-knowledge. Thus is the Blessed One endowed with these fourteen kinds of knowledge.2

What are the eighteen virtues fulfilled by the Blessed One ?3
UnobstructedBuddha-knowledge of the past; unobstructed Buddha-knowledge of the future; unobstructed Buddha-knowledge of the present; all bodily actions are led byknowledge and appear in accord with it; all verbal actions are led byknowledge and appear in accord with it; all mental actions are led byknowledge and appear in accord with it — these six virtues has the BlessedOne fulfilled. Non-impairment of the will; non-impairment of energy; non-impairment of mindfulness; non-impairment of concentration; non-impairment of wisdom; non-impairment of freedom — these twelve virtues has theBlessed One fulfilled. Absence of uncertainty; absence of deception; absence of that which is not clear; absence of hurry; absence of state that is notknown; absence of equanimity that is removed from reflection.

- "Absence of uncertainty" means: "His bearing is dignified; there isnothing unseemly in his action".
- "Absence of deception" means: "He has no craftiness". "Absence of that which is not clear" means: "That there is nothing thathis knowledge cannot sense".
- "Absence of hurry" means: "His behaviour is free from hurry".
- "Absence of state that is not known" means: "He is completely awareof his mental processes".
- "Absence of equanimity that is removed from reflection" means: "There is no state of equanimity in him of which he is not aware".

These eighteen virtues has the Blessed One fulfilled.1

And again, the Blessed One has reached the other shore with facilityhaving fulfilled all good through the skilfulness belonging to him who comesand goes in the same way,2 through the four foundations of mindfulness,through the four right efforts, through the four bases of supernormal power,through the five faculties, the five powers, the six kinds of supernormalknowledge, the seven factors of enlightenment, through the Noble EightfoldPath, through the eight positions of mastery, through the eight kinds ofemancipation, through the nine gradually ascending states, through the tenAriyan abodes and through the way of analytical science. Thus one shouldrecall to mind that Blessed One who has acquired the merits of the ExcellentLaw through these ways.

How should one remember the benefits with which the Blessed One hasblessed the world? The Blessed One has fulfilled all merits and has reachedthe further shore. No other being could have turned the Wheel, of the Lawwhich the Blessed One set a-rolling out of compassion for all beings. Withoutmaking an esoteric and an exoteric division of doctrine, he has opened widethe gate of the immortal.3 He has caused an incalculable number of deities and humans to acquire the fruit of holiness. number of beings to acquire merit with the three miracles, namely, the miracle of supernormal power, the miracle of mind reading and the miracle ofinstruction. He has aroused confidence in the hearts of men. He hasoverthrown all soothsaying and all false views. He has obliterated the badroad and opened the good road and made men to acquire the fruit of liberationor birth in the heaven world. He has caused his hearers to obtain peace anddwell in the law of the hearer. He has set down many precepts, preached the PdHmokkha, established beings in excellent merit, given them the perfectteaching of the Enlightened One and filled the world full (with the Truth). All beings worship and honour him, and all deities and humans hear him.

Thus the Blessed One, who dwells unperturbed, has compassionated andbenefitted the world, has done what should be done.

That yogin recollects him who comes and goes in the same way, thus:Through these ways and these virtues, he arouses confidence in his mind.Being full of confidence and being easy in the recollection, his mind is alwaysundisturbed. Because of his mind being undisturbed, he attains to accessmeditation.

Q. How is it that one who meditates on the Buddha attains to accessand not to fixed meditation, jhana?

A. In the highest sense, the virtue of the Buddha is a subject of profoundwisdom. In this sense the yogin cannot attain to fixed meditation, jhdna, owing to abstruseness. And again, he has to recollect not merely one virtue. When he thinks on many virtues he cannot attain to fixed meditation, jhdna. This is a subject of meditation of all access-concentration.

Q. Access is attained through concentration on a single object. If hethinks on many virtues, his mind is not concentrated. How then does hegain access?

A. If he recollects the virtues of him who comes and goes in the sameway and of the Enlightened One, the yogin's mind becomes concentrated. Therefore, he is untroubled. Again it is taught that from the recollection of the Buddha, the fourmeditations, jhdnas, arise.3

THE RECOLLECTION OF THE LAW

Q. What is the recollection of the Law? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What is the procedure?

A. The Law means extinction, Nibbdna, or the practice by means ofwhich extinction, Nibbdna, is reached. The destruction of all activity, theabandoning of all defilements, the eradication of craving, the becoming stainlessand tranquillized — these are called extinction, Nibbdna. What are thepractices leading to extinction, Nibbdnal Namely, the four foundations ofmindfulness, the four right efforts, the five powers, the seven factors ofenlightenment, the Noble Eightfold Path — these are called the practicesleading to Nibbdna. The recollection of the Law is the virtue of renunciationand the virtue of the Way. This recollection is recollectedness and rightrecollectedness. Thus is recollection of the Law to be understood. Theundisturbed dwelling of the mind (in this recollection) is the practising of it. The awareness of the virtues of the Law is its salient characteristic. Analysis of the Law is its function. The understanding of the meaning is its nearcause. Its benefits are equal to those of the recollection of the Buddha.

"What is the procedure?": The new yogin goes to a place of solitude and keeps his mind undisturbed. With undisturbed mind, he recollects thus: The Law is well-taught by the Blessed One, is visible, not subject to time, inviting, conducive to perfection, to be attained by the wise, each one forhimself.1

"The Law is well-taught by the Blessed One": It is free from extremes,2therefore it is called "well-taught". There are no inconsistencies in it, there-fore it is called "well-taught". There are no contradictions in it and it isendowed with the three kinds of goodness, therefore it is called "well-taught". It is completely spotless, therefore it is called "well-taught". It leads beingsto extinction, Nibbdna, wherefore it is called "well-taught".

"Visible": Because one gains the Paths and the Fruits in succession, it is called "visible". Because one sees extinction, Nibbdna, and the (other) Fruits of the Path, it is called "visible".

"Not subject to time": Without lapse of time fruition occurs. Therefore, it is called "not subject to time".

"Inviting": It says: "Come and see my worth!". In the same way?those who have the ability to teach are called men who say "Come and see!"#

"Conducive to perfection": If a man acknowledges it, he will reach theimmortal. Such is that which is "conducive to perfection". What leads to the fruition of holiness is called that which is "conducive to perfection".

"To be attained by the wise, each one for himself": If a man acknowledgesit and does not accept other teachings, he causes the arising of the know, edgeof cessation, the knowledge of the unborn and the knowledge of free dom. Therefore, it is called that which is "to be attained by the wise, each one forhimself".

Further, the yogin should recollect the Law in other ways thus: It is theeye; it is knowledge; it is peace; it is the way leading to the immortal; it isrenunciation; it is the expedience whereby cessation is won; it is the way tothe ambrosial; it is non-retrogression; it is the best; it is non-action, solitude, exquisiteness. It is not soothsaying. It is the most excellent object for thewise man's mind. It is to cross over to the other shore; it is the place ofrefuge. That yogin in these ways and through these virtues recollects the Law, and his mind is filled with confidence. On account of this confidence, his mind is undisturbed. Because of the undisturbed state of the mind, hedestroys the hindrances, arouses the meditation, (jhdna) factors and dwellsin access-concentration. The rest is as was fully taught above.

TJie recollection of the Law has ended.

THE RECOLLECTION OF THE COMMUNITY OF BHIKKHUS

Q. What is the recollection of the Community of Bhikkhus? (What is the practising of it?) What are its salient characteristic, function and nearcause? What is the procedure?

A. The congregation of the saints is the Community of Bhikkhus. This called the Community of Bhikkhus. The yogin recollects the virtue of theobservances of the Community of Bhikkhus. This recollection is recollected-ness and right recollectedness. Such is the recollection of the Community ofBhikkhus to be understood. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind in this recollection is the practising of it. Awareness of the virtues of the Community of Bhikkhus is its salient characteristic; reverence is its function; appreciation of the virtues of the Community of Bhikkhus is its near cause. Its benefitsare equal to those of the recollection of the Buddha.

"What is the procedure?": The new yogin goes to a place of solitudeand keeps his mind undisturbed. With undisturbed mind, he recollects thus: The Community of Hearers of the Blessed One is of good conduct, the Community of Hearers of the Blessed One is of upright conduct, the Community of Hearers of the Blessed One is of righteous conduct, the Community of Hearers of the Blessed One is of dutiful conduct. This Community of Hearersof the Blessed One, namely, the four pairs of men and the eight kinds of indi-viduals, is worthy of offerings, worthy of hospitality, worthy of gifts, worthyof reverential salutation, is the incomparable field of merit of the world.1

"The Community of Hearers of the Blessed One is of good conduct": The Community of Hearers of the Blessed One is of "good conduct", because it follows the good word. It is of "good conduct" and "upright conduct", because it benefits itself and others. It is of "good conduct" and "uprightconduct" because it has no enemy. It is of "good conduct" and "uprightconduct" because it avoids the two extremes and takes the mean. It is of "good conduct" and "upright conduct", because it is free from hypocrisy. Itis "good conduct", because it is free from wickedness and crookedness andfree from unclean action of body and speech.

"Is of righteous conduct": It is of "righteous conduct" because it followsthe Noble Eightfold Path. And again, "righteous" is an appellation of extinction, Nibbdna. It is of "righteous", "good conduct", because it follows the Noble Eightfold Path and reaches extinction, Nibbdna. It is of "righteous", "good conduct", because it follows the Four Noble Truths taught by the Buddha.

"Is of dutiful conduct": It is of "dutiful conduct" because it is perfectin the practice of unity in the Community of Bhikkhus. It is of "dutifulconduct", because, seeing the great fruit of virtue and the increase of virtuewhich follow the practice of unity, it observes this (unity).

"The four pairs of men and the eight kinds of individuals": The Pathand the Fruit of Stream-entrance are regarded as the attainments of a pair ofmen. The Path and the Fruit of Oncereturning are regarded as the attainment of a pair of men. The Path and Fruit of Non-returning are regarded as theattainments of a pair of men. The Path and Fruit of the Consummate Oneare regarded as the attainments of a pair of men. These are called "the fourpairs of men".

"The eight kinds of individuals" are they who gain the four Paths andthe four Fruits. These are called the eight kinds of individuals. Becausethe Community of Bhikkhus dwells in these Paths and Fruits, it is said to consist of the four pairs of men. Those who dwell in the four Paths and the fourFruits are called the eight kinds of individuals.

"Hearers": It (the Community of hearers) accomplishes after havingheard. Therefore it is called (the Community of) hearers.

"Community": The congregation of saints. It is worthy of hospitality,

1. S. II, 69; A, I, 208; D. worthy of offerings, worthy of gifts, worthy of reverential salutation, and isthe imcomparable field of merit of the world.

- "Worthy of hospitality": Worthy of hospitality means worthy of receiving invitations.
- "Worthy of offerings": Great is the fruit that could be obtained throughofferings made to it. And again, it is worthy of receiving offerings.
- "Worthy of gifts: One acquires great fruit by gifting various things to it.
- "Worthy of reverential salutation": It is fit to receive worship. Thereforeit is called worthy of reverential salutation.
- "Incomparable": It is possessed of many virtues. Therefore it is calledincomparable.
- "Field of merit of the world": This is the place where all beings acquirement. Therefore it is called the field of merit of the world.

And again, the yogin should recollect through other ways thus: ThisCommunity of Bhikkhus is the congregation that is most excellent and good. It is called the best. It is endowed with virtue, concentration, wisdom, freedom and the knowledge of freedom. That yogin recollects these various virtues in different ways. Through this recollection of the various virtues, he becomes confident. Owing to the recollection of confidence, his mind is undisturbed. With undisturbed mind he is able to destroy the hindrances, arouse the meditation (jhdna) factors and attain to access. The rest is as wasfully taught above.

The recollection of the Community of Bhikkhus has ended.

THE RECOLLECTION OF VIRTUE

- Q. What is the recollection of virtue? What is the practising of it. Whatare its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What is the procedure?
- A. Through virtue one recollects pure morals. This recollectednessis recollection and right recollectedness. Thus should the recollection of virtuebe understood. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind in the recollection of virtue is the practising of it. Awareness of the merit of virtue is its salientcharacteristic. To see the fearfulness of tribulation is its function. Appreci-ation of the unsurpassable happiness (of virtue) is its near cause. Twelveare the benefits of the recollection of virtue thus: One honours the Teacher, esteems the Law, and the Community of Bhikkhus, respects the precepts of virtue, esteems offerings, becomes heedful, sees danger in and fears the smallestfault, 1 guards oneself, protects others, has no fear of this world, has no fear of the other world and enjoys the many benefits accruing from the observance of all precepts. These are the benefits of the recollection of virtue.

1. D. I, 63: Anumattesu vajjesu bhaya-dassdvi.

"What is the procedure?": The new yogin goes to a place of solitude and keeps his mind undisturbed. With this undisturbed mind, he recollects thus: "My virtue is unbroken, indefective, unspotted, unblemished, liberating, praised by the wise, untainted, conducive to concentration".1

If unbroken, they are indefective. If indefective, they are unspotted. The others should be known in the same way.

Again, because when virtue is pure, they become the resorting-ground ofall good states, they come to be called "unbroken and indefective". As they constitute the honour of caste, they are called unspotted and unblemished. As they constitute the joy of the Consummate One, and bear no tribulation, they are called "praised by the wise". As they are untouched by views, they are called "untainted". As they lead to sure stations, they are called "conduciveto concentration".

Further, the yogin should practise recollection of virtue in other waysthinking thus: "Virtue is the bliss of separation from tribulation. This caste is worthy of honour. The treasure of virtue is secure. Its benefitshave already been taught". Thus should virtue be understood. That yoginpractises recollection of virtue considering its merits through these ways. Owing to his recollectedness and confidence, his mind is not disturbed. Withthis undisturbed mind he destroys the hindrances, arouses the meditation(jhdna) factors and attains to access-meditation. The rest is as was fullytaught above.

The recollection of virtue has ended.

THE RECOLLECTION OF LIBERALITY

Q. What is the Recollection of liberality? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What is the procedure?

A. Liberality means that one gives one's wealth to others wishing tobenefit them, and in order to derive the happiness of benefitting others. Thusis liberality to be understood. One dwells indifferent in the recollection ofthe virtue of liberality. This recollectedness is recollection and right recol-lectedness. This is called recollection of liberality. The undisturbeddwelling of the mind in this recollection is the practising of it. Awarenessof the merit of liberality is its salient characteristic. Non-miserliness is itsfunction. Non-covetousness is its near cause.

A man who practises the recollection of liberality gains ten benefits thus:He gains bliss through liberality; he becomes non-covetous through liberality;

1. A. Ill, 286: Puna ca param Mahanama ariyasdvako attano silani anussarati akhanddniacchidddni asabaldni akammdsdni bhujissdni vihhupasatthdni apardmatthdni samddhisamvattanikdni.

154 Vimuttimagga

he is not miserly, thinks of others, becomes dear to others, does not fear inothers' company, has much joy, acquires the compassionate mind, fares welland approaches the ambrosial.

"What is the procedure?": The new yogin goes to a place of solitudeand keeps his mind undisturbed. With undisturbed mind he practises recol-lection of liberality thus: "Through abandoning things I have benefittedothers; therefrom I have gained much merit. The vulgar, by reason of the dirt of covetousness, are drawn to things. I live with mind non-coveting and not unclean. Always I give and enjoy giving to others. Always I give and distribute".1

That yogin in these ways practises the recollection of liberality. Throughthe recollection of liberality his mind is endowed with confidence. Because ofthis recollection and confidence, his mind is always undisturbed. Withundisturbed mind he destroys the hindrances, arouses the meditation (jhdna)factors and attains to access-concentration. The rest is as was fully taughtabove.

The recollection of liberality lias ended.

THE RECOLLECTION OF DEITIES

Q. What is the recollection of deities? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What is the procedure?

A. Considering the benefit of birth in a heaven, one recollects one's ownmerits. This recollectedness is recollection and right recollectedness. This called recollection of deities. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind inthis recollection is the practising of it. Awareness of one's own merits andthe merits of the deities is its salient characteristic. To admire merit is its function. Confidence in the fruit of merit is its near cause.

A man who practises the recollection of deities gains eight benefits: heincreases five qualities, namely, confidence, virtue, learning, liberality andwisdom; he can gain that which heavenly beings desire and to which they are devoted; he is happy in the anticipation of the reward of merit; he honourshis body; he is reverenced by heavenly beings. Through this, he is able topractise virtue and recollection of liberality also. He fares well and approaches the ambrosial.

"What is the procedure?": The new yogin goes to a place of solitude andkeeps his mind undisturbed. With undisturbed mind he practises the recollection of deities thinking thus: "There are the Four Regents. There are the deities of Tdvatimsa, Ydma, Tusita, Nimmdnarati, Paranimmitavasavatti heavens. There are the Brahma-group deities and other deities. Those deities, beingendowed with such confidence, on dying here, were born there. I too havesuch confidence. Endowed with such virtue, such learning, such liberalityand such wisdom, those deities were born there. I too have such wisdom".1Thus he recollects his own and the deities' confidence, virtue, learning, liberalityand wisdom.

That yogin in these ways and through these virtues practises therecollection of deities, and is thereby endowed with confidence. Owing toconfidence and recollectedness, his mind is undisturbed. With undisturbedmind he destroys the hindrances, arouses the meditation (jhdna) factors and attains to access-meditation.

Q. Why does one recollect the merit of deities and not of humans?

A. The merit of the deities is the most excellent. They are born inexcellent realms and are endowed with excellent minds. Having entered agood realm, they are endowed with good. Therefore one should recollect merit of the deities and not the merits of men. The rest is as was fullytaught above.

The recollection of deities has ended.

MINDFULNESS OF RESPIRATION

Q. What is mindfulness of respiration?1 What is the practising of it?What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? .What are itsbenefits? What is the procedure?

A. Inhalation2 is the incoming breath. Exhalation3 is the outgoingbreath. The perceiving of the incoming breath and the outgoing breath—thisis being mindful, mindfulness and right mindfulness. The undisturbeddwelling of the mind (in this mindfulness) is the practising of it. To causethe arising of perception as regards respiration is its salient characteristic. Attending to contact4 is its function. Removal of discursive thought5 is itsnear cause.

BENEFITS

- "What are its benefits?": If a man practises mindfulness of respiration, heattains to the peaceful, the exquisite, the lovely, and the blissful life. He causesevil and demeritorious states to disappear and to perish as soon as they arise.6He is not negligent as regards his body or his organ of sight. His body andmind do not waver or tremble.7 He fulfils the four foundations of mindfulness,the seven enlightenment factors and freedom. This has been praised by the

"What is the procedure?": The new yogin having gone to a forest, to the foot of a tree or to a wide open space, sits down, with legs crossed under him, with the body held erect, with mindfulness established in front. He is mindfulin respiration. Mindful of the outgoing breath, that yogin knows, when hebreathes out a long breath: "I breathe out a long breath"; [430] when hebreathes in a long breath, he knows: "I breathe in a long breath"; when hebreathes in a short breath, he knows: "I breathe in a short breath"; whenhe breathes out a short breath, he knows: "I breathe out a short breath". Thus he knows. "I am breathing in, in such and such a way", thus he trainshimself. "I am breathing out, in such and such a way", thus he trains himself. (Experiencing the whole body; calming the bodily formations), experiencingjoy, experiencing bliss, experiencing the mental formations, calming the mentalformations, (experiencing the mind), gladdening the mind, concentrating themind, freeing the mind, discerning impermanence, discerning dispassion, discerning cessation, discerning renunciation, thus he trains himself. "Discerning renunciation, I breathe out in such and such a way", thus hetrains himself; "discerning renunciation, I breathe in, in such and such a way", thus he trains himself.2

Here, he trains himself in "breathing in" means: "mindfulness is fixed the nose-tip or on the lip".3 These are the places connected with breathing in and breathing out. That yogin attends to the incoming breath here. Heconsiders the contact of the incoming and the outgoing breath, throughmindfulness that is fixed at the nosetip or on the lip. Mindfully, he breathesin; mindfully, he breathes out. He does not consider (the breath) when ithas gone in and also when it has gone out. 1 He considers the contact of theincoming breath and the outgoing breath, at the nose-tip or on the lip, withmindfulness. He breathes in and breathes out with mindfulness. It is as if aman were sawing wood. That man does not attend to the going back and forthof the saw. In the same way the yogin does not attend to the perception of the incoming and the outgoing breath in mindfulness of respiration. He isaware of the contact at the nose-tip or on the lip, and he breathes in and out, with mindfulness.2 If, when the breath comes in or goes out, the yogin considers the inner or the outer, his mind will be distracted. If his mind is distracted, his body and mind will waver and tremble. These are the disadvantages. Heshould not purposely breathe very long or very short breaths. If he purposelybreathes very long or very short breaths, his mind wilt be distracted and hisbody and mind will waver and tremble. These are the disadvantages.

He should not attach himself to diverse perceptions connected with breath-ing in and breathing out. If he does so, his other mental factors will be disturb-ed. If his mind is disturbed, his body and mind will waver and tremble. Thus countless impediments arise because the points of contact of the incomingbreath and the outgoing breath are countless. He should be mindful and should not let the mind be distracted. He should not essay too strenuouslynor too laxly. If he essays too laxly, he will fall into rigidity and torpor. If he essays too strenuously, he will become restless. If the yogin falls intorigidity and torpor or becomes restless, his body and mind will waver and tremble. These are the disadvantages.

To the yogin who attends to the incoming breath with mind that is cleansed of the nine lesser defilements the image4 arises with a pleasant feeling similar to that which is produced in the action of spinning cotton or silk cotton. Also, it is likened to the pleasant feeling produced by a breeze.1 Thus in breathingin and out, air touches the nose or the lip and causes the setting-up of air per-ception mindfulness. This does not depend on colour or form.2 This iscalled the image. If the yogin develops the image and increases it at the nose-tip, between the eye-brows, on the forehead or establishes it in several places, 3he feels as if his head were filled with air. Through increasing in this way hiswhole body is charged with bliss. This is called perfection.

And again, there is a yogin: he sees several images from the beginning. He sees various forms such as smoke, mist, dust, sand of gold, or he experiences something similar to the pricking of a needle or to an ant's bite. If his minddoes not become clear regarding these different images, he will be confused. Thus he fulfils overturning and does not gain the perception of respiration. If his mind becomes clear, the yogin does not experience confusion. Heattends to respiration and he does not cause the arising of other perceptions. Meditating thus he is able to end confusion and acquire the subtle image. And he attends to respiration with mind that is free. That image is free. Because that image is free, desire arises. Desire being free, that yogin attends to respiration and becomes joyful. Desire and joy being free, he attends to respiration with equipoise. Equipoise, desire and joy being free, he attendsto respiration, and his mind is not disturbed. If his mind is not disturbed, he will destroy the hindrances, and arouse the meditation (jhdna) factors. Thus this yogin will reach the calm and sublime fourth meditation, jhdna. This is as was fully taught above.

COUNTING, CONNECTION, CONTACTING AND FIXING

And again, certain predecessors4 taught four ways of practising mindful-ness of respiration. They are counting, connection, contacting and fixing.5Q. What is counting? A. A new yogin counts the breaths from one toten, beginning with the outgoing breath and ending with the incoming breath.He does not count beyond ten. Again, it is taught that he counts from oneto five but does not count beyond five. He does not miss. At that time(i.e., when he misses) he should count (the next) or stop that count. Thushe dwells in mindfulness of respiration, attending to the object. Thus shouldcounting be understood.

- "Connection": Having counted, he follows respiration with mindfulness, continuously. This is called connection.

- "Contacting": Having caused the arising of air perception, he dwells, attending to the contact of respiration at the nose-tip or on the lip. This is called contacting.
- "Fixing": Having acquired facility in contacting, he should establish the image, and he should establish joy and bliss and other states which arisehere. Thus should fixing be known.

That counting suppresses uncertainty. It causes the abandoning of un-certainty. Connection removes gross discursive thinking and causes unbrokenmindfulness of respiration. Contacting removes distraction and makes forsteady perception. One attains to distinction through bliss.

SIXTEEN WAYS OF TRAINING IN MINDFULNESSOF RESPIRATION

(1) and (2) "Breathing in a long breath, breathing out a short breath, breathing in a short breath, thus he trains himself" 1

Knowledge causes the arising of non-confusion and the object. Q. Whatis non-confusion and what is the object? A. The new yogin gains tranquillityof body and mind and abides in mindfulness of respiration. The respirationsbecome subtle. Because of subtility they are hard to lay hold of. If at thattime, the yogin's breathing is long, he, through fixing, knows it is long. If theimage arises he considers it through its own nature. Thus should non-confusionbe known. And again he should consider the breaths, whether long or short(as the case may be). Thus should he practise. And again, the yogin causesthe arising of the clear image through the object. Thus should one practise.

- (3) "Experiencing the whole body, I breathe in', thus he trains himself":In two ways he knows the whole body, through nonconfusion and throughthe object. Q. What is the knowledge of the whole body through non-confusion? A. A yogin practises mindfulness of respiration and develops concentration through contact accompanied by joy and bliss. Owing to the experiencing of contact accompanied by joy and bliss the whole body becomes non-confused. Q. What is the knowledge of the whole body through the object? A. The incoming breath and the outgoing breath comprise the bodily factors dwelling in one sphere. The object of respiration and the mindand the mental properties are called "body". These bodily factors are called "body". Thus should the whole body be known. That yogin knows the whole body thus: "Though there is the body, there is no being or soul".3 - 2. Cp. S. V, 329-30: Kdyannatardkarh Ananda etam vaddmi yad idam assasapassasarh.

- 3. As. 38, Sec. 93: Tasmirh kho pana sarnaye dhammd honti dhammesu dhammdnupassiviharati ti ddisu nissattanijjivatdyam. Svdyam idhdpi nissattanijjivatdyam eva vattati.

THE THREE TRAININGS

- "Thus he trains himself" refers to the three trainings. The first is thetraining of the higher virtue, the second is the training of the higher thought, the third is the training of the higher wisdom. 1 True virtue is called the training of the higher virtue; true concentration is called the training of the higherthought; and true wisdom is called the training of the higher wisdom. Thatyogin by these three kinds of training meditates on the object, recollects the object and trains himself. He practises repeatedly. This is the meaning of "thus he trains himself".
- (4) " 'Calming the bodily formation, I breathe', thus he trains himself": Which are the bodily formations? He breathes in and out with such bodily formations as bending down; stooping, bending all over, bending forward, moving, quivering, trembling and shaking.2 And again, he calms the grossbodily formations and practises the first meditation, jhdna, through the subtlebodily formations. From there, he progresses to the second meditation, jhdna, through the more subtle bodily formations. From there, he progresses to the third meditation, ihdna, through the still more subtle bodily formations. From there, he progresses to the fourth meditation, jhdna, having ended(the bodily formations) without remainder. A. If he causes the ending of respiration without remainder, 3 how is he able to practise mindfulness of respiration? A. Because he has grasped well the general characteristics, the image arises even when the respirations lapse. And because of thesemany characteristics, he is able to develop the image and enter into meditation, jhdna.

- (5) "'Experiencing joy through the object, I breathe in', thus he trainshimself". [431] He attends to respiration. He arouses joy in two meditations, jhdnas. This joy can be known through two ways: through non-confusionand through the object.4 Here the yogin enters into concentration and experiences joy through non-confusion, through investigation, throughovercoming and through the object.
- (6) "'Experiencing bliss, I breathe in', thus he trains himself": Heattends to respiration. He arouses bliss in three meditations, jhdnas. This bliss can be known through two ways: through non-confusion and throughthe object. The rest is as was fully taught above.

- (7) "Experiencing the mental formations, I breathe in', thus he trainshimself": "Mental formations" means: "Perception and feeling". Hearouses these mental formations in four meditations, jhdnas. He knowsthrough two ways: through nonconfusion and through the object. Therest is as was fully taught above.
- (8) "'Calming the mental formations, I breathe in', thus he trainshimself": The mental formations are called perception and feeling. Hecalms the gross mental formations and trains himself. The rest is as wasfully taught above.
- (9) "'Experiencing the mind, I breathe in', thus he trains himself":He attends to the incoming breath and the outgoing breath. The mind isaware of entering into and going out of the object, through two ways: throughnon-confusion and through the object. The rest is as was fully taught above.
- (10) "Gladdening the mind, I breathe in', thus he trains himself':Joy means rejoicing. In two meditations, jhdnas, he causes the mind to exult. Thus he trains himself. The rest is as was fully taught above.
- (11) "Concentrating the mind, I breathe in', thus he trains himself':That yogin attends to the incoming breath and the outgoing breath. Throughmindfulness and through meditation, jhdna, he causes the mind to be intenton the object. Placing the mind well he establishes it.1 Thus he trains himself.
- (12) "'Freeing the mind, I breathe in', thus he trains himself": Thatyogin attends to the incoming breath and the outgoing

- breath. If his mindis slow and slack, he frees it from rigidity; if it is too active, he frees it fromrestlessness. Thus he trains himself. If his mind is elated, he frees it fromlust. Thus he trains himself. If it is depressed, he frees it from hatred. Thushe trains himself. If his mind is sullied, he frees it from the lesser defilements. Thus he trains himself. And again, if his mind is not inclined towards theobject and is not pleased with it, he causes his mind to be inclined towards it. Thus he trains himself.
- (13) "'Discerning impermanence, I breathe in', thus he trains himself':He attends to the incoming breath and the outgoing breath. Discerningthe incoming and the outgoing breath, the object of the incoming and theoutgoing breath, the mind and the mental properties and their arising andpassing away, he trains himself.
- (14) "Discerning dispassion, I breathe in', thus he trains himself":He attends to the incoming breath and the outgoing breath (thinking) thus: "This is impermanence; this is dispassion; this is extinction, this is Nibbdna". Thus he breathes in and trains himself.
- 1. Cp. Pts. I, 191: Digham assasavasena cittassa ekaggatd avikkhepo samddhi, digharh passa-savasena, yd cittassa thiti santhiti avatthiti avisaharo avikkhepo....
- (15) "Discerning cessation, I breathe in', thus he trains himself":Discerning many hindrances, according to reality, (he thinks), "These are impermanent, the destruction of these is extinction, Nibbdna". Thus withtranquillized vision he trains himself.
- (16) "Discerning renunciation, I breathe in', thus he trains himself":Discerning tribulation according to reality, (he thinks), "These are imperma-nent", and freeing himself from tribulation, he abides in the peace of extinction, Nibbdna. Thus he trains himself and attains to bliss. The tranquil andthe sublime are to be understood thus: All activities are brought to rest. All defilements are forsaken. Craving is destroyed. Passion is absent. It is the peace of blowing out. 1

Of these sixteen, the first twelve fulfil serenity and insight, and are discerned impermanence. The last four fulfil only insight. Thus should serenity and insight be understood.2

And again, all these are of four kinds. The first is that practice whichleads to the completion of discernment. There is a time when one discerns(impermanence) through attending to the incoming breath and the outgoingbreath. This is called the knowledge of the long and the short through practis-ing. Calming the bodily formations and the mental formations, gladdeningthe mind, concentrating the mind and freeing the mind — this is called thearising of the knowledge of the whole body, bliss and the mental formations. "Experiencing the mind" means: "The completion of discernment". "There is a time when one discerns" and so forth refers to the four activities whichalways begin with the discernment of impermanence.

And again, practice means attaining to a state (of meditation, jhdna)through mindfulness of respiration. This is practice. Through this mind-fulness of respiration, one attains to the state which is with (-out, even) initial application of thought. That is the state which is with initial and sustained application of thought, and the state of sustained application of thought. The experiencing of joy is the state of the second meditation, jhdna. The experiencing of bliss is the state of the third meditation, jhdna. The experiencing of the mind is the state of the fourth meditation, jhdna.

And again, all these are of two kinds. They are practice and fulfilment. Such practice as is included within fulfilment does not cause decrease of thesixteen bases. Practice is like a seed; it is the cause of merit. Fulfilmentis like a flower or a fruit, because it proceeds from a similar thing.

If mindfulness of respiration is practised, the four foundations of mind-fulness are fulfilled. If the four foundations of mindfulness are practised, the seven enlightenment factors are fulfilled. If the seven enlightenmentfactors are practised, freedom and wisdom are fulfilled.1

THE FOUR FOUNDATIONS OF MINDFULNESS

Q. How is such a state attained?

A. The foundation of mindfulness which begins with the long incomingbreath and the long outgoing breath is the reviewing of the body. That whichbegins with the experiencing of joy is the reviewing of feeling. That whichbegins with the experiencing of the mind is the reviewing of thought. That which begins with the discernment of impermanence is the reviewing of states. Thus one who practises mindfulness of respiration fulfils the four foundations of mindfulness. 2

THE SEVEN ENLIGHTENMENT FACTORS

How are the seven enlightenment factors fulfilled through the practice of the four foundations of mindfulness? If the yogin practises the (four) foundations of mindfulness, he is able to abide non-confused in mindfulness; this is called the enlightenment factor of mindfulness. That yogin, abidingin mindfulness, investigates subjection to ill, impermanence and phenomena; this is called the enlightenment factor of inquiry into states. Inquiring intostates (dhammd) thus, he strives earnestly without slackening; this is called the enlightenment factor of exertion. Developing exertion, he arouses joythat is clean; this is called the enlightenment factor of joy. Through the mindbeing full of joy, his body and mind are endowed with calm; this is called the enlightenment factor of calm. Through calmness his body attains to easeand his mind is possessed of concentration; this is called the enlightenmentfactor of concentration. Owing to concentration, the mind acquires equanimity; this is called the enlightenment factor of equanimity. Thus because of the

How are freedom and wisdom fulfilled through the practice of the sevenenlightenment factors? The yogin who has practised the seven enlightenmentfactors much, gains in a moment2 the wisdom of the Path and the Fruit offreedom. Thus because of the practice of the seven enlightenment factors, wisdom and freedom are fulfilled.3

of thought suppressed in mindfulness of respiration, and not the other?

A. It1 is used here in a different sense. Discursiveness is a hindrance tomeditation, jhdna. In this sense, it2 is suppressed.

Why is air contact pleasant? Because it calms the mind. It is comparableto the soothing of a heavenly musician's (gandhabba's) mind with sweetsounds. By this discursive thinking is suppressed. And again, it is like aperson walking along the bank of a river. His mind is collected, is directedtowards one object and does not wander. Therefore in mindfulness of respiration, the suppression of discursive thinking is taught.3

MINDFULNESS OF DEATH

Q. What is mindfulness of death? What is the practising of it? Whatare its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The cutting off of the life-faculty — this is called death. The undis-turbed mindfulness of this — this is called the practising of it. The cuttingoff of one's life is its salient characteristic. Disagreeableness is its function. Well-being is its near cause.

What are its benefits? He who practises mindfulness of death is possessed diligence as regards the higher meritorious states, and of dislike as regards the demeritorious. He does not hoard clothes and ornaments. He is notstingy. He is able to live long, does not cling to things, is endowed with the perception of impermanence, the perception of subjection to ill and the percep-tion of not-self. He fares well and approaches the ambrosial. When hecomes to die, he does not suffer bewilderment.

What is the procedure? The new yogin enters a place of solitude andguards his thoughts. He considers the death of beings with mind undistractedthus: "I shall die; I shall enter the realm of death; I shall not escape death". Thus it is taught in the Nettipada Sutta: 5 "If a man wishes to meditate ondeath, he should contemplate a person who is on the point of being killedand he should know the causes of death".

Here there are four kinds in mindfulness of death: (1) Associated withanxiety. (2) Associated with fear. (3) Associated with indifference.(4) Associated with wisdom.

The mindfulness associated with the loss of one's own beloved child is associated with anxiety. The mindfulness connected with the sudden death of one's own child is associated with fear. The mindfulness of death by aburner (of corpses) is associated with indifference. Remembering (the nature of)the world, one develops aversion — this is called associated with wisdom. Here the yogin should not practise the mindfulness associated with anxiety, fear or indifference, because [432] through them he is not able to remove tribula-tion. Tribulation can only be removed through the mindfulness associated with wisdom.

There are three kinds of death thus: death according to general opinion, death as a complete cutting off, momentary death. What is "death according to general opinion"? Death as it is understood in common parlance. This is called "death according to general opinion". "Death as a complete cuttingoff" means: "The Consummate One has cut off the defilements". "Momentarydeath" means: "The momentary perishing of all formations".1

And again, there are two kinds in death: untimely death and timely death. Death through suicide, murder or disease, or through being cut off in theprime of life without (assignable) cause is called untimely death. Deaththrough the exhaustion of the life-span or through old age is called timelydeath. One should recall to mind these two kinds of death.

And again, predecessor-teachers3 have taught the practice of mindfulnessof death in these eight ways:4 through the presence of a murderer; throughthe absence of an efficient cause;* through inference; through the body beingcommon to the many; through the weakness of the life-principle; throughthe distinguishing of time; through the absence of the sign; through the shortness of the moment. How should one practise mindfulness of death "throughthe presence of a murderer"? A. Like a man who is being taken to a place tobe killed. When that man sees the murderer drawing out a sword and followinghim, he thinks thus: "This man intends to kill me; I shall be killed at anymoment; I shall be killed at any step. I shall surely be killed if I turn back. I shall surely be killed if I sit down; I shall surely be killed if I sleep". Thus should the yogin practise mindfulness of death "through the presence of amurderer". Q. How should one practise mindfulness of death "throughthe absence of an efficient cause"? There is no cause or skill that can makelife immortal. When the sun and the moon rise, no cause or skill can makethem turn back. Thus the yogin practises mindfulness of death. Q. Howdoes one practise mindfulness of death "through inference"? A. Manykings who possessed great treasures, great vehicle-kings, Maha Sudassana ofgreat supernormal power, Mandhatu and all other kings entered the state ofdeath. And again, many sages of old, Vessamitta and Yamataggi, who possessed great supernormal power and who caused fire and water to issue forth from their bodies, also entered the state of death. Great hearers of old like the Venerable Elders Sariputta, Moggallana and others, who were possessed of immense wisdom and power also entered the state of death. Many Pacceka-buddhas who attained enlightenment without owning a teacher, and who wereendowed with all virtue, also entered the state of death. And again, they who come and go in the same way, the Consummate, Supremely Enlightened, Matchless Ones, endowed with knowledge and conduct, who have won the further shore of merit — many such also entered the state of death. Howshall I with my brief life-span escape entry into the state of death? Thusthe yogin practises mindfulness of death "through inference". Q. How doesone practise mindfulness of death" through the body being common to themany"? A. Through the disorder of wind and phlegm, the state of death isfulfilled. Through the disturbance of many worms or through lack of drinkand food, the state of death is fulfilled. Or through being bitten by poisonoussnakes, centipedes, millepedes, or rats, death is fulfilled. Or through beingmauled by a lion, a tiger or a leopard, or through being attacked by a demon(naga), or through being gored by a cow, death is fulfilled. Or throughbeing killed by humans or non-humans, death is fulfilled. Thus one practises mindfulness of death "through the body being common to the many". O. How does one practise mindfulness of death "through the weakness of the lifeprinciple"? A. In two ways one practises mindfulness of death throughthe weakness of the life-principle. Through the state of being placed inpowerlessness and through dependence on the powerless, the weakness ofthe life-principle is fulfilled.

SIMILES OF THE FOAM, PLANTAIN TRUNK AND BUBBLE

Q. How is the life-principle weak through its being placed in powerless-ness? A. There is no substantiality in this body as it is taught in the simile of the foam, in the simile of the plantain trunk and in the simile of the bubble, 1 because it is devoid of reality and it is separate from reality. Thus throughthe state of being placed in powerlessness, the life-principle is weak. Q. Howis the life-principle weak through dependence on the powerless? A. This iskept together by the incoming breath and the outgoing breath, by the fourgreat primaries, by drink and food, by four postures and by warmth. Thusit depends on the powerless. Therefore the life-principle is weak. Thus one practises mindfulness of death "through the weakness of the life-principle"in two ways. Q. How does one practise mindfulness of death "throughthe distinguishing of time"? A. All beings were born is the past (andsuffered death). At present, (nearly) all enter the state of death without reaching a hundred years. Thus one practises mindfulness of death "throughthe distinguishing of time". And again one practises thus: "I wonder whether it is possible for me to live a day and a night. I wonder whether during thattime I could think on the teaching of the Blessed One — could I have thatopportunity! I wonder whether I could live even for a day. Or could I livefor half a day, or for a short while. Could I live long enough to partake of a single meal, half a meal, or even long enough to gather and partake of fouror five morsels of food! Could I live long enough to breathe out havingbreathed in, or could I live long enough to breathe in having breathed out".1(Thus) one practises mindfulness of death "through the distinguishing oftime".

- Q. How does one practise mindfulness of death "through the absence of the sign"? A. There is no sign. Therefore there is no fixed time fordeath. Thus one practises mindfulness of death "through the absence of the sign". Q. How does one practise mindfulness of death "through theshortness of the moment"? A. If one reckons the causes of the presentand not those of the past or the future, beings exist but a single conscious moment. Nothing exists for two moments. Thus all beings sink in the conscious moment. It is taught in the Abhidhamma thus: "In the past conscious moment, one did not live, one is not living, one will not live. In the future conscious moment, one did not live, one is not living, one will not live. In the present conscious moment, one did not live, one will not live, only one is living".1

And again, it is taught in this stanza:

"Life and personality, sorrow, happiness and allare joined to one thought; quickly the moment passes. By the yet-notbecome, nothing is born; by the present one lives. When mind's shattered, the world dies; 2 so the world's end was taught".

Thus one practises mindfulness of death through the shortness of themoment. That yogin through these ways practises mindfulness of death anddevelops (the perception of) disagreeableness. Owing to facility in (theperception of) disagreeableness and owing to facility in mindfulness, his mindis not disturbed. When his mind is undisturbed, he is able to destroy thehindrances and cause the arising of the meditation (jhdna) factors and attainto access-concentration.

Q. What is the difference between the perception of impermanence andmindfulness of death?

A. The perception of the passing away of the aggregations is called the perception of impermanence. The mindfulness of the destruction of the faculties is called mindfulness of death. The practice of the perception of impermanence and the perception of not-self is called the rejection of pride. He who practises mindfulness of death can dwell in the perception of impermanence and the perception of subjection to ill through the thought of the cutting off of life and the destruction of the mind. These are the differences between them.

Mindfulness of death has ended MINDFULNESS OF BODY

- Q. What is mindfulness of body? What is the practising of it? Whatare its salient characteristic and function? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?
- 1. Looked at from the point of view of the changing khandhas, there is no important divergence to be noted here. For instance, in Vis. Mag. 301 this occurs:

Khanikattd ca dhammdnam, yehi khandhehi te katamamandparh niruddhd te kassa ddni 'dha kujjhasilThe so-called being of the present did not exist in the past and will not exist in the future.

Anibbattena na jdto, paccuppannena jivati,cittabhangamato loko

A. Mindfulness as regards the nature of the body is the practising of it. That mindfulness is mindfulness and right mindfulness. Thus is mindfulnessof body to be understood. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind in thismindfulness is the practising of it. The becoming manifest of the nature ofthe body is its salient characteristic. The perception of disagreeableness isits function. The indication of the unreal is its manifestation. 1

What are its benefits? A man who practises mindfulness of body canendure. He can bear to see the fearful and he can bear heat, cold and thelike. He is endowed with the perception of impermanence, the perception of not-self, the perception of impurity and the perception of tribulation. Heattains to the four meditations, jhdnas, with ease, gains a clear view of things,is pleased with his practice, fares well and approaches the ambrosial.

What is the procedure? The new yogin enters a place of solitude, sitsdown and guards his thoughts. With mind undisturbed, he meditates on thenature of his body. How does he practise mindfulness of body?

THIRTY-TWO PARTS OF THE BODY

This body consists of head-hair, body-hair, nails, teeth, skin, flesh, sinews, bones, marrow, kidneys, liver, heart, spleen, lungs, bile, gorge, grease, fat, brain, 2 midriff, intestines, mesentery, excrement, urine, pus, blood, phlegm, sweat, synovial fluid, tears, nasal mucus, saliva, and is impure. The new yoginat first should recite vocally these thirty-two parts of the body in the directand in the reverse order. He should always vocally recite well and investigatethese (thirty-two parts). Vocally reciting well he should investigate always. Thereafter he should reflect on them only mentally in these four ways: through colour, through the formations, the form, the basis. He may, with discrimination, take one or two [433] or more and grasp the crude sign. Thusthe yogin is able to cause the manifestation of three trends of thought, namely, of colour, of disliking and of space. When the yogin causes the arising of the sign through colour, he is able to meditate with facility through the colourkasina. When he causes the arising of the sign through disliking he is ableto meditate with facility on impurity. When the yogin causes the arising of the sign through space, he is able to meditate with facility on the elements. If the yogin practises on the kasinas, he will get to the fourth meditation, jhdna. If the yogin practises on impurity, he will get to the first meditation, jhdna.

If he practises on the elements, he will get to accessconcentration.

Here a walker in hate causes the manifestation of the sign through colour; a walker in passion, through disliking; and a walker in wisdom, through theelements. And again, a walker in hate should meditate through colour; a walker in passion, through disliking and a walker in wisdom, through theelements.

MINDFULNESS IN THIRTEEN WAYS

And again, one should recall to mind the nature of the body throughthirteen ways: through seed, place, condition, oozing, gradual formation,worms, connection,1 assemblage, loathsomeness, impurity, dependence, non-awareness of obligation, finitude.

- Q. How should a man reflect on the nature of the body through "seed"?
- A. As elaeagnus pungens, kosdtaki*,2 and the like burn, so this bodyproduced from the impure seed of parents also burns. This is impure. Thusone should recall to mind the nature of the body through "seed".
- Q. How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "place"? A. This body does not come out of uppala kumuda or pundatika Thiscomes out of the place where impurity, malodour and uncleanness are pressedtogether. This body lies across the womb from left to right. It leans against back-bone of the mother, wrapped in the caul. This place is impure. Therefore the body is also impure. Thus should one recall the nature of thebody through "place".6

- Q. How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "condi-tion"? A, This body is not fed with gold, silver or gems. It does notgrow up through being fed with candana*,1 tagara*,s aloe-wood and the like. This body grows in the womb of the mother and is mixed with nasal mucus, saliva, slobber and the tears which the mother swallows. This body is nourishedwith foul-smelling food and drink produced in the mother's womb. Rice, milk,9 beans, nasal mucus, saliva, slobber and phlegm which are swallowedby the mother form part of this body. On malodorous, filthy fluid is thisbrought up. Thus should one recall to mind the nature of the body through" condition".
- Q. How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "oozing"? A. This body is like a bag of skin with many holes exuding filth and urine. This body is filled with filth and urine. This body is a conglomeration ofdrink and food taken in, of nasal mucus, saliva, filth and urine. These various impurities ooze from the nine openings.1 Thus should one recall to mindthe nature of the body through "oozing".

Q. How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "gradualformation"? A. This body gradually forms itself according to its previouskamma. In the first week the kalala* is formed.

In the second week the abbuda* is formed.

In the third week the pesi* is formed.

In the fourth week the ghana* is formed.

In the fifth week five parts2 are formed.

In the sixth week four parts are formed.

In the seventh week again four parts are formed.

In the eighth week again twenty-eight parts are formed.

In the ninth and tenth weeks the backbone is formed.

In the eleventh week three hundred bones are formed.

In the twelfth week eight hundred parts are formed.

In the thirteenth week nine hundred parts are formed,

In the fourteenth week one hundred lumps of flesh are formed.

In the fifteenth week blood is formed.

In the sixteenth week the midriff is formed.

In the seventeenth week the skin is formed.

In the eighteenth week the colour of the skin is formed.

In the nineteenth week the wind according to kamma fills the body.

In the twentieth week the nine orifices are formed.

In the twenty-fifth week the seventeen thousand textures of the skin are

In the twenty-sixth week the body is endowed with hardness. [formed.

In the twenty-seventh week the body is endowed with the powers.

In the twenty-eighth week the ninety-nine thousand pores are produced.

In the twenty-ninth week the whole is completed. And again it is taughtthat in the seventh week the child's body is complete, that it leans backwith hanging head in a crouching position. In the forty-second week, by theaid of the kamma-produced wind, it reverses its position, turns its feetupwards and its head down and goes to the gate of birth. At this time it isborn. In the world it is commonly known as a being. Thus one shouldreflect on the nature of the body through "gradual formation".3

THE WORMS THAT RELY ON THE BODY

- Q. How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "worms"?
- A. This body is gnawn by eighty thousand worms. The worm that relies on the hair is called "hair-iron". The worm that relies on the skullis called "swollen ear". The worm that relies on the brain is called "maddener". In this class there are four kinds. The first is called ukurimba* The secondis called shibara* The third is called daraka* The fourth is called daka-shira* The worm that relies on the eye is called "eye-licker". The wormthat relies on the ear is called "ear-licker". The worm that relies on thenose is called "nose-licker". There are three kinds here. Q. How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "connec-tion"? A. The shin-bone is connected with the footbone; the shin-bone isconnected with the hip-bone; the thigh-bone is connected with the backbone; the backbone is connected with the backbone is connected with the shoulder-blade; the shoulder-blade is connected with the humerus; thehumerus is connected with the neck-bone; the neck-bone is connected with theskull; the skull is connected with the cheek-bones. The cheek-bones are connected with the teeth. Thus by the connection of the bones and the covering of the skin, this unclean body is kept in position and is complete. This body isborn of kamma. Nobody makes this. Thus should one recall the nature of the body through "connection".

BONES OF THE BODY

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "assemblage"? There are nine bones of the head, two cheek bones, thirty-two teeth, sevenneck-bones, fourteen ribs, twenty-four side-bones, eighteen joints of the spine, two hipbones, sixty-four hand-bones, sixty-four foot-bones, and sixty-foursoft-bones which depend on the flesh. These three hundred bones and eightor nine hundered tendons are connected with each other. There are ninehundred muscles, seventeen thousand textures of the skin, eight million hairsof the head, ninety-nine thousand hairs of the body, sixty interstices, eightythousand worms. Bile, saliva and brain are each a palata* in weight — inRyo this is equal to four ryo — and blood is one attha* in weight — in Ryothis is equal to three sho. All these many and varied forms are only a heap offilth, a collection of urine and are called body. Thus should one recollect onthe nature of the body through "assemblage".

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "loathsomeness"? A man esteems purification most. The things which a man holds dear aresuch means of adorning himself as sweet perfume, unguents and pastes andbeautiful clothes, and bedspreads, pillows, mats and cushions used for sleepingand sitting, bolsters, blankets, canopies, bedding, and various kinds of foodand drink, dwelling-places and gifts. A man manifests much attachment to these (at first) and afterwards dislikes them. Thus one should reflect on thenature of the body through "loathsomeness".

IMPURITY OF THE BODY

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "impurity"? When clothes and adornments become dirty they can be made clean again. Their purity can be renewed because their nature is pure. But the body isimpure. Thus should one reflect on the nature of the body through "impurity".

SOME DISEASES

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "dependence"?Depending on a pond, flowers are produced. Depending on a garden, fruitsare produced. In the same way, depending on this body, various defilementsand diseases are produced. Thus ache of eye, ear, nose tongue, body, head, mouth and teeth, throat-ailments, shortness of the breath, heat and cold, abdominal ache, heart-disease, epilepsy, flatulence, diarrhoea and vomiting, leprosy, goitre, vomiting of blood, itch, smallpox, skin-disease, ague, contagious diseases, gonorrhoea, chills and others give endless trouble to this body. Thusone should reflect on the nature of the body through "dependence".

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through the "non-awareness of obligation"? Now, a man prepares tasty food and drink andtakes them for his body's sake. He bathes and perfumes his body and clothesit with garments for sleeping and sitting. Thus he tends his body. But onthe contrary, ungratefully, this body which is like a poisonous tree goes todecay, to disease and to death. The body is like an intimate friend who doesnot know his obligations. Thus one should reflect on the nature of the bodythrough the "non-awareness of obligation".

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through "finitude"? This body will be consumed by fire or devoured (by animals) or go to waste. This body is finite. Thus should one reflect on the nature of the body through "finitude".

This yogin, through these ways, practises mindfulness of body. Throughthe acquisition of facility in mindfulness and wisdom, his mind becomes un-disturbed. When his mind is undisturbed, he is able to destroy the hindrances, cause the arising of the meditation (jhdna) factors and attain to the distinction for which he yearns.

Mindfulness of body has ended. THE RECOLLECTION OF PEACE

Q. What is the recollection of peace? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure? A. Peace is the stilling of the movements of themind and body. Complete stilling is called peace. One recalls peace to mind, well. This is recollectedness, recollection and right recollectedness. This iscalled the recollection of peace. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind in this recollection is called the practising of it. The manifestation of lastingmerit is its salient characteristic. Non-restlessness is its function. Sublimefreedom is its near cause.

What are its benefits? When a man practises the recollection of peace, happily he sleeps, happily he awakes, is endowed with calm. His faculties are tranquil and he is able to fulfil his aspirations. He is pleasant of mein, modest of demeanour and is esteemed by others. He fares well and approaches the ambrosial.

What is the procedure? The new yogin enters into a place of solitude and sits down with mind intent (on the recollection of peace) and undisturbed. If this bhikkhu calms his faculties, his mind will be quietened and he will enjoytranquillity immediately. This bhikkhu sees and hears, through bodily, verbal and mental action, through the recollection of peace and through themerits of peace. It was taught by the Blessed One thus: "That bhikkhu isendowed with virtue, endowed with concentration, endowed with wisdom, endowed with freedom and is endowed with the knowledge of freedom. Great, I declare, is the gain, great is the advantage of one1 who sees that bhikkhu. Great, I declare, is the advantage of one who hears that bhikkhu. Great, Ideclare, is the advantage of one who goes near to that bhikkhu. Great, Ideclare, is the advantage of one who pays homage to that bhikkhu. Great, Ideclare, is the advantage of one who reflects on that bhikkhu or lives the holylife under him.

"How is that so? Bhikkhus who listen to the words of that bhikkhuwill be able to gain the twofold seclusion, namely, that of the body and thatof the mind".2

In the recollection of peace, one recollects (that bhikkhu) thus: When thatbhikkhu entered the first meditation, jhdna, he destroyed the hindrances. One recollects: When he entered the second meditation, jhdna, he destroyedinitial and sustained application of thought. One recollects: When he entered the third meditation, jhdna, he destroyed joy. One recollects: When heentered the fourth meditation, jhdna, he destroyed bliss. One recollects: When he entered the sphere of the infinity of space, he destroyed perception form, perception of sense reaction and perception of diversity. One recollects: When he entered the sphere of the infinity of consciousness, hedestroyed space. One recollects: When he entered the sphere of nothingness, he destroyed the perception of the sphere of the infinity of consciousness. One recollects: When he entered the sphere of neither perception nor nonperception, he destroyed the perception of the sphere of nothingness. Onerecollects: When he entered the state of the dissolution of perception and sensation, he destroyed perception and sensation. One recollects: When heattained to the Fruit of Stream-entrance, he destroyed the defilements whichare together with views (Lit. as that of views)1. One recollects: When heattained to the Fruit of Once-returning, he destroyed coarse passion, coarsehatred and coarse defilements.2 One recollects: When he attained to the Fruit of Non-returning, he destroyed fine defilements, fine passion and finehate.3 One recollects: When he attained to the Fruit of the ConsummateOne, he destroyed all defilements.4 And one recollects: When he attainsto extinction, Nibbdna, he destroys everything. Thus in the recollection of peace (one recalls that bhikkhu to mind.)

That yogin, in these ways and through these merits recalls peace to mind, and is endowed with confidence. Through being unrestricted in faith, herecollects with ease, is in mind undisturbed. When his mind is undisturbed, he destroys the hindrances, causes the arising of meditation (jhdna) factors and attains to access-meditation.

The recollection of peace has ended.

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

The following are the miscellaneous teachings concerning these tenrecollections. One recalls to mind the merits of the Buddhas of the past andthe future — this is called the practice of the recollection of the Buddha. In the same way one recollects on the Pacceka-buddhas. If a man recalls tomind one of the doctrines that has been taught, it is called the practice of therecollection of the Law. If a man recalls to mind the merits of the life ofone hearer, it is called the recollection of the Community of Bhikkhus. If aman recalls virtue to mind, it is called the practice of the recollection of virtue. If a man recollects liberality, it is called the recollection of liberality. If a man rejoices in the recollection of liberality, he gives to men who are

THE IMMEASURABLE THOUGHT OF LOVING-KINDNESS

Q. What is loving-kindness?1 What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits?What is the procedure?

A. As parents, on seeing their dear and only child, arouse thoughts ofloving-kindness and benevolence towards that child, so one arouses thoughtsof loving-kindness and benevolence towards all beings. Thus is loving-kindness to be known. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind in this practice is called the practising of it. To cause the arising of benevolence is its salientcharacteristic. The thought of loving-kindness is its function. Non-hatredis its manifestation. If a man practises loving-kindness, he is benefitted ineleven ways thus: Happily he sleeps; happily he awakes; he does not see baddreams; he is dear to humans; he is dear to non-humans; deities protect him; fire, poison, sword and stick come not near him; he concentrates his mindquickly; the colour of his face is pleasingly bright; at the time of death heis not bewildered; if he attains not the sublime state, he is reborn in theworld of Brahma 2

DISADVANTAGES OF ANGER AND RESENTMENT

What is the procedure? The new yogin who aspires to practise loving-kindness, should at first reflect on the disadvantages of anger and resentmentand on the advantages of patience and bear patience in mind. What is meantby "should at first reflect on the disadvantages of anger and resentment"? If a man arouses anger and resentment, his thoughts of loving-kindness willbe consumed and his mind will become impure. Thereafter he will frown; thereafter he will utter harsh words; thereafter he will stare in the four direc-tions; thereafter he will lay hold of stick and sword; thereafter he will convulse with rage and spit blood; thereafter he will hurl valuables hither and thither; thereafter he will break many things; thereafter he will kill others or killhimself. And again, if a man is angry and resentful always, he, owing to hiswicked mind, is liable to kill his parents, or kill a Consummate One or causea schism in the Community of Bhikkhus, or draw blood from the body of an Enlightened One. Such fearful acts is he liable to do. Thus should onereflect.

SIMILE OF THE SAW

And again, one should reflect thus: I am called a hearer; I shall be put to shame, if I do not remove anger and resentment. I remember the simile of the Saw. 1 I like to enjoy good states (of mind); if now I arouse anger andresentment, I shall be like a man desirous of taking a bath, entering into acesspool. I am one who has heard much; 2 if I do not overcome anger andresentment, I shall be forsaken like a physician who is afflicted with vomiting and diarrhoea. I am esteemed by the world; if I do not remove anger andresentment, I shall be cast away by the world like a painted vase containingfilth, and uncovered. (Further, one reflects thus:) When a wise man growsangry and resentful, he inflicts severe sufferings. So he will be poisoned out of the fear of terrible punishment. If a man who is bitten by a snake has theantidote and refrains from taking it, he is like one who seems to relish suffering and not happiness. In the same way, a bhikkhu who arouses anger andresentment and does not suppress these, quickly, is said to be one who relishessuffering and not happiness, because he accumulates more fearful kammathan this anger and this resentment. And again, one should reflect on angerand resentment thus: He who arouses anger and resentment will be laughedat by his enemies, and cause his friends to be ashamed of him. Though hemay have deep virtue, he will be slighted by others. If he was honouredbefore, he will be despised hereafter. Aspiring after happiness, he will acquiremisery. Outwardly calm, he will be inwardly perturbed. Having eyes, he will not see. Being intelligent, he will be ignorant. Thus one should reflecton the disadvantages of anger and resentment.

Q. What is meant by "one should reflect on the advantages of patience"?

A. Patience is power.1 This is armour. This protects the body welland removes anger and resentment. This is honour. This is praised by thewise. This causes the happiness of not falling away. This is a guardian. This guards all. This helps one to understand the meaning of things well. This is called "putting others to shame". And further, one should reflect thus: I have shorn off the hair of the head; now I must cultivate patience.2I have received the alms of the country; I will cause great merit to accrue to the givers, through having a mind of patience. 1 bear the form and theapparel of the Consummate Ones;3 this patience is a practise of the NobleOnes; therefore I will not allow anger to remain in my mind. I am called ahearer. I will cause others to call me a hearer in truth. The givers of almsgive me many things; through this patience 1 will cause great merit to accrue to them. I have confidence; this patience is the place of confidence in me.I have knowledge; this patience is the sphere of knowledge in me. If there is the poison of anger and resentment in me, this patience is the antidotewhich will counteract the poison in me. Thus one should reflect on the disadvantages of anger and resentment and on the advantages of patience, and resolve: "I will reach patience. When people blame me, I will be patient. I will be meek and not haughty".4 Thus the yogin proceeds towards thebliss of patience and benefits himself. He enters into a place of solitude, and with mind undisturbed begins to fill his body (with the thought) thus:"I am happy. My mind admits no suffering". What is meant by "I haveno enemy; I have no anger; I am happily free from all defilements and perform all good".? That yogin controls his mind and makes it pliant. Hemakes his mind capable of attainment. If his mind is pliant, and is able tobear the object, he should practise lovingkindness. He should regard allbeings as (he regards) himself. In practising loving-kindness towards allbeings, the yogin cannot at the start develop loving-kindness for enemies, wicked men, beings without merit and dead men. That yogin develops loving-kindness for one towards whom he behaves with respectful reserve, whom he honours, whom he does not slight, towards whom he is not indifferent, and by whom he has been benefitted and, therefore, in regard to whom heis not jealous or ill-disposed. He should develop loving-kindness for such aone, thus: "I esteem a man who is of such and such a nature, namely, a manendowed with honour, learning, virtue, concentration and wisdom. I ambenefitted through alms, sweet speech, liberality and intentness on that. These are of advantage to me". Thus he recalls to mind the virtues he esteems and the benefits he has acquired (in and through that one), and develops loving-kindness towards that one. One should develop the benevolent mindand always reflect and investigate. One should have a mind that is without anger and resentment. One should wish to be endowed with tranquillity, to be free from hatred, to be endowed with all merits and to gain good advan-tages. One should wish to gain a good reward, a good name, to gain con-fidence, to gain happiness, to be endowed with virtue, knowledge, liberalityand wisdom. One should wish for happy sleep and happy awaking. Oneshould wish to have no evil dreams. One should wish to become dear tohumans and to be honoured by them. One should wish to become dear tonon-humans and to be honoured by them. One should wish to be protected the gods; to be untouched by fire, poison, sword or stick and the like; to concentrate the mind quickly; to have a pleasant complexion; to be bornin the Middle Country; 1 to meet good men; to perfect oneself; to end craving; to be long-lived; and to attain to the peace and happiness of the Immortal.

And again, one should recollect thus: If one has not yet produceddemerit, one should wish not to produce it; and if one has already producedit, one should wish to destroy it. If one has not yet produced merit, one shouldwish to produce it; and if one has already produced it, one should wish toincrease it.2 And again, one should not wish to produce undesirable states, and if one has produced them, one should wish to destroy them. (One shouldwish to produce) desirable states of mind, (and if one has) produced them, one should wish to increase them).

That yogin is able to gain confidence by means of the heart of kindness. Through confidence that is free, he can establish his mind. Through estab-lishing that is free, he can dwell in mindfulness. Through mindfulness that is free, through establishing that is free and through confidence that is free, he is endowed with the unshakable mind, and he understands the state of the unshakable (mind). That yogin by these means and through these activities develops the thought 3 of lovingkindness for himself, repeats it and understandsunshakability. [436] Having by these means and through these activities developed the thought of loving-kindness and repeated it, he makes his mindpliant and gradually develops the thought of loving-kindness for a personwhom he holds dear. After he has developed the thought of loving-kindnessfor a person whom he holds dear, he gradually develops the thought of loving-kindness for an indifferent person. After he has developed the thought ofloving-kindness for an indifferent person, he gradually develops the thought of loving-kindness for an enemy. Thus he encompasses all beings (with loving-kindness) and identifies himself with them. If he does not develop loving-kindness for an indifferent person or is unable to do so and develops dislike,he should reflect thus: "In me are states of demerit. I have dislike. Wishingto acquire merit, I stirred up confidence and was ordained. And again, Isaid, T will develop great loving-kindness and compassion for the weal of allbeings, through the merit of the Great Teacher'. If I cannot develop loving-kindness towards one indifferent person, how shall I develop loving-kindnesstowards enemies?". If that yogin is still unable to destroy dislike and hate, that yogin should not endeavour to develop loving-kindness, but should adoptanother way to remove the hatred he has for that person.

TWELVE MEANS OF REMOVING HATRED

Q. What are the means of success in removing hatred?

A. (1) One should share in order to benefit the other (whom one hates). One should consider: (2) merit, (3) goodwill, (4) one's own kamma, (5) debt-cancellation, (6) kinship, (7) one's own faults. (8) One shouldnot consider the suffering inflicted on oneself. One should investigate: (9) the nature of the faculties, (10) the momentary destruction of states, (11) and

- aggregation. (12) One should investigate emptiness. One shouldbear these in mind.
- (1) Even if one is angryj one should give the other what, he asks, acceptwillingly what he gives. And in speaking with him, one should always usegood words. One should do what the other does. By such action, the destruction of the anger of the one and the other takes place. (2) Merit—if onesees the merits of the other, one ought to think: "This is merit. This isnot demerit".

SIMILE OF THE POND

It is like this: There is a pond covered with duckweed, and one, having removed the duckweed, draws out water. 1 If the other has nomerit, one should develop loving-kindness for him thus: "This man has nomerit; surely, he will fare ill".2 (3) Goodwill — one should think thus (of gaining) the other's goodwill: If a man does not revere (the other) let himarouse the thought of goodwill. If he is not revered, he should make merit. And again, the destruction of demerit is well-faring. Thus should the changing of hatred to goodwill be known. (4) One's own kamma—one should consider one's own evil kamma1 thus: "The evil that I do will cause anger toarise in others". (5) Debt-cancellation — (thus one thinks:) "Owing to mypast kamma, others blame me. Now I am free from debt. Reflecting on this evidence (of debtcancellation), I am glad". (6) Kinship — he remembersthat beings succeed one another in (the cycle of) birth and death, thus: "Thisis my kinsman", and arouses the thought of kinship.2 (7) One's own faults —one arouses self-perception thus: "That man's anger is produced on account of me. I acquire demerit on account of him". Thus arousing selfperception3 one sees one's own faults. (8) One should not consider — one shouldnot consider the perception (of one's own suffering) which is unrelated to hatred. Suffering — (one thinks thus:) "Owing to folly, I see my own suffering as a hindrance". Thus one should see. One suffers by oneself, because onedoes not think on loving-kindness. It appears so (i.e., as a hindrance) because of mental suffering. Avoiding the place where the enemy lives, one shoulddwell where one does not hear (his voice) or see him. (9) Nature of the faculties one should investigate thus: "To be tied to the lovely and theunlovely is the nature of the faculties. Therefore I hate. Because of this I am unmindful". (10) The momentary destruction of states —one shouldinvestigate thus: "That man suffers because of birth. All these states perishin one thoughtmoment. With which state in him am I angry?". (11) Aggregation— one should investigate thus: "The inner and the outer aggregatesproduce suffering. It is not possible for me to be angry with any part orplace". (12) Emptiness — one should investigate thus: In the absolutesense it cannot be said, "This man causes suffering" or "This man suffers".

3. Atta sanhd.

This body is the result of causes and conditions. There is no soul-entity in he aggregates.

Therefore the Blessed One uttered this stanza:-

He who dwells amidst the village grove, experiencing pleasure and pain, is not burned because of self or other but because his mind is passionate.

If one's mind were cleansed of passion's stain, who could touch that one immaculate 71

Thus after that yogin has clearly understood the way of destroyinghatred, has identified friends, indifferent ones and enemies with himself, and acquired facility in the practice, he should gradually arouse the thought ofloving-kindness and develop it for various bhikkhus in (his) dwelling-place. After that he should develop loving-kindness for the Community of Bhikkhusin (his) dwelling-place. After that he should develop loving-kindness for thedeities in his dwelling-place. After that he should develop loving-kindness for beings in the village outside his dwelling-place. Thus (he develops loving-kindness for beings) from village to village, from country to country. Afterthat he should develop (loving-kindness for beings) in one direction. Thatyogin "pervades one quarter with thoughts of loving-kindness; and afterthat, the second; and after that, the third; and after that, the fourth. Thushe spreads lovingkindness towards all beings of the four directions, above, below and pervades the whole world with thoughts of loving-kindness immenseimmeasurable, without enmity, without ill will.2 Thus that yogin develops loving-kindness and attains to fixed meditation in three ways: through comprehending all beings, through comprehending all villagedomains3 andthrough comprehending all directions. He attains to fixed meditation, jhana, through developing loving-kindness for one being, and in the same way, fortwo, three and for all beings. He attains to fixed meditation, jhana, throughdeveloping loving-kindness for beings of one villagedomain, and in the sameway for (beings of) many villages. He attains to fixed meditation, jhana, through developing lovingkindness for one being in one direction, and in thesame way (for beings) in the four directions. Here when one develops loving-kindness for one being, if that being is dead, that object is lost. If he losesthe object, he cannot arouse loving-kindness. Therefore he should develop the thought of loving-kindness widely. Thus practising he can fulfil greatfruition and merit.

- Q. What are the roots, manifestation, fulfilment, non-fulfilment and object of loving-kindness?
- A. Absence of greed is a root; absence of hatred is a root; absenceof delusion is a root. Willing is a root. Right consideration1 is a root. What is its "manifestation"? The making visible of these roots is its manifes-tation. What is its "fulfilment"? When one is endowed with loving-kindnesshe destroys hatred, removes impure affection and purifies his bodily, verbaland mental actions. This is called "fulfilment". What is its "non-fulfilment"? Through two causes one fails in the practice of loving-kindness: through regard-ing friends as enemies and through impure affection. "Non-fulfilment" is produced when one arouses the feeling of enmity and rivalry. Thus should "non-fulfilment" be known. What is its "object"? Beings are its "object".2

TEN PERFECTIONS

- Q. That is wrong. In the absolute sense there is no being. Why thenis it said that beings are its object? A. Owing to differences in faculties,in common parlance, it is said that there are beings. Now, the Bodhisatta*and the Mahasatta* develop loving-kindness for all beings and fulfil the tenperfections.3
- Q. How is it so? A. The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta developloving-kindness for all beings and resolve to benefit all beings and give themfearlessness.4 Thus they fulfil the perfection of giving.5

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they cause separation from suffering anddo not lose the faculty of truth. It is like the relation of a father to his children. Thus they fulfil the perfection of virtue.6

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they acquire non-greed, and in order toremove the non-merit of beings, they attain to meditation, jhdna,1 and enterinto homeiessness. Thus they fulfil the perfection of renunciation.2

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting ail beings, they consider merit and non-merit. Understanding in accordance with truth, devising clean expedients, they reject the bad and take the good. Thus they fulfil the perfection of wisdom.3

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they, without abandoning energy, exertthemselves at all times. Thus they fulfil the perfection of energy.4

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they practise patience and do not growangry when others blame or hate them. Thus they fulfil the perfection ofpatience.5

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta [743] develop loving-kindness for allbeings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they speak the truth, dwell inthe truth and keep the truth. Thus they fulfil the perfection of truth.6

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they do not break their promises butkeep them faithfully unto life's end. Thus they fulfil the perfection of of resolution.

The Bodhisatta and Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they identify themselves with all beingsand fulfil the perfection of loving-kindness.8

The Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they regard friends, indifferent ones andenemies, equally, without hatred and without attachment. Thus they fulfilthe perfection of equanimity.9

In these ways do the Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta practise loving-kindness and fulfil the ten perfections.

THE FOUR RESOLVES

Now, the Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta having practised loving-kindness, having fulfilled the ten perfections, fulfil the four resolves. They are the resolve of truth, the resolve of liberality, the resolve of peace and the resolve of wisdom.1

Here, the perfection of truth, the perfection of resolution and the per-fection of energy, fulfil the resolve of truth.

The perfection of giving, the perfection of virtue and the perfection of renunciation, fulfil the resolve of liberality.

The perfection of patience, the perfection of loving-kindness and the per-fection of equanimity, fulfil the resolve of peace.

The perfection of wisdom fulfil the resolve of wisdom.

Thus the Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta having practised loving-kindnessand fulfilled the ten perfections, fulfil the four resolves and attain to two states, namely, serenity and insight.2

Here, the resolve of truth, the resolve of liberality and the resolve of peacefulfil serenity. The resolve of wisdom fulfils insight. Through the fulfilmentof serenity, they attain to all meditations, jhdnas, and hold to emancipationand concentration firmly. They cause the arising of the concentration of thetwin-miracle3 and the concentration of the attainment of great compassion.4With the attainment of insight, they are endowed with all supernormalknowledge,5 analytical knowledge,6 the powers,7 the confidences.8 Thereafter they cause the arising of natural knowledge9 (?) and omniscience.10 Thusthe Bodhisatta and the Mahasatta practise loving-kindness, and graduallyattain to Buddhahood.

THE IMMEASURABLE THOUGHT OF COMPASSION

- Q. What is compassion? What is the practising of it? What are itssalient characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?
- A. As parents who on seeing the suffering of their dear and only child, compassionate it, saying, "O, how it suffers!", so one compassionates allbeings. This is compassion. One dwells undisturbed in compassion this is called the practising of it. The non-manifestation of non-advantage is its salient characteristic. Happiness is its function. Harmlessness1 is its mani-festation. Its benefits are equal to those of loving-kindness.

What is the procedure? The new yogin enters into a place of solitude and sits down with mind collected and undisturbed. If he sees or hears of aperson stricken with disease, or a person affected by decay, or a personwho is full of greed, he considers thus: "That person is stricken withsuffering. How will he escape suffering?".2 And again, if he sees or hearsof a person of perverted mind and bound with the defilements, or a personentering into ignorance, or one, who, having done merit in the past does not now train himself, he considers thus: "That person is stricken with suffering; he will fare ill. How will he escape suffering?".3 And again, if he sees orhears of a person who follows demeritorious doctrines and does not followmeritorious doctrines, or of a person who follows undesirable doctrines anddoes not follow desirable doctrines, he considers thus: "That person isstricken with suffering; he will fare ill. How will he escape suffering?".4

That yogin by these means and through these activities develops thethought of compassion for these persons and repeats it. Having by these meansand through these activities developed the thought of compassion and repeatedit, he makes his mind pliant, and capable of bearing the object. Thereafterhe gradually develops (compassion) for an indifferent person and an enemy. The rest is as was fully taught above. Thus he fills the four directions.

- Q. What is the fulfilment of compassion and what, non-fulfilment? A. When a man fulfils compassion, he separates from harming and fromkilling. He is not afflicted. He separates from impure affection. Throughtwo causes compassion is not fulfilled: through resentment produced withinhimself and through affliction.
- Q. All do not suffer. Suffering does not prevail always. Then how isit possible to compassionate all beings? A. As all beings have at some previoustime experienced suffering, they can grasp the sign well and practise compassion in all places. Again, sorrow of birth and death is the common property of allbeings. Therefore all beings can in all places practise compassion.

Compassion has ended A

THE IMMEASURABLE THOUGHT OF APPRECIATIVE JOY

- Q. What is appreciative joy? What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?
- A. As parents, who, on seeing the happiness of their dear and only childare glad, and say, "Sddhu!" so, one develops appreciative joy for all beings. Thus should appreciative joy be known. The undisturbed dwelling of themind in appreciative joy this is called the practising of it. Gladness is its salient characteristic. Non-fear is its function. Destruction of dislike is its manifestation. Its benefits are equal to those of loving-kindness.

What is the procedure? The new yogin enters a place of solitude and sitsdown with mind collected and undisturbed. When one sees or hears that someperson's qualities are esteemed by others, and that he is at peace and is joyful, one thinks thus: "Sddhu! sddhu! may he continue joyful for a long time!".And again, when one sees or hears that a certain person does not follow demeri-torious doctrines, or that he does not follow undesirable doctrines and that hefollows desirable doctrines, one thinks thus: "Sddhu! sddhu! may he continuejoyful for a long time!". That yogin by these means and through these activities develops the thought of appreciative joy and repeats it. Having bythese means and through these activities developed the thought of appreciative joy and repeated it, he makes his mind pliant, and capable of bearing the object. Thereafter he gradually develops appreciative joy for an indifferent personand an enemy. The rest is as was fully taught above. Thus with appreciative joy he fills the four directions.

Q. What is the fulfilment of appreciative joy? What is its non-fulfilment? A. When one fulfils appreciative joy, he removes unhappiness, does not arouse impure affection and does not speak untruth. Through two causes appreciative joy is not fulfilled: through resentment produced within himselfand derisive action. The rest is as was fully taught above.

Appreciative joy has ended.

THE IMMEASURABLE THOUGHT OF EQUANIMITY

Q. What is equanimity? What is the practising of it? What are itssalient characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. As parents are neither too attentive nor yet inattentive towardsany one of their children, but regard them equally and maintain an even mindtowards them, so through equanimity one maintains an even mind towardsall beings. Thus should equanimity be known. The dwelling undisturbed equanimity—this is called the practising of it. Non-attachment is its salient characteristic. Equality is its function. The suppression of disliking and liking is its manifestation. Its benefits are equal to those of loving-kindness.

Q. What is the procedure? That yogin at first attends to the thirdmeditation, jhdna, with loving-kindness, with compassion and with appreciative joy. Having attained to the third meditation, jhdna, and acquired facilitytherein, he sees the severe trials of loving-kindness, compassion and appreciativejoy. Liking and disliking are near. These (lovingkindness etc.) are connected with fawning, elation and gladness. The merits of equanimity lie in theovercoming of these severe trials. That yogin, having seen the severe trialsof loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy and the merits of equanimity, develops equanimity towards a neutral person1 and makes themind calm. Having developed and repeated it, he makes his mind pliant and capable of bearing the object. Thereafter, he gradually develops (it) towards an enemy and then towards a friend. The rest is as was fully taught above. Thus he fills the four directions. That yogin practising thus attains to the fourth meditation, jhdna, through equanimity. In three ways he attains to fixed meditation, jhdna, through comprehending beings, through compre-hending village-domains and through comprehending all directions.

Q. When the yogin practises equanimity, how does he consider beings?

A. The yogin considers thus: "In loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy, one is overjoyed with beings", and removing joy, he induces equanimity. As a man might leap for joy on meeting a long-lost friend [438] and later, calm down, having been with him for sometime, so having livedlong with loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy, the yogin attainsto equanimity. And again, there is a man. He speaks concerning beings, "Beings consider thus: What is the fulfilment of equanimity? What is itsnon-fulfilment?". When equanimity is fulfilled, one destroys disliking and liking and does not cause the arising of ignorance. Through two causes equanimity is not fulfilled: through resentment produced within oneselfand through the arising of ignorance.

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

Again I elucidate the meaning of the four immeasurablest

What are the miscellaneous teachings concerning the four immeasurables ?3

- 1. Lit. neither likable nor not likable.
- 2. What follows is unintelligible.
- 3. The miscellaneous teachings are in many places unintelligible as it is here. This portionis not in the three editions of the Sung, Yuan and Ming dynasties, i.e., roughly about 1239A.C., 1290 A.C., and 1601 A.C., respectively. Also it is not found in the old Sungedition, 1104-1148 A.C., belonging to the library of the Japanese Imperial Household.

One attains to distinction in the four immeasurables through practising(them) towards animals, immoral persons, moral persons, those who dislikepassion, hearers, Silent Buddhas and Supreme Buddhas regarding them as a mother regards her children according to their stage in life1 (lit. seasons).

- g. Why is the third and not the fourth meditation, jhdna, attained nloving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy?
- A. Through constant dwelling on the sorrows (of others) one develops loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy. (And so no equanimity is present). Therefore the third meditation, jhdna, is attained and not the fourth.

Again the plane of equanimity belongs to the fourth meditation, jhdna, because it is endowed with two kinds of equanimity, namely, neutral feeling2and neutrality as regards states.3 Dwelling in the plane of equanimity andregarding all beings with equal favour, one accomplishes equanimity. Owingto the nature of the planes of the three immeasurables, the third meditation, jhdna, and not the fourth, is produced. And again, it is said that the fourmeditations, jhdnas, are produced with the four immeasurables. The BlessedOne has declared: "Further, O bhikkhu, you should develop the concentrationwhich is with initial and sustained application of thought; you should develop that which is without initial, and only with, sustained application of thought; you should develop that which is with joy; (you shoulddevelop that which is without joy); you should develop that which is accom-panied by equanimity.4

Q. Why are these four immeasurables and not five or three taught? A. Were that so, uncertainty might arise concerning all. And again, inorder to overcome hatred, cruelty, dislike and lust, one accomplishes the four immeasurables. And again, it is said that these four are (overcome with) only loving-kindness. If one arouses (in oneself) hatred, cruelty, unhappiness, one, through suppressing them in the four ways, attains to distinction.

Equanimity is the purification of loving-kindness, compassion and appre-ciative joy, because through it hatred and lust are destroyed.

Further, it should be understood that the four immeasurables are of onenature though their signs are different. Thus owing to the suppression oftribulation, owing to the object which comprises beings, owing to the wishto benefit, they fulfil one characteristic.

- 1. Cp. Sv. III, 1008: Appamanna tipamdnam agahetvd anavasesa-pharana-vasena appamanna.

And again, it is said that owing to the distinction in states, owing to the appropriation of object (?) and advantage, they are different, as the BlessedOne taught in the Haliddayasana Sutta1: "In the sphere of the beautiful,loving-kindness is first;" in the sphere of (infinite) space, compassion isfirst; in the sphere of (infinite) consciousness, appreciative joy is first; tin the sphere of nothingness, equanimity is first".!

Q. Why are they to be understood thus? A. They should be under-stood thus because of their being the sufficing condition.

Q. How? A. If one develops the mind of loving-kindness, all beingsare dear to him. Because they are always dear to him, he causes his mind to consider the blue-green, yellow (or other) colour kasina, and attains to fixed meditation, jhdna, without difficulty. At this time the yogin accomplishes the fourth meditation, jhdna, of the element of form. Therefore loving-kindnessis first in (the sphere of) the beautiful. 1 At that time the yogin, depending on loving-kindness which he has developed in the fourth meditation, jhdna, of the element of form, surpasses that (element).

- Q. How is that shallow? A. He practises loving-kindness; thereforehe knows the tribulations of the element of form. How? Seeing the sufferingsof beings he develops loving-kindness through a material cause. After thathe understands the tribulations of the element of form. He causes the mindto consider the abandoning of forms and of space, and attains to fixed medi-tation, jhdna, without difficulty in the sphere of the infinity of space, becausehe depends on it. Therefore it is said that compassion is first in the sphereof the infinity of space.2 That yogin surpasses the sphere of the infinity of space through appreciative joy.
- Q. What is the meaning? A. That yogin, when he practises appreciativejoy, contemplates on limitless consciousness, and is not attached to anything. How? (Through) this appreciative joy (the yogin) attains to fixed meditation, jhdna, through contemplation on beings in the un-attached sphere of theinfinity of consciousness. After that, being not attached, he

- grasps theobject of limitless consciousness. Freed from form and attached to space,he considers limitless consciousness and through contemplating many objects,he attains to fixed meditation without difficulty. Therefore, in the sphere ofthe infinity of consciousness, appreciative joy is first.3
- Q. That yogin transcends the sphere of the infinity of consciousnessthrough equanimity. What is the meaning of it?
- A. That yogin, practising equanimity fulfils freedom from attachment. How? If one does not practise equanimity, he will be attached (to things) and(think), "This being gets happiness", (or this being) "gets suffering". Or hedepends on joy or bliss. Thereafter he turns away from all attachment. Heturns away from the sphere of the infinity of consciousness4 and is happy. He attains to fixed meditation, jhdna, without difficulty. His mind is not

THE DETERMINING OF THE FOUR ELEMENTS

Q. What is the determining of the four elements? What is the practising it? What are its salient characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. To discern the four elements within one's form — this is called dis-tinguishing the four elements. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind (indetermining) — this is called the practising of it. Close investigation of the four elements is its salient characteristic. The understanding of emptiness is its function. The removing of the thought of being 2 is its manifestation.

What are its benefits? There are eight benefits: One who practises thedetermining of the four elements overcomes fear, worldly pleasure and dis-content, is even-minded towards desirable and undesirable (objects), destroysthe idea of male and female, is endowed with great wisdom, fares well andapproaches the ambrosial. His states of mind are clear. He is able to perfectall his actions.

What is the procedure? The new yogin grasps the elements in two ways:briefly and in detail. Q. What is the grasping of the elements briefly? A.That yogin enters a place of solitude, and with mind collected considers thus:"This body should be known by the four elements. There is in this body thenature of solidity — that is the earthy element;3 (there is) the nature of humidity —that is the watery element;4 (there is) the nature of heat — that is the fiery element;5 (there is) the nature of motion — that is the element of air.6 Thus inthis body there are only elements. There is no being.7 There is no soul".8In this way one grasps the elements briefly. Again it is said that the yogingrasps the elements briefly. He understands the body through understandingthe midriff, its colour, its form, its place.

Thus that yogin grasps the elementsbriefly. He understands the nature of the whole body through understandingthe midriff, its colour, its form, its place. He understands this body throughunderstanding flesh, its colour, its form, its place. That yogin, having understood the whole body through understanding flesh, its colour, its form, itsplace, understands this whole body through understanding the veins, their colour, their form, their place. That yogin, having understood the wholebody through understanding the veins, their colour, their form, their place, understands the whole body through understanding the bones, their colour, their form, their place. That yogin in these four ways dominates his mind. After dominating his mind, he makes his mind pliant and capable of bearingthe object. That yogin, having in these four ways dominated his mind andhaving made his mind pliant and capable of bearing the object, in these four(other) ways knows that which has the nature of solidity as the element of earth; that which has the nature of humidity as the element of water; that which has the nature of heat as the element of fire; that which has the nature of motion as the element of air. Thus that yogin, in these four ways, knows that there are only elements and that there is no being and no soul. Here the otherways also are fulfilled. Thus one grasps the elements briefly.

TWENTY WAYS OF GRASPING THE ELEMENT OF EARTH

How does one grasp the elements in detail? One grasps the element ofearth in detail through twenty ways, namely, (through) hair of the head and of the body, nails, teeth, skin, flesh, sinews, veins, bones, marrow, kidneys,heart, liver, lungs, spleen, gorge, intestines, mesentery, midriff, excrement,brain (that are) in this body.

TWELVE WAYS OF GRASPING THE ELEMENT OF WATER

One grasps the element of water in detail through twelve ways, namely,(through) bile, saliva, pus, blood, sweat, fat, tears, grease, slobber, nasal mucus,synovial fluid, [439] urine (that are) in the body.

FOUR WAYS OF GRASPING THE ELEMENT OF FIRE

One grasps the element Of fire in detail through four ways, namely, (through) fever heat and normal heat of the body, weather, equality of cold and heat and(the heat) by means of which one digests the fluid or solid nutriment whichone takes. These are called the element of fire.

SIX WAYS OF GRASPING THE ELEMENT OF AIR

One grasps the element of air in detail through six ways, namely, (through)the air discharged upwards, the air discharged downwards, the air whichdepends on the abdomen, the air which depends on the back,1 the air whichdepends on the limbs, the air inhaled and exhaled.2

Thus when one sees this body in forty-two ways, only the elements manifestthemselves. There is no being. There is no soul. Thus the elements are grasped in detail.

And again, predecessor-teachers1 have said that one should determine the four elements through ten ways, namely, through the meaning of terms,2through object, aggregation, powder,3 non-separation, condition,4 characteris-tic,5 similarity and dissimilarity,6 sameness and difference,7 puppet.

First, the chapter which refers to the meaning of terms is as follows:—

Q. How should one determine the elements through terms?

A. Two terms, viz., the common and the special terms. Here the fourprimaries are common (terms). Earth-element, water-element, fire-element, air-element are special terms.

Q. What is the meaning of "four primaries"?

A. Great manifestation is called primary. They are great; they are illusory; but they appear real. Therefore they are called "primaries" "Great":By way of yakkha and others" the term great is applied.

Q. Why is the "great manifestation" called great?

The elements are "great manifestation" as the Blessed One has declared in the following stanza:

"/ declare the size of earth to betwo hundred thousand nahutas and four. Four hundred thousand nahutas and eightis of water the bulk; air's in spacewhich reckoned is at nahutas sixand nine times a hundred thousand; in that this world of ours lies. There is in the worldconsuming fire that will in mighty flamesrise up to Brahma's world for seven days". 8

"Great manifestation" is thus. Therefore they are called the primaries.Q. How do the primaries that are unreal appear as real?

A. What are called primaries are neither male nor female. They are seen through the form of a man or a woman. And element is neither longnor short: It is seen through the form of the long and the short. An element is neither a tree nor a mountain, but it is seen through the form of a tree or a mountain. Thus the primaries are not real, but appear real and are called primaries.

What is the meaning of "by way of yakkha and others"? It is as if ayakkha were to enter into a man and take possession of him. Through thepossession of the yakkha that man's body would manifest four qualities:

- 1. Pordnd. 2. Vacanatthato. 3. Cunnato. 4. Paccayato. 5. Lakkhanddito.
- 6. Sabhdgavisahhdgato. 1. Ndnattekattato. 8. Not traced.

hardness, (excess of) water, heat and lightness of movement. In the same waythe four elements in union with the body fulfil four qualities. Through theunion of the earthy element hardness is fulfilled. Through the union of thewatery element fluidity is fulfilled. Through the union of the fiery elementheat is fulfilled. And through the union of the airy element lightness ofmovement is fulfilled. Therefore the primaries are to be known "by way ofyakkha and others". Primary is the meaning of the word.

THE FOUR ELEMENTS

- Q. What is the meaning of earth-element, water-element, fire-elementand air-element?
- A. Extensiveness and immensity are called the meaning of earth.Drinkability and preservation —these constitute the meaning of water. Lightingup is the meaning of fire. Movement back and forth is the meaning of air.

What is the meaning of element? It means the retention of own form, and next the essence of earth is the earthy element. The essence of wateris the watery element. The essence of fire is the fiery element. The essence of air is the airy element.

What is the essence of earth? The nature of hardness; the nature ofstrength; the nature of thickness; the nature of immobility; the nature of security; and the nature of supporting. These are called the essence of earth.

What is the essence of water? The nature of oozing; the nature ofhumidity; the nature of fluidity; the nature of trickling; the nature ofpermeation; the nature of increasing; the nature of leaping; and the nature of cohesion. These are called the essence of water.

What is called the essence of fire? The nature of heating; the nature of warmth; the nature of evaporation; the nature of maturing; the nature of consuming; and the nature of grasping. These are called the essence of fire.

What is the essence of air? The nature of supporting; the nature of coldness; the nature of ingress and egress; the nature of easy movement; the nature of reaching low; and the nature of grasping. These are called theessence of air.

These are the meanings of the elements. Thus one should determine the elements through the meaning of words.

Q. How should one determine the elements through "objects"?

A. In the element of earth, stability is the object. In the element ofwater, cohesion is the object. In the element of fire, maturing is the object. In the element of air interception is the object.

And again, in the element of earth, upstanding is the object; in the element of water, flowing down is the object; in the element of fire, causing to goupwards is the object; in the element of air, rolling on is the object. And again, owing to the proximity of two elements, one, at first, (in stepping for-ward) raises up one foot; and afterwards, owing to the proximity of two elements, one lifts up the (other) foot. Owing to the proximity of two elements, one at first sits or sleeps. And owing to the proximity of two elements, oneafterwards gets up and walks. Owing to the proximity of two elements, at first, rigidity and torpor are induced. Owing to the proximity of twoelements, one becomes energetic afterwards. Owing to the proximity oftwo elements, there is heaviness in one at first. Owing to the proximity of twoelements, there is lightness afterwards. Thus one should determine the fourprimaries through "object"1.

How should one determine the four primaries through "aggregation"? Aggregation consists of the earth-element, the water-element, the fire-elementand the air-element. By means of these elements form, smell, taste and touchtake place. These eight are produced generally together; they co-exist anddo not go apart. This combination is named aggregation. And again, there are four kinds, namely, aggregation of earth, aggregation of water, aggregation of fire and aggregation of air. In the aggregation of earth, theearth-element predominates; and the water-element, the fire-element and the air-element gradually, in order, become less. In the aggregation of water, the water-element predominates; and the earth-element, the air-element gradually, in order, become less. In the aggregation of fire, the fire-element predominates; and the earth-element, the air-element and the water-element gradually, in order, become less. In the aggregation of air, the air-element predominates; and the fire-element, the water-element and the earth-element gradually, in order, become less.2 Thus one should determine the elements through "aggregation".

- Q. How should one determine the four primaries through "powder"?
- A. One determines the element of earth that is next the finest particle ofspace.3 This earth is mixed with water; therefore it does not scatter. Beingmatured by fire, it is odourless; being supported by air, it rolls. Thus oneshould determine. Again, predecessors have said: "If pulverized into dust, the earth-element in the body of an average person will amount to one koku and two sho? Then, if mixed with water, it will become six sho and five go.2Matured by fire, it is caused to roll by the wind". Thus one should determine the body through "powder".

Q. How should one determine the body through "nonseparation"? A. The earth-element is held together by water; is matured by fire; is sup-ported by air. Thus the three elements are united. The element of waterrests on earth; is matured by fire; is supported by air. Thus the three elements are held together. The element of fire rests on the earth; is held togetherby water; is supported by air. Thus the three elements are matured. Theelement of air rests on earth; is held together by water; is matured by fire. Thus the three elements are supported. The three elements rest on earth. Held together by water, the three elements do not disperse. Matured by fire, the three elements are odourless. Supported by air, the three elementsroll on, and dwelling together, they do not scatter. Thus the four elements in mutual dependence dwell and do not separate. Thus one determines the elements through nonseparation.

Q. How should one determine the elements through "condition"? A. Four causes and four conditions produce the elements. What are thefour? They are kamma, consciousness, season and nutriment. What iskammal The four elements that are produced from kamma fulfil two conditions, namely, the producing-condition3 and /camma-condition.4 The other elements fulfil the decisive-support-condition.5 Consciousness:- The four elements that are produced from consciousness fulfil six conditions, namely,producing-condition, co-nascence-condition,6 support-condition,7 nutriment-condition,8 faculty-condition,6 presence-condition.10 The other elements fulfilcondition,11 support-condition and presence-condition.

In the consciousness at the moment of entry into the womb, corporealityfulfils seven conditions, namely, co-nascence-condition, mutuality-condition, 12support-condition, nutriment-condition, faculty-condition, result-condition, 13presence-condition.

The consciousness of the birth-to-be fulfils three conditions in regardto the pre-born body, namely, post-nascence-condition,14 support-conditionand presence-condition. The four primaries that are produced from seasonfulfil two conditions, namely, producing-condition and presence-condition. The other elements fulfil two conditions, namely, support-condition and presence-condition. Nutriment:- The four primaries that are producedfrom food fulfil three conditions, namely, producing-condition, nutriment-condition and presence-condition. The other elements fulfil two conditions, namely, support-condition and presence-condition. Here the four elements that are produced by kamma are co-nascent elements. (Elements that are mutually dependent)* fulfil four conditions, namely, co-nascence-condition, mutuality-condition, support-condition, presence-condition. Other elements fulfil two conditions, namely, support-condition and presence-condition. Thus one should know (the elements) produced from consciousness, producedfrom season and produced from food. The earth-element becomes a condition of the other elements by way of resting-place. The water-element becomes a condition of the other elements by way of binding. The fire-element becomes a condition of the other elements by way of maturing. The air-elementbecomes a condition of the other elements by way of supporting. Thus onedetermines the elements through "condition".

f440] How should one determine the elements through "characteristic"? A. The characteristic of the earth-element is hardness. The characteristic of the water-element is oozing. The characteristic of the fire-element is heating. The characteristic of the air-element is coldness. Thus one determines theelements according to "characteristic".

- Q. How should one determine the elements through "similarity and dissimilarity"? A. The earthy element and the watery element are similar because of ponderability. The fire-element and the air-element are similar because of lightness. The water-element and the fire-element are dissimilar. The water-element can destroy the dryness of the fire-element; therefore they are dissimilar. Owing to mutuality, the earth-element and the air-elementare dissimilar. The earth-element hinders the passage of the air-element; the air-element is able to destroy the earth-element. Therefore they are dissimilar. And again, the four elements are similar owing to mutuality or they are dissimilar owing to their natural characteristics. Thus one determines the elements according to "similarity and dissimilarity".
- Q. How should one determine the elements through "sameness and difference"? A. The four elements that are produced from kamma areof one nature, because they are produced from kamma; from the point of characteristics they are different. In the same way one should know those that are produced from consciousness, from season and from nutriment.

The (portions of the) earth-element of the four causes and conditions of one nature owing to characteristics; from the point of cause they are different. In the same way one should know the air-element, the fire-element and the water-element of the four causes and conditions. The four elements are of one nature owing to their being elements, owing to their being greatprimaries; are of one nature owing to their being things; are of one natureowing to their impermanence; are of one nature owing to their suffering; are of one nature owing to their being not-self. They are different owingto characteristics; are different owing to object; are different owing tokamma; are different owing to differing nature of consciousness; are different owing to the different of the season; are different owing to the different nature of nutriment; are different owing to differences of nature; are differentowing to differences of arising; are different owing to the differences in birth; are different owing to differences in faring. Thus one determines the elementsthrough "sameness and difference".

SIMILE OF THE PUPPET

Q. How should one determine the elements through "puppet"? A. Itis comparable to a skilful master of puppets who makes of wood (effigies) ofhumans, complete in every part, in the form of man or woman, and makesthese walk, dance, sit or squat through the pulling of strings. Thus thesepuppets are called bodies; the master of puppets is the past defilement bywhich this body is made complete; the strings are the tendons; the clay isflesh; the paint is the skin; the interstices are space. (By) jewels, raimentand ornaments (they) are called men and women. Thoughts (of men andwomen) are to be known as the tugging by the element of air. Thus theywalk, dwell, go out, or come in, stretch out, draw in, converse or speak.1

These puppet-men, born together with the element of consciousness, are subject to anxiety, grief and suffering through the causes and conditions of anxiety and torment. They laugh or frolic or shoulder. Food sustainsthese puppets; and the faculty of life2 keeps these puppets going. The ending of life results in the dismembering of the puppet. If there happens to be defilingkamma, again a new puppet will arise. The first beginning of such a puppet cannot be seen; also, the end of such a puppet cannot be seen. Thus one determines the elements through "puppet". And that yogin by these waysand through these activities discerns this body through "puppet" thus: "There is no being; there is no soul".

When that yogin has investigated through the object of the elements and through the arising of feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness, he discerns name and form. Thenceforward he sees that name-and-form is suffering, is craving, is the source of suffering; and he discerns that in the destruction of craving lies the destruction of suffering, and that the Noble

Eightfold Path leads to the complete destruction of suffering. Thus thatyogin discerns the Four Noble Truths fully. At that time he sees the tribula-tion of suffering through impermanence, sorrow and not-self. Always attend-ing to these, his mind is undisturbed. He sees the merit of the destruction of suffering through wisdom, tranquillity and dispassion. In this way thatyogin, seeing the tribulation of suffering and the merits of cessation, dwellspeacefully endowed with the faculties, the powers and the factors of enlighten-ment. 1 He makes manifest the consciousness that proceeds from perception of the formations and attains to the element of the most excellent. 2

The determining of the four elements has ended.

THE LOATHSOMENESS OF FOOD

Q. What is the perception of the loathsomeness of food?3 What is the practising of it? What are its salient characteristic, function, near cause4 andmanifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The yogin, attending to the loathsomeness of what in the form of nourishment is chewed, licked, drunk or eaten, 5 knows and knows well this perception. This is called the perception of the loathsomeness of food. The undisturbed dwelling of the mind in this perception is the practising of it. The understanding of the disadvantages of food is its salient characteristic. Disagreeableness is its function. The overcoming of desire is its manifestation.

What are its benefits? The yogin can acquire eight benefits: He whodevelops the perception of the loathsomeness of food knows the nature ofmorsels of food; he understands fully the five-fold lust; he knows the materialaggregate; he knows the perception of impurity; he develops fully the mind-fulness as to the interior of his body; his mind shrinks from desiring whatis tasty;6 he fares well; he approaches the ambrosial.

What is the procedure? The new yogin enters into a place of solitude, sits down with mind composed and undisturbed, and considers the loathsome-ness of what in the form of nourishment is chewed, licked, drunk or eaten as follows: "Such and such are the several hundred sorts of tasty food cookedclean. They are relished of the people. Their colour and smell are perfect. They are fit for great nobles. But after these foods enter into the body, they become impure, loathsome, rotten, abominable".

One develops the perception of the loathsomeness of food in five ways:through (the task of) searching for it; through (the thought of) grinding it;through receptacle; through oozing; and through aggregation.

- 5. Khajja, leyya, peyyai bhojja.
- 6. Cp. Th. 580: Rasesu anugiddhassa jhdne na ramati mano.
- Q. How should the yogin develop the perception of the loathsomenessof food through (the task of) "searching for it"?

A. This yogin sees that many beings encounter trouble in searching fordrink and food; they commit many evil deeds such as killing and thieving(for the sake of food). Further, he sees that these beings are the recipientsof various forms of suffering and are killed or deprived of liberty. Andagain, he sees that such beings commit diverse evil actions such as eagerlysearching for things, deceiving and pretending to be energetic. Thus thesebeings perform evil. Seeing food thus, he develops dislike through the thought: "Impure urine and excrement are due to drink and food".1

THE DWELLING OF THE HOMELESS

And again, he sees the dwelling of the homeless man in the clean forest-retreat where fragrant flowers bloom, where birds sing and the cry of the wildis heard. In that prosperous field which the good man cultivates, are shadows of trees, groves and water which captivate the mind of others. The groundis flat and exceedingly clean; so there is nothing uneven.2 Seeing this, menadmire them with awe. Here are no quarrels and noises. This place wherethe homeless man trains for enlightenment is like the dwelling of Brahma.3In such a place the mind is unfettered; and he, reciting (the Law) and developing concentration always, enjoys the practice of good deeds. (Leaving such a place) the homeless man goes in search of food in cold and heat, wind anddust, mud and rain. He traverses steep paths. With bowl in hand, he begsfor food, and in begging enters others' houses.4 Seeing that, the yogin stirsup the thought of tribulation in his mind as follows: "Drink and food areimpure. They come out in the form of excrement and urine. For that onegoes in search of food". Thus abandoning, he should look for the highestbliss.

And again, the yogin sees the practice of the homeless man. When he(the homeless man) begs, he has to pass the places where fierce horses, elephantsand other animals gather and the places where dogs and pigs live. He hasto go to the places where evil-doers live. He has to tread on mud or excreta in unclean places. He has to stand at the gates of other's houses, silently, forsometime. He has to conceal his body with a cloth. Further, he doubts asregards obtaining alms.1 This yogin thinks: "This man's food is like dog'sfood", and he arouses disagreeableness as regards food thus: "This searchingfor food is most hateful. How could I take this food? I will simply begfrom others". Thus one develops the perception of the loathsomeness offood through "searching for it".

Q. How should the yogin develop the perception of the loathsomenessof food through "grinding"?

A. That yogin sees a man who, having searched for and obtained drinkand food, sits down in front of these. He makes the (solid food) soft, bymixing it with fish sauce. He kneads it with his hand, grinds it in his mouth,gathers it with his lips, pounds it with his teeth, turns it with his tongue, unitesit with his saliva and serum.2 These are most repulsive and unsightly as thevomit of a dog. Thus one develops the perception of the loathsomeness offood through "grinding".

Q. How should one develop the perception of the loathsomeness offood through "receptacle"?

A. Thus these foods are swallowed and go into the stomach mixed withimpurities and remain there. After that they go to the intestines. They are eaten by hundreds of kinds of worms. Being heated, they are digested. Thus they become most repugnant. It is like one's vomit thrown into anunclean vessel. Thus one develops the perception of the loathsomeness of food through "receptacle".

Q. How should one develop the perception of the loathsomeness offood through "oozing"?

A. These foods are digested by heat and mixed with new and old impuri-ties. Like fermented liquor escaping from a broken vat, they flood the body. By flowing, they enter into the veins, the textures of the skin, face and eyes. They ooze out of nine openings and ninety-nine thousand pores. Thus throughflowing, [441] these foods separate into five parts: one partis eaten by worms; one part is changed to heat; one part sustains the body; one part becomesurine; and one part is assimilated with the body. Thus one develops the perception of the loathsomeness of food through "oozing".

Q. How should one develop the perception of the loathsomeness offood through "aggregation"?

A. This drink and food which flow become hair of the head and thebody, nails and the rest. They cause to set up one hundred and one parts of the body. If they do not trickle out, they cause one hundred and one diseases. Thus one develops the perception of the loathsomeness of food through "aggregation".

That yogin by these ways and through these activities develops the percep-tion of the loathsomeness of food. Through disliking, his mind becomesfree and is not distracted. His mind being undistracted he destroys thehindrances, arouses the meditation (jhdna) factors and dwells in access-concentration.

The perception of the loathsomeness of food has endedA

The sphere of nothingness and the sphere of neither perception nornon-perception are as was taught under the earth kasina before.

Here the stanza says:—

The subjects of meditation are here indicated to the yogin in brief as if a man were pointing out the way to Pataliputta.1

What's told concisely he can know in full. He sees what lies before and what behind and with discernment viewing understands truth from untruth.

From what have been here in detail set forth, namely, the marks and the merits complete, one ought to know, just as it is, the scope of Freedom's Path.

CHAPTER THE NINTH

Now, when that yogin, having practised concentration, dwells easy inthe fourth meditation, jhdna, he is able to cause the arising of the fiveforms of higher knowledge, namely, supernormal power,1 divine hearing,2knowledge of others' thoughts,3 recollection of former lives,4 divine sight.5"Supernormal power" means "transformation". "Divine hearing" means "beyond the reach of human audition". "Knowledge of others' thoughts" means "the understanding of others' thoughts". "Recollection of formerlives" means "the remembrance of past lives". "Divine sight" means "beyondthe reach of human vision".

Q. How many kinds of supernormal power are there? Who developsit? What is the procedure?

THREE KINDS OF SUPERNORMAL POWER

- A. There are three kinds of supernormal power, namely, the supernormalpower of resolve, the supernormal power of transformation, the supernormalpower caused by mind. What is the supernormal power of resolve? Thatyogin being one becomes many; and being many becomes one. Developingthe body, he reaches the world of Brahma. This is called the supernormalpower of resolve.6 What is the supernormal power of transformation? Thatyogin discards his natural body and appears in the form of a boy or a snake or a king of Brahmas. These constitute the supernormal power of trans-formation.1 What is the supernormal power caused by mind? That yogincalls up from this body another body, readily, and endows it with all membersand faculties, according to his will. This is called the supernormal powercaused by mind.2

SEVEN KINDS OF SUPERNORMAL POWER

And again, there are seven kinds of supernormal power, namely, thesupernormal power diffused by knowledge, the supernormal power diffusedby concentration, the supernormal power of the Ariyas, the supernormal power born of kammaresult, the supernormal power of the meritorious, the supernormal power accomplished by magic, the supernormal power accomplished by the application of the means of success.

- Q. What is the supernormal power diffused by knowledge? A. Bythe view of impermanence, one rejects the perception of permanence and accomplishes the supernormal power diffused by knowledge. By the Pathof Sanctity, one rejects all defilements and accomplishes the supernormal power diffused by knowledge. Thus should supernormal power diffusedby knowledge be understood. It is as in the case of Venerable Elder Bakkula, of the Venerable Elder Sankicca and of the Venerable Elder Bhutapala. Thusis supernormal power diffused by knowledge.3
- Q. What is the supernormal power diffused by concentration? A. Bythe first meditation, jhdna, one rejects the hindrances and accomplishes the supernormal power diffused by concentration. By the attainment of the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception, one rejects the perception of nothingness and accomplishes the supernormal power diffused by concentration. It is as in the case of the Venerable Elder Sariputta, of the VenerableElder Khanukondanna, of the laysister Uttara and of the lay-sister Samavati. Thus is the supernormal power diffused by concentration.4

How does one dwell perceiving nonrepugnance in the re-pugnant and in the non-repugnant? A. One diffuses the repugnant andthe non-repugnant with thoughts of loving-kindness and regards them as elements. Q. How does one dwell perceiving repugnance in the nonrepugnant and in the repugnant? A. One fills the nonrepugnant and therepugnant with the thought that they are impure or regards them as imper-manent. Q. rich householder; of Ghosita, the rich householder. And again, it is saidthat it is as in the case of the five persons of great merit. This is called the supernormal power of the meritorious. 1 Q. What is the supernormal power accomplished by magic? A. A magician recites spells and goesthrough the sky. There he causes to appear elephants, horses, chariots, infantry or various other groups of an army. This is called the supernormal power accomplished by magic. 2 Q. What is the supernormal power accom-plished by the application of the means of success. A. By renunciation, one accomplishes the rejection of lustful desire; by the Path of Sanctity, oneaccomplishes the rejection of all defilements. It is like a potter finishinghis work. Thus through the application of the means of success, all thingsare accomplished. This is called the supernormal power accomplished by the application of the means of success.3

PROCEDURE OF DEVELOPING SUPERNORMAL POWER

Q. Who practises supernormal power? How is supernormal powerdeveloped? A. It is said that there are nine connected with space. Againit is said that there are five in space. All men who attain to the fourth medi-tation, jhdna, with facility, develop supernormal power. Again it is saidthat the fourth meditation, jhdna, of the realm of form, makes for distinction. Therefore one develops supernormal power. Again it is said that two ofthe four meditations, jhdna, are ease-giving. Thus is supernormal powerpractised. Q. How is supernormal power developed? A. Here a bhikkhudevelops the basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration of will. It is the same with the concentration of energy, the concentration of thought and the concentration ofscrutiny.4 "Will" is the wish to do. "Concentration" is non-distraction of the mind. That yogin wishes for supernormal power and the bases of supernormal power, and practises concentration and resolves upon the fourkinds of endeavour. He endeavours to preclude the arising of evil demerit-orious states that have not yet arisen; he endeavours to reject the evil demeritorious states that have already arisen; he endeavours to cause the arising of meritorious states that have not yet arisen; he endeavours to increase and to consciously reproduce the meritorious states that have already arisen; and to develop them fully. These are called "the activities of endeavour". "Endowed" means that one is endowed with these three qualities. Thusthe six parts of the term are completed. "Basis of supernormal power": That by which one attains to supernormal power — the "basis of supernormal power" is only that. Therefore that state is called "basis of supernormalpower". And again, the fulfilment of the activities of endeavour and the concentration of will—this is called the "basis of supernormal power". It is the means of attending to supernormal power. This is the principal meaning. "Develops" means: "Practises and repeats it". This is called "the development of the basis of supernormal power endowed with the activities of en-deavour and the concentration of will". Thus that vogin practises. This is the means of success: - Sometimes he falls back; sometimes he abides. Hecauses the arising of energy. He fulfils [442] this basis of supernormal powerwhich is endowed with concentration of energy and the activities of endeavour.(In) this means of success, he sometimes slackens, sometimes falls back, sometimes is perturbed. When the mind slackens, he produces the mentalcharacteristic of alacrity; when the mind falls away, he produces concentration of mind; when the mind is perturbed, he produces the characteristic of equani-mity. Thus his mind acquires the basis of supernormal power which is endowedwith concentration of mind and the activities of endeavour. If one has amind that is without defilement, one understands advantage and disadvantagewith ease. He practises (saying): "Now is the time to develop", or "nowis not the time to develop". Thus he accomplishes "the basis of supernormal power which is endowed with concentration of scrutiny and the activities ofendeavour". Thus that yogin develops the four bases of supernormal power. His mind, being wieldy, responds to the body, and his body responds to themind. Thus that yogin sometimes controls the body with his mind, and sometimes the mind with his body. Depending on the body, the mindchanges; depending on the mind, the body changes. Depending on the body, the mind resolves; depending on the mind, the body resolves. The perception of bliss and lightness adheres to the body. In that state he accom-plishes and abides. Practising thus, that yogin reaches the acme of lightness,makes his body exceedingly pliant, and attains to the capacity-limit of resolve, even as a ball of iron made red-hot is capable of being fashioned into any shapeeasily. Thus having through mental culture made his body light, he, owing tothe lightness of body, enters the fourth meditation, jhdna, and is mindful andtranquil. Rising therefrom, he knows space, and resolves through knowledge. Thus his body is able to rise up in space. Having resolved through knowledge, he can rise up in space. It is comparable to cottonwool blown by the wind. 1 Here the new yogin should not go far quickly, because he might, in the courseof his application, arouse fear. If he stirs up fear, his meditation, jhdna, willfall away. Therefore the new yogin should not go far quickly. He should gogradually. At first one shakuf then he gradually rises and applies himself. And again, he attempts one fathom according to his size. Thus one shouldreach gradually the point he desires to reach.

Q. Is it possible that the yogin will fall down from the sky, if he loseshis meditation, jhdna, there? A. No. This begins from one's meditation-seat. If, having gone far, the meditation, jhdna, is lost, one reaches the sitting place. One sees the body in the first posture (and thinks): "This is the possessorof supernormal power. This is his serenity-practice".

SUPERNORMAL POWER OF RESOLVE

That yogin applies himself gradually, and becomes capable of easy attain-ment. "He is able to enjoy supernormal power in the various modes. Beingone, he becomes many; being many, he becomes one. Or he becomes visible(or invisible) or he goes across a wall; he goes across a barrier; he goes across ahill; he goes unimpeded as if he were in space. He can sink into the earth orcome out of it, as if in water. He can walk on water as on dry land. He canmove in space as a bird on the wing. In the greatness of supernormal powerand might, he can handle the sun and the moon. He raises up his body andreaches the world of Brahma.

"Being one, he becomes many": He, being one, makes himself many. Hemakes himself appear a hundred or a thousand, or a ten thousand and so onthrough supernormal power. He enters the fourth meditation, jhdna, andrising therefrom peacefully resolves through knowledge: "May I be many!",like Cullapanthaka, the Consummate One (arahant).

"He becomes visible or invisible. He goes across a wall; he goes acrossa barrier; he goes across a hill; he goes unimpeded as if in space": Thatyogin, having practised on the space kasina enters the fourth meditation, jhdna,and rising therefrom peacefully, goes across a wall, goes across a barrier,goes across a hill. In going along, he resolves through knowledge thus:"Let there be space!". Having attained to space, that yogin, in space, goesacross a wall, goes across a barrier, goes across a hill. He goes unimpededas if in space.

What is the meaning of "He becomes visible"? It means "opens". Whatis the meaning of "He becomes invisible"? It means "not open". Thatyogin causes to open what is not open, and he goes across a wall; he goesacross a barrier; he goes across a hill. What is the meaning of "He goesunimpeded"? "He can sink into the earth and come out of it as if in water". That yogin practises on the water kasina and enters the fourth meditation, jhdna. Rising therefrom peacefully, he marks off a part of the earth, andresolves through knowledge: "Let there be water!". That yogin can sink into the earth and come out of it as if in water.2

Without obstruction "he can walk on water as if on earth". That yoginpractises on the earth kasina and enters the fourth meditation, jhdna. Risingtherefrom peacefully, he marks off a part of water and resolves through know-ledge thus: "Let there be earth!". Having produced earth, that yogin isable to move on water without difficulty as if on land.

"He moves like a bird on the wing in space": Here there are three kindsof movement: movement on foot; movement on air; and mind-movement. Here the yogin gets the concentration of the earth kasina and resolves throughknowledge for a path in space, and moves on foot. Or if he gets the concentration of the air kasina he resolves upon air, and goes through air like cotton-wool. Or he fills his body and mind with the movement of the mind. Theperception of bliss and lightness adheres to

"He raises up his body and reaches the world of Brahma": Havingsupernormal power that yogin gets control of the mind and goes up even tothe world of Brahmar happily. These are the four bases of supernormal power.

By training the mind thus he resolves that the distant should be near, orthat the near should become distant. He resolves that many should become few, or that the few should become many. He sees Brahma's form withdivine sight. He hears the voice of Brahma3 with divine hearing and he knowsBrahma's mind with the knowledge of others' thoughts. That yogin has threeformations.4 He goes to Brahma's world through two formations. This is

SUPERNORMAL POWER OF TRANSFORMATION

Now the yogin, wishing to acquire the supernormal power of transformation, practises the four bases of supernormal power. He gets control of themind. He makes his body easy in his mind; and he makes his mind easy inhis body. He makes his mind easy with his body; and he makes his body easywith his mind. He resolves upon his mind with his body; and he resolvesupon his body with his mind. The perception of bliss and the perception of lightness adhere to his body. In that he abides. Practising thus that yoginreaches the acme of lightness, making his body exceedingly pliant and reachesthe capacitylimit of resolve, even as an iron ball made red-hot is capable ofbeing fashioned into any shape easily. Thus having through mental culturemade his mind pliant and capable of resolve, he resolves to fill his body withhis mind. If that yogin wishes to take the form of a boy, he, discarding hisform, enters the fourth meditation, jhdna, and rising from it peacefully changesinto the form of a boy, gradually. In changing his body, he resolves throughknowledge: "May I fulfil the form of a boy!". Thus resolving, he can fulfilthe form of a boy. In the same way in changing into the form of a snake or ofa garulq, a yakkha, an asura, or into the form of Sakka-Inda or Brahma, theocean, a mountain, a forest, a lion, a tiger, a leopard, an elephant, a horse, infantry, groups of an army, he resolves through knowledge thus: "May Ifulfil the form of infantry!". Resolving thus, he fulfils the form of infantry(and so on).2

Q. What is the difference between the supernormal power of resolveand the supernormal power of transformation? A. In the supernormalpower of resolve, one resolves without discarding the form. In the supernormalpower of transformation, one discards the form. This is the difference.

The supernormal power of transformation has ended.X

SUPERNORMAL POWER CAUSED BY MIND

Now the yogin wishes to acquire the supernormal power caused by themind. Having got control of mind, he develops the bases of supernormal power and enters into the fourth meditation, jhdna. Rising therefrom peaceful-ly, he attends to the interior of his body with the thought: "It is like anempty pot". Further that yogin meditates thus: "Within this hollow body ofmine I will cause changes as I like. I will cause it to change". And in chang-ing, he resolves through knowledge thus: "Following it I will accomplish!". Thus considering, he accomplishes the change. By this means, he makesmany forms. Thereafter he engages himself in various activities. If theyogin wishes to go to the world of Brahma with a created body, he creates it in the form of a Brahma before entering the Brahma world. The form whichis made according to his will is complete with all factors, and there is no faculty wanting in it. If [443] the possessor of supernormal power walksto and fro, that created man also walks to and fro. If the possessor of supernormal power sits, or lies down, or sends forth vapour and flame, orasks questions, or answers, that created man also sits or lies down, sends forthvapour and flame, or asks questions, or answers. Because that made formsprings from supernormal power, it does so.1

DIVINE HEARING

- Q. Who practises divine hearing? How is it developed?
- A. One who enters the fourth meditation, jhdna, with facility on eightkasinas and two kasinas causes the arising of divine hearing relying on thephysical organ of hearing.
- Q. How is the form element of the fourth meditation, jhdna, set free?

A. It occurs then.1

- Q. How is it developed? A. The new yogin practises the four bases of supernormal power and controls his mind. He enters the fourth meditation, jhdna. Rising therefrom peacefully and depending on the physical organof hearing, he attends to the sound sign. Hearing a sound afar off, or hearing a sound nearby, he attends to the sound sign. Hearing a gross sound orhearing a fine sound, he attends to the sound sign. Hearing a sound from the east, he attends to the sound sign. Thus as to all regions. Through the practice of the purity of mind and the purification of the ear element, that yogin strengthens the mental formations. That yogin hears what is beyondthe reach of human ears owing to the purified divine hearing. He hearsboth sounds, namely, divine sounds and human sounds, also sounds afarand sounds near. 2 Here the predecessors have said: "At first the new yoginhears the sound of beings within himself after that he hears the sound of beingsoutside his body. Thence he hears the sound of beings anywhere. Thushe strengthens attention gradually". Again it is said: "At first the newyogin cannot hear the sound of beings within himself, because he is not able to hear fine sounds. He cannot reach the field of these (sounds) with thephysical ear. But the new yogin could hear the sound of conchs, drumsand the like, with the physical ear".

Fine sounds or gross sounds, sounds afar off or sounds nearby could beheard with divine hearing. Here the new yogin should not attend to extremely fearful sounds, because he will (going to the other extreme) become attached to lovable sounds, and because he will stir up fear in his mind.

Knowledge of divine hearing proceeds in three objects, namely, limitedobject, present object and external object. If one loses physical hearing, one also loses divine hearing. Here, the hearer, who acquires facility (in thepractice), is able to listen to the sounds of a thousand world-systems. The Silent Buddhas can hear more. There is no limit to the power of hearing of the Tathagata.

Divine hearing has ended.%

KNOWLEDGE OF OTHERS' THOUGHTS

Q. Who develops the knowledge of others' thoughts? How isit developed?

A. One entering the fourth meditation, jhdna, on the light kasina andacquiring facility therein, gains divine sight and causes the arising of the know-ledge of others' thoughts.

How is it developed? The new yogin having acquired the bases of super-normal power and having got control of the mind, enters the light kasinawhich is pure and immovable. Rising from the fourth meditation, jhdna,peacefully, he, at first, fills his body with light. He sees the colour of hisown heart through divine sight. Through this colour he perceives his ownstates of consciousness, and knows through the changes in colour the changesin his own mind: "This colour proceeds from the faculty of joy; this colourproceeds from the faculty of fear; this colour proceeds from the faculty of equanimity". If the consciousness which is accompanied by the facultyof joy arises, the heart is of the colour of curds and ghee. If the consciousnesswhich is accompanied by the faculty of melancholy arises, it (the heart) ispurple in colour. If the consciousness which is accompanied by the facultyof equanimity arises, it (the heart) is of the colour of honey. If the conscious-ness which is accompanied by lustful desire arises, it (the heart) is yellowin colour. If the consciousness which is accompanied by anger arises, it (the heart) is black in colour. If the consciousness which is accompaniedby ignorance arises, it (the heart) is muddy in colour. If the consciousnesswhich is accompanied by confidence and knowledge arises, it (the heart) ispure in colour. Thus that yogin understands the changes in colour throughthe changes within himself. At this time he diffuses other bodies with lightand sees the colour of others' hearts through divine sight. He understandsthe changing colours through the changes in their hearts, and the changes in their hearts through the changing colours.1 Having understood thus, hecauses the arising of the knowledge of others' thoughts. Having arousedthe knowledge of others' thoughts, he leaves off attending to the changesof colour and holds to the heart only as object. That yogin practises thus. Therefore his mind becomes pure.

If a certain individual has the heart of loving-kindness, he (the yogin)knows that that individual possesses the heart of loving-kindness. If a certainindividual has the heart of hate, he knows that that individual has the heart of hate. If a certain individual has not the heart of hate, he knows that that individual has not the heart of hate. Thus he knows all.

The knowledge of others' thoughts proceeds in eight objects, namely, limited object, lofty object, the path object, the immeasurable object, thepast object, the future object, the present object and the external object. The knowledge of the thoughts of those who are freed from the cankers is notwithin the power of the commoner. The thoughts of the beings of the formless realms are knowable only by the Buddhas. If the hearer gains freedom, he knows the thoughts (of beings) of a thousand world-systems. The SilentBuddhas know more. As to the Tathagata, there is no limit.

The knowledge of others' thoughts has ended.X

of knowledge of the recollection of past lives can be made to arise"? A. Thereare three kinds of knowledge of the recollection of past lives.

Q. With the fourth meditation, jhdna, how many kinds of recollection past lives are possible?

A. There are three kinds of recollection of past lives: many lives, birth made, practice made.

"Many lives" means: recollection of past lives produced through fourways, viz., one develops the sign well, then one grasps the mental sign, onecalms one's faculties and one develops that ability. These four ways producethe recollection of past lives. Of these the recollection of seven past livesis the best. Through "birth made" means: deities, ndgas (demons) andgarulas (mythical birds) remember their past lives naturally. Of these thebest remember fourteen past lives.

"Practice made" means to produce by way of the four bases of supernormalpower.

Q. How is the knowledge of the recollection of past lives developed ?A. The new yogin, having practised the four bases of supernormal power, gains control of the mind through confidence, and becomes immovable andpure. He, having sat down, remembers what he had done in the day or allthat he had done bodily, mentally and verbally. Thus also as regards theactions of the night. In the same way he recollects all that he had done during day, during two days and thus backwards to one month. In the same wayhe remembers all that he had done during two months, one year, two years, three years, a hundred years up to his last birth. At this time the mind andthe mental properties of the preceding birth and the mind and the mentalproperties of the succeeding birth appear. Owing to the mind and the mentalproperties of the preceding birth, he gets (the succeeding) birth. Owingto mind-succession, he is able to see the causes and conditions and rememberthe (backward) rolling of consciousness. The two (the preceding and thesucceeding) are not disjoined and are produced in this world, having been produced in that world. Through such practice of the mind that is purified, that yogin remembers his varied lot in the past. Thus (he remembers) onelife, two lives, three lives, four lives and so forth. The new yogin remembersall pertaining to this life. If any yogin is not able to remember his past birthshe should not give up exerting himself. He should develop meditation, jhdna, again and again. He, in developing meditation, jhdna, well, should purifythe mind with action similar to the correct method of burnishing a mirror. 1 Having purified his mind, he remembers his past exactly. If he continues to remember [444] his past beginning with one life, he is exceedingly glad. Having found out the way he should not recall to mind his states of existencein the animal world and in the formless realm, and, because of inconscience, births in the plane of the unconscious deities. In this the Venerable ElderSobhita is most excellent. 1

The knowledge of the recollection of past lives proceeds in seven objects. They are limited, lofty, immeasurable, past, internal, external and internal-external.2

His lot in the past, the country and the village should be recalled to mind. 3To remember the past is knowledge of the recollection of past lives. Toremember the continuity of aggregates through knowledge is knowledgeof the recollection of past lives. Outsiders remember forty aeons. They cannot remember more than that, because of their feebleness. The noblehearers remember ten thousand aeons; more than this, the chief hearers; more than this, the Silent Buddhas; and more than this, the Tathagatas, the Supremely Enlightened Ones, who are able to recall to mind their ownand others' previous lives, activities, spheres and all else. 4 The rest rememberonly their own previous lives and a few of the previous lives of others. The Supremely Enlightened Ones recall to mind everything they wish to recall. Others recall gradually. The Supremely Enlightened Ones, either through

DIVINE SIGHT

Q. Who practises divine sight? How many kinds of divine sight arethere? How is divine sight developed?

A. He who enters the fourth meditation, jhdna, on the light kasina andacquires facility therein, and by him who is in possession of natural sight.

How many kinds of divine sight are there? A. There are two kindsof divine sight, namely, that which is produced by well-wrought kamma2 andthat which is produced by the strength of energetic developing.3 Here, divine sight which is accumulated kamma is born of (kamma) result. Therebyone can see whether there are jewels or not in a treasury. "That which is produced by the strength of energetic developing" means that which is producedby the practice of the four bases of supernormal power.

How is divine sight developed? Having practised the four bases of super-normal power and gained control of the mind, the new yogin, being pure andimmovable, enters the light kasina. Attaining to the fourth meditation, jhdna, he attends to and resolves upon the perception of light and the perception of day thus: "This day is like night; this night is like day".4 His mind beingfree from all obstruction and from all clinging, he is able to strengthen hismind and increase light. To that yogin who strengthens and increases hislight, there is nothing obscure. There is nothing covered, and he surpasses the sun in splendour. Practising thus, that yogin diffuses his body with lightand attends to colour and form. With the purified divine sight which sur-passes human vision, that yogin "sees beings disappearing and reappearing, coarse and fine, beautiful and ugly, faring well or faring ill, according to theirdeeds.5 Here, if one wishes to cause the arising of divine sight, he shouldsuppress these defilements: uncertainty, wrong mindfulness, rigidity andtorpor, pride, wrong joy, slanderous talk, excessive exercise of energy, toolittle exercise of energy, frivolous talk, perceptions of diversity, excessive investigation of forms. If any one of these defilements appears in the courseof the practice of divine sight, concentration is lost. If concentration is lost, light is lost, vision of objects is lost. Therefore these defilements should bewell suppressed. If he suppresses these defilements, but does not acquirefacility in concentration, his power of divine sight is limited, owing to non-acquirement of facility. That yogin sees a limited splendour with limiteddivine sight. His vision of forms is also limited; therefore the Blessed Onetaught thus: "At a time when my concentration is limited, my eye is limited; and with a limited eye I know a limited splendour and I see limited forms. At a time when my concentration is immeasurable, my eye is possessed of immeasurable divine sight; and with an immeasurable divine sight, I know immeasurable splendour and I see immeasurable forms". 1 internal-object, external-object and internal-external-object. 1 From divinesight four kinds of knowledge are produced. The knowledge of the future, 2the knowledge of the kamma sprung from each self, the knowledge of thepassing away of beings according to their deeds and the knowledge of kamma-result. Here, through the knowledge of the future, he knows the arising of the form of the future.3 Through the knowledge of the kamma sprung fromeach self, he knows the kamma which others make. By that kamma he knowsthat such and such a man will go to such and such a world.4 Through theknowledge of the passing away of beings according to their deeds, he seesthe world in which beings will appear, and he knows that such and such aman will be born in such and such a world through such and such a kamma.5Through the knowledge of the kamma-result, he knows the time of arrivalhere; he knows the state he will reach here; he knows the defilement which causes the arrival here; he knows the means of arrival here; he knows that such and such a kamma will mature; he knows that such and such a kammawill not mature; he knows that such and such a kamma will result in much: and he knows that such and such a kamma will result in little.6

Here the hearer who acquires freedom sees a thousand worldsystems. The Silent Buddha sees more than that, and there is no limit to the vision of the Tathagata.

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS

Here there are the following miscellaneous teachings: If one practises one kind of concentration with the purpose of seeing forms through divinesight, he can only see forms. He cannot hear sounds. If he practises onekind of concentration for the purpose of hearing sounds through divine hearing, he can hear sounds only. He cannot see forms. If he practises concentration for the purpose of seeing and hearing, he can see and hear. If he practises concentration for the purpose of seeing, hearing and knowing others' thoughts, he can see, hear and know others' thoughts. If he practises concentration for the purpose of seeing in one direction, he cannot see in another direction, he cannot hear and he cannot know others' thoughts. If he practises con-centration much, he can see in all directions, he can hear and he can know others' thoughts. Five supernormal powers are worldly higher knowledge. These are possessed by the denizens of the form plane who are with the cankersand commoners with the fetters. Meritorious higher knowledge belongs toboth the learner and the commoner. To the Consummate One belongs non-characterizable higher knowledge. The five kinds of higher knowledge arenot produced in the formless plane.

ON DISTINGUISHING WISDOM

CHAPTER THE TENTH

Q. What is wisdom? What is its salient characteristic? What is itsfunction? What is its manifestation? What is its near cause? What are itsbenefits? What is the meaning of wisdom? Through what merits can wisdombe acquired? How many kinds of wisdom are there?

A. The seeing, by the mind, of objects as they are—this is called wisdom.1And again, the considering of advantage and non-advantage, and of thesublime, is called wisdom. It is according to the teaching of the Abhidhamma.

WISDOM DEFINED

is knowledge. This is investigation of the truth, distinguishing,1 synecdoche. That investigation is learned, skilful, clever, and in considering, it sees clearly and draws knowledge (?). Wisdom is good; wisdom is faculty; wisdom ispower; wisdom is sword; wisdom is a tower; wisdom is light; wisdom issplendour; wisdom is a lamp; and wisdom is a gem. Non-delusion, investi-gation of the truth, right views—these are called wisdom. The attainment of truth is its salient characteristic. Investigation is its function. Non-delusion is its manifestation. The four truths are its near cause. And again, clear understanding is its salient characteristic; the entering into the true law is its function; the dispelling of the darkness of ignorance is itsmanifestation; the four kinds of analytical science are its near cause.

BENIFITS OF WISDOM

What are its benefits? Incalculable are the benefits of wisdom. This is the statement in brief:—

Through wisdom are all morals made to shine. Two kinds of wisdom lead to jhdna-hdghts. Through wisdom does one tread the Holy Pathand see the fruition great of sanctity. Supreme is wisdom; 'tis the eye of things. The loss of wisdom is impurity. Unrivalled is the growth in wisdom's state. Through wisdom does one break all heresy. The vulgar drawn by craving practise ill; Not so the wise, the highest of all kind, who rightly live and teach what profits boththis world and that. They being free and strongsee states of woe and welfare multiform, and know condition, cause, mind, matter, norm. This wisdom is the doctrine of the Truths. This wisdom is the pasture of the good. Through wisdom one attains to excellence. Through wisdom one roots out the evil brood, which are called craving, hatred, ignorance, and birth and death, and all the rest that is, which naught else ever can exterminate.

MEANING OF WISDOM

Q. What is the meaning of wisdom? A. It means "knowledge" andit means "removing well". Through what merits can wisdom be acquired? Through these eleven merits, [445] namely, searching the meaning of thescriptures, many good deeds, dwelling in purity, serenity and insight, the FourTruths, work of science (?), calming the mind, dwelling in meditation, jhdna, at all times, ridding the mind of the hindrances, separating from the unwiseand the habit of associating with the wise.

TWO KINDS OF WISDOM

How many kinds of wisdom are there? A. Two kinds, three kinds and four kinds. Q. What are the two kinds in wisdom? A. Mundanewisdom and supramundane wisdom.1 Here wisdom which is associated withthe Noble Path and Fruit is supramundane wisdom. Others are mundanewisdom. Mundane wisdom is with cankers, with fetters and with tangle. This is flood. This is yoke. This is hindrance. This is contact. This isfaring on. This is contamination.2 Supramundane wisdom is without cankers, is without fetters, is without tangle, the non-flood, the non-yoked, the non-hindered, the non-contacted, the not faring on, the non-contaminated.

FIRST GROUP OF THREE IN WISDOM

The three kinds in wisdom are wisdom sprung from thought, wisdomsprung from study and wisdom sprung from culture.3 Here wisdom whichone acquires without learning from others is the wisdom that kamma is property of each one or the wisdom which is conformable to the truth in respect ofvocational works or works of science. Thus is wisdom sprung from thoughtto be known. The wisdom that is got by learning from others is called wisdomsprung from study. Entering into concentration one develops all wisdom—this is wisdom sprung from concentration.

SECOND GROUP OF THREE IN WISDOM

Again there are three kinds in wisdom: skill in profit, skill in loss, skill in means. Here as one attends to these states, demeritorious states are putaway; meritorious states are made to increase. This wisdom is called skillin profit. Again, as one attends to these states, demeritorious states arise, and meritorious states are put away. This wisdom is called "skill in loss". Here, the wisdom of all means of success is called "skill in means".1

THIRD GROUP OF THREE IN WISDOM

And again, there are three kinds in wisdom, namely, the wisdom that accumulates, the wisdom that does not accumulate and the wisdom that neither accumulates nor does not accumulate. The wisdom of the Four Pathsis called the wisdom that does not accumulate. The neither describable nor non-describable wisdom of the Fruit of the four stages and the object of three stages—this is wisdom that neither accumulates nor does not accumulate.2

FIRST GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

The four kinds in wisdom are knowledge produced by one's own kamma,knowledge that conforms to the truth, knowledge connected with the FourPaths and knowledge connected with the Four Fruits. Here, right view con-cerning the ten bases is the knowledge produced by one's own kamma. "Adap-table patience" in one who regards the aggregates as impermanent, ill, andnot-self is called knowledge that conforms to the truth. The wisdom of theFour Paths is called knowledge connected with the Four Paths. The wisdomof the Four Fruits is called knowledge connected with.the Four Fruits.3.

SECOND GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

And again, there are four kinds in wisdom, namely, wisdom of the sensuous element, wisdom of the form element, wisdom of the formless element and

Meritorious wisdom of the form element which isneither characterizable nor non-characterizable is called wisdom of the formelement. Meritorious wisdom of the formless element which is neither charac-terizable nor non-characterizable is called wisdom of the formless element. Wisdom of the Paths and the Fruits is called unfettered wisdom.1

THIRD GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

And again, there are four kinds in wisdom, namely, knowledge of theLaw, knowledge of succession, knowledge of discrimination, and generalknowledge. The wisdom of the Four Paths and the Four Fruits is called know-ledge of the Law. That yogin knows the past, the future and the presentthrough knowledge of the Law, and through this also he knows the distantpast and the distant future. The knowledge of the (four) truths is knowledgeof succession. The knowledge of others' minds is called the knowledge ofdiscrimination. The kinds of knowledge that are other than these three arecalled general knowledge.2

FOURTH GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

The wisdomof the Four Paths is due to non-combination and not to combination. Meri-torious wisdom of the form element and the formless element is due to combination and also to non-combination. Characterizable wisdom of the Fruit ofthe four stages and of the object of the three stages is neither due to combinationnor to non-combination. 1

FIFTH GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

And again, there are four kinds in wisdom. There is wisdom which isdue to aversion and not to penetration. There is wisdom which is due to aversion and not to aversion. There is wisdom which is due to aversionand also to penetration. There is wisdom which is due neither to aversionnor to penetration. Here the wisdom which is due to aversion and which isnot due to penetration of supernormal knowledge and the knowledge of the Four Truths is called wisdom which is due to aversion and not due to pene-tration. That which is due to supernormal knowledge is due to penetrationand not due to aversion. The wisdom of the Four Paths are due to aversionand also to penetration. The other kinds of wisdom are due neither toaversion nor to penetration.2

SIXTH GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

And again, there are four kinds in wisdom, namely, analysis of meaning, of the Law, of interpretation and of argument.

Knowledge in regard tomeaning is analysis of meaning.

Knowledge in regard to doctrine is analysis of the Law.

Knowledge in regard to etymological interpretation is analysis of interpretation. Knowledge in regard to knowledge is analysis of argument.3

And again, the knowledge of ill and cessation is analysis of meaning. The knowledge of the origin of ill and the Path is called analysis of the Law. Etymological interpretation of the Law is called analysis of interpretation. Knowledge in regard to knowledge is called analysis of argument. 2

NINTH GROUP OF FOUR IN WISDOM

And again, knowledge of the Law, namely, the discourses, mixed verseand prose, expositions, verse, solemn utterances, sayings, birth-stories, super-normal phenomena, divisions according to matter* is called analysis of theLaw. One knows the meaning of what is spoken: "This is the meaning of what is spoken". This is called analysis of meaning. Knowledge of themeaning of what has been preached is called the analysis of interpretation. Knowledge in regard to knowledge is called analysis of argument.3

And again, knowledge in respect of the eye is called analysis of the Law. Eye-knowledge in respect of views is called analysis of meaning. Knowledge in interpreting what has been preached is called analysis of interpretation. Knowledge in regard to knowledge is called analysis of argument. 4

Here, if the new yogin aspires after release from decay and death, andwishes to remove the cause of arising and passing away, wishes to dispelthe darkness of ignorance, to cut the rope of craving and to acquire holywisdom, he should develop the methods, namely, the aggregate-method,2sense-organ-method,3 element-method,4 conditioned-arising-method5 andtruth-method.6

THE AGGREGATE OF FORM

Q. What is the aggregate-method? A. The five aggregates are, theaggregate of form,7 the aggregate of feeling,8 the aggregate of perception,9the aggregate of formation,10 and the aggregate of consciousness.11 Q. Whatis the aggregate of form? A. The four primaries and the material qualitiesderived from the primaries.12

FOUR PRIMARIES DEFINED

- Q. What are the four primaries? Earth-element,13 water-element,14fire-element,15 air-element.16 What is the earth-element? That which has the nature of hardness and the nature of solidity. This is called the earth-element. What is the water-element? That which has the nature of flowingand the nature of cohesiveness. This is called the water-element. What is the fire-element? That which has the nature of heating and the nature ofmaturing matter. This is called the fire-element. What is the air-element? That which has the nature of moving and the nature of supporting. This is called the air-element. I

The new yogin overcomes difficulties in two ways, namely, through viewingthese briefly and through viewing these at length. This should be understood was fully taught in the determining of the four elements.

DERIVED MATERIAL QUALITIES

What are the derived material qualities? The sense-organs of eye, ear,nose, tongue, body, matter as sense-object, sound as sense-object, odouras sense-object, taste as sense-object, femininity, masculinity, life-principle,body-intimation, speech-intimation, element of space, buoyancy of matter, impressibility of matter, adaptibility of matter, integration of matter, continuity of matter, decay of matter, impermanency of matter, solid food,2 the basis of the material element and the material quality of torpor.3

impinging on this, visual consciousness is aroused.1 This is called the sense-organ of eye. And again, the sensory matter that depends on the three smallfleshy discs round the pupil, and the white and black of the eye-ball that isin five layers of flesh, blood, wind, phlegm and serum, is half a poppy-seedin size, is like the head of a louseling, is made by the four primaries accordingto past kamma2 and in which the primary of heat is in excess, is called thesense-organ of the eye. [446] It is as has been taught by the Possessor of Great Skill, the Venerable Elder Sariputta, "The organ of visual sense, bywhich one sees objects, is small and subtle like (the head of) a louse".3

SENSE-ORGAN OF EAR

What is the sense-organ of ear? By this sounds are heard. Sound im-pinging on this, auditory consciousness is aroused. This is called the sense-organ of ear. And again, the sensory matter that is in the interior of thetwo ear-holes, is fringed by tawny hair, is dependent on the membrane, islike the stem of a blue-green bean, is produced by the four primaries according to kamma and in which the element of space is in excess, is called the sense-organ of ear.4

SENSE-ORGAN OF NOSE

What is the sense-organ of nose? By this odours are sensed. Odourimpinging on this, olfactory consciousness arises. This is called the sense-organ of nose. And again, the sensory matter that, in the interior of thenose, where the three meet,5 is dependent on one small opening, is like aKovildra6 (flower in shape), is produced by the four primaries, according topast kamma, and in which the primary of air is in excess, is called the sense-organ of nose.

SENSE-ORGAN OF TONGUE

What is the sense-organ of tongue? By this tastes are known. Tasteimpinging on this, gustatory consciousness is aroused. This is called the sense-organ of tongue. And again, the sensory matter that is two-fingerbreadths in size, is in shape like a blue lotus,1 is located in the flesh of thetongue, is a product of the four primaries, is wrought according to past kamtna,and in which the primary of water is in excess, is called the sense-organ oftongue.

SENSE-ORGAN OF BODY

What is the sense-organ of body? By this tangibles are known. By theimpact of tangibles on this, tactual consciousness is aroused. This is called sense-organ of body. And again, it is the sensory matter that is in the entirebody, excepting the hair of the body and of the head, nails, teeth and otherinsensitive parts, is produced by the four primaries, according to past kamma, and in which the primary of earth is in excess. This is called the sense-organof body. Material sense-object is the reaction of visible objects, auditorysenseobject is the reaction of sound, olfactory sense-object is the reaction of odour, gustatory sense-object is the reaction of flavour. Femininity is the characteristic of female nature; masculinity is the characteristic of malenature; that which preserves the body wrought by kamma, is called life-principle; body intimation means bodily activities; speech intimation means verbal activities; what delimits matter is called the element of space. Buoyancyof matter means, the lightnesscharacteristic of material nature; impressibility of matter means, the plasticity-characteristic of material nature; adaptibility of matter means, the workability-characteristic of material nature; thesethree are the characteristics of nonsluggishness in material nature; theaccumulation of these sense-organs is called the integration of matter. This integration of matter is called the continuity of matter. The arising ofmaterial objects is the coming to birth of matter; the maturing of material objects is the decay of matter; matter decays—this is called the impermanency of matter. That, by which beings get nutritive essence, is called solid food. The growth which is dependent on the primaries and the element of conscious-ness, is called the sense-organ of the material element. All primaries are characterized by the material quality of torpor. These twenty-six material qualities and the four primaries make up thirty kinds of matter.2

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE FOUR PRIMARIESAND DERIVED MATTER

- Q. What is the difference between the four primaries and the matter derived from the four primaries? A. Depending on one another, the fourprimaries are produced. Though the four derived material qualities are produced in dependence on the four primaries, the four primaries do notdepend on the derived material qualities and the material qualities derived from the four primaries are not interdependent.

SIMILE OF THE THREE STICKS

The four primaries should be known as three sticks which stand supportingone another. The material qualities derived from the four primaries shouldbe known as the shadow cast by the three sticks, which support each other. This is the difference between them. Here the yogin knows that all thesethirty material qualities are of five kinds by way of arising, group, birth, diversity, unity.

MATERIAL QUALITIES BY WAY OF ARISING

Q. How, by way of arising? A. Nine material qualities arise owingto the cause-condition of kamma. They are the sense-organs of eye, ear,nose, tongue and body, femininity, masculinity, life-principle, and the basis ofthe material element. Two material qualities arise owing to the cause-condition of consciousness. They are body-intimation and speech-intimation. One material quality arises owing to the cause-condition of the caloric orderand consciousness. It is the auditory sense-object. Four material qualities arise owing to the cause-condition of caloricity, consciousness and nutriment. They are buoyancy of matter, impressibility of matter, adaptibility of matterand the material quality of torpor. Twelve material qualities arise owing tofour cause-conditions.

They are material sense-object, olfactory sense-object, gustatory sense-object, space-element, integration of matter, continuity of matter, birth of matter, solid food and the four elements.

Of two material qualities, namely decay of matter and impermanency ofmatter, there is no arising. And again, decay depends on birth; and dependingon decay, there is impermanency. Thus one should know the character of these by way of arising.

MATERIAL QUALITIES BY WAY OF GROUP

- Q. How, by way of group?1 A. Nine groups are produced by kamma. Nine groups are produced by consciousness. Six groups are produced by caloric order. Three groups are produced by nutriment.
- Q. What are the nine groups produced by kammal A. They are theeye-decad, ear-decad, nose-decad, tongue-decad, body-decad femininity-decad,masculinity-decad, basis-decad, life-ennead.2
- 1. Kaldpa.
- 2. Cakkhu-dasaka-, sota-dasaka-, ghana-dasaka-, kdya~dasaka-t itthindriya-dasaka-, puris-indriya-dasaka-, dyatana-dasaka-kaldpa (possibly for hadayavatthu); jivita-navaka-kalapa.
- Q. What is the eye-decad? A. The four elements of eye-sentience areits basis. And again, it consists of the four primaries, form, odour, flavour,contact,1 life-principle and the sentient eye. This decad is produced togetherand does not separate. This is called "group" and this is called the eye-decad. The arising of this is birth; its maturing is called decay; its destruction is called impermanency; what delimits it is called space-element; these four andthe group arise together. When the eye-decad decays, it produces a seconddecad; these two kinds of decads should be known as "group". Comingafter is called succession. These six states arise together. When decay setsin, the second eye-decad produces a third decad. These, the second andthe third eye-decads are called "group". Coming after is called succession. The first decad is scattered, the second decad decays, the third decad arises. These occur in one moment. Thus the eye-decad arises. None can discernthe interval. So quick it is that by worldly knowledge it cannot be known. There is a yogin. He sees the succession of the eye. It is like a flowingstream. It is like the flame of a lamp. 2 Thus should the eye-decad beknown. In the same way one should know the ear-decad, the nose-decad, thetongue-decad, the body-decad, femininity-decad, masculinity-decad, life-principle-ennead at length.

- Q. What are the nine consciousness-born groups? A. Bare-octad, bare-body-intimation-ennead, bare-speech-intimation-heptad, bare-buoyancy-ennead, buoyancy-body-intimation-decad, buoyancy-speech-intimation-un-decad, bare-eye-ennead, eye-body-intimation-decad, eye-speech-intimation-undecad.
- Q. What is the consciousness-born-bare-octad? A. The four elements and visible object, odour, flavour and contact which depend on the elements. These eight are named the bare-octad.

The arising of these is birth; the maturing of these is decay; destruction of these is impermanency; what delimits these is space-element; these fourstates arise in them. At the time of their destruction, this bare octad setsgoing a second bare-octad together with the second consciousness. Destruction of the first bare (-octad) and the arising of the second bare (-octad) occur in amoment.*

In the same way, the bare-buoyancy-nonary and the bare-eyeennead(should be understood). These six groups3 are not destroyed in the first andnot produced in the second, do not occur in one instant, because no two inti-mations can take place in one conscious track. The rest should be knownin the way it was fully taught before.

- 3. Bare-body-intimation, bare-speech-intimation, buoyancy-body-intimation, buoyancy-speech-intimation, eye-body-intimation, eye-speech-intimation.
- Q. What arc the six groups produced by the caloric order? A. Bare-octad, bare-sound-ennead, bare-buoyancy-ennead, buoyancy-sound-decad,bare-eye-ennead, eye-sound-decad. External groups are of two kinds: bare-octad and sound-ennead.
- Q. What are the three groups which are produced in nutriment ? A. Bareoctad, bare-buoyancy-ennead and bare-eye-ennead.

Of groups that are produced by caloric order and nutriment, the continuity,kamma and basis should be known as equal. The rest is as was taught above. The divine life-ennead is fulfilled in the sensuous element and in the sphere ofaction. Eight groups continue because of life: nose, tongue, body, masculinityor femininity, and the three beginning with buoyancy, and torpidity. Theseare not in the form-element. The divine life-ennead pertains to the unconscious Brahmas. In their body all the sense-organs exist. (Thus one should know), through groups.

MATERIAL QUALITIES BY WAY OF BIRTH

Q. How, through birth? A. It should be known by way of a male orfemale entering a womb. In the first moment thirty material qualities are produced. 1 They are the basis-decad, body-decad, femininity-decad, mas-culinity-decad. In the case of a person who is neither a male nor a female, twenty material qualities are produced. 2 They are the basis-decad and the body-decad.

Taking birth in the sensuous element, a male or a female possessed of thefaculties and the sense-organs arouses seventy material qualities at the time ofbirth. They are the basis-decad, the body-decad, the eye-decad, the ear-decad, the nose-decad, the tongue-decad, the femininity or masculinity-decad.

When a blind male or female is born in an evil state, that person arousessixty material qualities, at the moment of birth, namely, (all) except the eye-decad. In the same way a deaf person [447] arouses sixty material qualities, namely, (all) except the ear-decad. A deaf and blind person arouses fifty materialqualities namely, (all) except the eye-decad and the ear-decad. When onewho is neither a male nor a female is born, at the beginning of an aeon, in anevil state, having faculties and sense-organs, that person arouses sixty materialqualities at the moment of birth, namely, (all) except the masculinity or femi-ninity decad. A person, who is neither a male nor a female and is blind, produces fifty material qualities, namely, (all) except the eye-faculty-decadand the masculinity or femininity-decad. A person who is neither a male nora female and who is deaf arouses fifty material qualities, namely, (all) except the ear-decad and masculinity or femininity. A person who is neither a malenor a female, and is blind and deaf, arouses forty material qualities, namely, the basis-decad, the body-decad, the nose-decad and the tongue-decad. Brahmaarouses forty-nine material qualities at the moment of birth. They are thebasis-decad, the eye-decad, the ear-decad, the body-decad and the life-principle-ennead. The beings of the divine-plane of inconscience arouse nine material qualities at the moment of birth, namely, the life-principle-ennead. Thusone should know through birth.

MATERIAL QUALITIES BY WAY OF DIVERSITY,—GROUPS OF TWO IN MATERIAL QUALITIES

Q. How, through diversity? A. All material qualities are of twokinds. They are gross or subtle. Here, twelve material qualities are gross, because internal and external material sense-objects are seized through impact. The other eighteen material qualities are subtle, because they are not seizedthrough impact. And again, there are two kinds of material qualities. They are internal and external. Here, five material qualities are internal, because the five sense-organs of eye and others are limited. The other thirty-fivematerial qualities are external matter, because they are not limited. Andagain, there are two kinds. They are faculty and nonfaculty. 1 Here eightmaterial qualities are faculty. They are the five internals (possibly, fivesentient organs), the faculty of femininity, of masculinity and life; they areso because of dependence. The other twenty-two are non-faculty, becausethey are non-dependent.2

GROUPS OF THREE IN MATERIAL QUALITIES

All material qualities can be divided into three hinds. They are non-material qualities and arrested material qualities.3 Here nine material qualitiesare feeling. They are the eight faculties and the material basis, because they are produced owing to kamma-result. Nine material qualities are the sense-object of sound, body-intimation, speech-intimation, buoyancy of matter, impressibility of matter, workability of matter, decay of matter, imper-manency of matter and torpidity. These are not produced throughkamma-result. The other twelve material qualities are breakable ones becausethey have two kinds of significance (?). And again, material qualities areof three kinds: visible and reacting, invisible and reacting and invisible and

- 1. Lit. Life-faculty and non-life-faculty.
- 2. Cp. Dhs. 125-27, para. 585.
- 3. Lit. Having broken material qualities.

non-reacting.1 Here one material quality is visible and reacting, that is,material sense-object, because it can be seen and touched. Eleven material qualities are invisible and reacting. They are gross matter except materials ense-object, because they cannot be seen but can be touched. Eighteenmaterial qualities are invisible and non-reacting. All other subtle matteris invisible and non-reacting.

FOUR KINDS OF MATERIAL QUALITIES

• Again, all material qualities are of four kinds, by way of intrinsicnature of matter, material form, material characteristics and delimitation ofmatter. Here nineteen material qualities are intrinsic. They are the twelvegross material qualities, femininity, masculinity, life-principle, element ofwater, solid food, material basis and material quality of eye, because theylimit (?). Seven material qualities are material form. They are body-inti-mation, speech-intimation, buoyancy of matter, impressibility of matter, workability of matter, integration of matter, continuity of matter and intrinsicnature of matter, because they change. Three material qualities are material characteristics. They are birth of matter, decay of matter and impermanency of matter, because they are conditioned. One material quality is delimitation of matter. It is space-element, because it defines the groups. Here, throughintrinsic nature one discriminates, not through the others. Thus one shouldunderstand through diversity.

MATERIAL QUALITIES BY WAY OF UNITY

- Q. How, through unity? A. All material qualities are one, as being not acondition, as not being non-conditioned, as being dissociated from condition, causally related, put-together, worldly, cankerous, binding, fettering, as beingwith flood, yoke, hindrance, as being infected, as being with faring-on, passion, as being indeterminate, objectless, non-mental, dissociated from mind, asnot arising together with pleasure, as not arising together with pain, as arisingtogether with non-pain and non-pleasure, as neither group nor non-group, as neither learning nor non-learning, as neither broken by views nor brokenby concentration. Thus one should know the character of matter throughunity. This is called the aggregate of matter.

AGGREGATE OF FEELING

Q. What is the aggregate of feeling? A. From the point of charac-teristic, feeling is of one kind, as being experienced by the mind only. From the point of sense-organ, it is of two kinds thus: bodily and mental. From the point of intrinsic nature, it is of three kinds: blissful feeling, painful feeling, feeling that is neither blissful nor painful.1 From the point of the Law, it is of four kinds: meritorious, demeritorious, retributive and objective. From the point of faculties, there are five kinds, namely, pleasure-faculty, pain-faculty, joy-faculty, grieffaculty, indifference-faculty.2 From the point of black and white, it is of six kinds, namely, cankerous feeling of pleasure, non-cankerous feeling of pleasure, cankerous feeling of pain, non-cankerousfeeling of pain, cankerous feeling of neither pain nor pleasure, non-cankerousfeeling of neither pain nor pleasure. From the point of method, it is of sevenkinds thus: feeling born of eye-contact, of ear-contact, of nosecontact, oftongue-contact, of body-contact, contact of mindelement, contact of mind-consciousness. Fully one hundred and eight kinds of feeling are fulfilled. Six states of feeling are aroused from craving; six from renunciation; sixfrom griefcraving; six from grief-renunciation; six from equanimitycraving; six from equanimity-renunciation. Six times six are thirty-six, and in thethree divisions of time, these thirty-six are increased three times. This is called the aggregate of feeling.3

AGGREGATE OF PERCEPTION

Q. What is the aggregate of perception? A. From the point of character-istic, perception is single, because only the mind apprehends objects. From the point of black and white, it is of two kinds, namely, perception-reversal and perception-non-

- reversal.4 From the point of demerit, it is of three kinds, namely, lustful-perception, hating-perception and harming-perception. From the point of merit, it is of three kinds, namely, renunciation-perception, non-hating-perception and non-harming-perception.5 From the point of notknowing the significant nature of sense-organ, it is of four kinds, namely, the perception of the ugly as beautiful, of ill as well, of impermanence as non-impermanence, of not-self as self. From the point of knowing the signi-ficant nature of sense-organ, it is of four kinds, namely, perception of the ugly, perception of ill, perception of impermanence and perception of not-self.1According to the Vinaya, it is of five kinds, thus: the perception of the uglyas beautiful, of the ugly as ugly, of the beautiful as beautiful and the perception of uncertainty. From the point of object, there are six kinds thus: form-perception, sound-perception, perception of odour, perception of taste, per-ception of contact, perception of ideas.2 By way of door, there are sevenkinds thus: perception that is born of eye-contact, ear-contact, nose-contact, tongue-contact, body-contact, mind-element-contact, consciousness-element-contact. Thus should the several kinds of perception be known. This is called the aggregate of perception.3

AGGREGATE OF FORMATIONS

Q. What is the aggregate of formations? A. Contact, volition, initial application of thought, sustained application of thought, joy, confidence, energy, mindfulness, concentration, wisdom, life-principle, (removal of)hindrance, non-greed, non-hate, modesty, decorum, repose, wish to do, resolve, equanimity, attention, greed, hatred, delusion, conceit, views, agitationand anxiety, uncertainty, indolence, immodesty, indecorum4 and all othermental properties, except feeling and perception, belong to the aggregate offormations.

AGGREGATE OF CONSCIOUSNESS

Q. What is the aggregate of consciousness? A. It is eye-consciousness, ear-conscioiasness, nose-consciousness, tongue-consciousness, body-conscious-ness, mind-element and mind-consciousness-element. Here, eye-consciousnessis the cognizing of forms dependent on the eye. This is called eye-consciousness. Ear-consciousness is the cognizing of sounds dependent on the ear. This is called ear-consciousness. Nose-consciousness is the cognizing of odoursdependent on the nose. This is called nose-consciousness. Tongue-consciousness is the cognizing of flavours dependent on the tongue. This is calledtongue-consciousness. Body-consciousness is the cognizing of tangiblesdependent on the body. This is called body-consciousness. Mind-element depends on the five-door-adverting and the receiving of the desirable and thenon-desirable. The cognizing (of form etc.) immediately after the fivekinds of consciousness is called mind-element. Mind-consciousness-element: The mind, excepting these six kinds of consciousness, is called mind-conscious-ness-element. These seven kinds of consciousness should be known throughthese three ways: through organ-object, through object, through states.

THROUGH SENSE-ORGAN-OBJECT

Q. How, through sense-organ-object? A. Five kinds of consciousnessare different as to sense-organ and as to object.

Mind-element and mindconsciouness-element are one as to sense-organ. Five-fold is the object ofmind-element. Six-fold is the object of mind-consciousness-element. Fivekinds of consciousness are as to state, internal; as to organ, internal; as toobject, external. Mind-element is as to state, internal; as to organ, external; as to object, external. Mind-consciousness-element is as to state, internal; as to object, internal and external. In respect of the sixkinds of consciousness, organ and object proceed from the past. In respectof mind-consciousness-element, organ-production occurs at the moment ofconception. There is no object of organ in the formless sphere because organis produced first. Thus it should be understood through organ-object.

THROUGH OBJECT

Q. How, through object? A. Each of the five kinds of consciousnesshas its limits. These (five) are not produced by one another. They are produced neither before nor after but at once, and are not produced separately. Through the five kinds of consciousness, all states cannot be known; only thefirst arising can be known. Through the mind-element, all states cannot beknown; only those which proceed in the mind can be known. Through thesix kinds of consciousness there is no establishing of postures. Throughapperception1 there is the fixing of them. Through the six kinds of conscious-ness there is no fixing of bodily and verbal activity. (Through apperceptionthese are fixed). Through the six kinds of consciousness, meritorious anddemeritorious states are not fixed. Through apperception these are fixed. Through the six kinds of consciousness, one does not enter or emerge out of concentration. Through apperception, one enters into concentration and ispacified through overcoming opposites. Through the six kinds of conscious-ness, nothing is caused to perish or to be produced. Through overcoming of opposites or through registration, perishing and production are caused. Mind-consciousne ss-element is born of result. Through the six kinds of consciousnessone does not sleep, awake or dream. Through opposites one sleeps. Through subtle light one awakes. Through apperception one dreams. Thus one shouldknow through object.

1. Javana.

THROUGH STATES

O. How, through states? A. Five kinds of consciousness are with initial and sustained application of thought. Mind-element is with initial and sustained application of thought. Mindconsciousness-element is with initial and sus-tained application of thought, or is without initial and only with sustained application of thought, or is neither with initial nor with sustained application of thought. Five kinds of consciousness act together with equanimity. Bodyconsciousness acts either together with pleasure or with pain. Mind-con-sciousness-element acts together with joy or grief or equanimity. Five kindsof consciousness are results. Mindelement is either result or means. Mind-consciousness-element is meritorious or demeritorious or result or means. Six kinds of consciousness do not arise without condition, are worldly states, with cankers, with fetters, with tangle, with flood, with yoke, with hindrance, infected, clinging, defiling, are not removed through seeing or throughmeditation. They are neither "group" nor "non-group". They are neithertraining nor non-training. They are the subtle fetters of the sense-plane, arenot fixed and are not vehicle. Mind consciousness-element has the nature of breaking up. Thus one should know to distinguish by way of states. This is called the aggregate of consciousness. Thus should the five aggregares beknown.

And again, one should know the distinctive qualities of the five aggregatesthrough four ways thus: through word meaning, through characteristic, through discrimination, through comprehension.

THROUGH WORD MEANING

Q. How, through word meaning? A. Material object means thingthat is visible. Feeling means sensibility. Formations means work. Cons-ciousness means awareness. Aggregate means variety and group. Thusone should know through word meaning.

THROUGH CHARACTERISTIC

Q. How, through characteristic? A. Material quality is its own charac-teristic, like a thorn. The four primaries are its near cause. The characteristicof feeling is sensitiveness. It is like disliking a leper. Contact is near cause. To support is the characteristic of perception. It is compared to an image. Contact is its near cause. The characteristic of formation is unity. It islike the turning of the wheel. Its near cause is contact. The characteristicof consciousness is awareness; it is likened to the perceiving of taste. Nameand form are near cause. Thus one should know through characteristic.

THROUGH DISCRIMINATION

Q. How, through discrimination? A. The aggregates are discriminated by the threefold discrimination of the five aggregates, the five clinging aggregates and the five aggregates of the Law.1 Here the five aggregates are all pheno-mena.2 The five clinging aggregates are all cankerous states. The five aggregates of the Law are: the aggregate of virtue, the aggregate of concentra-tion, the aggregate of wisdom, the aggregate of freedom and the aggregate of the knowledge and discernment of freedom.3 Here the five aggregates are to be taken.

THROUGH COMPREHENSION

Q. How, through comprehension? A. There are three comprehensions:sense-sphere-comprehension, element-comprehension, truth-comprehension.4Here the aggregate of form is comprehended in eleven sense-spheres. Threeaggregates are comprehended in the sense-sphere of states. The aggregateof consciousness is comprehended in the sense-sphere of the mind.

The aggregate of matter is comprehended in eleven elements. Threeaggregates are comprehended in the element of states. The aggregate of con-sciousness is comprehended in seven elements. The aggregate of virtue, theaggregate of concentration, the aggregate of wisdom, the aggregate of theknowledge and discernment of freedom are comprehended in the sense-sphereand element of states. The aggregate of freedom is comprehended in thesense-sphere of states, the sense-sphere of mind, the element of states and themindconsciousness-element. The five aggregates are comprehended in the Truths or not comprehended in the Truths. The five aggregates of clingingare comprehended in the Truth of 111 and in the Truth of Origin. The aggregates of virtue, concentration and wisdom are comprehended in the Path-Truth. The aggregate of freedom is not comprehended in the Truths. The aggregate of knowledge and discernment of freedom is comprehended in the Truth of 111. Some states are comprehended in the aggregates and not in the Truths. Some states are comprehended in the Truths and not in the aggregates. Somestates are comprehended in the aggregates and also in the Truths. Somestates are comprehended neither in the Truths nor in the aggregates. Here, the material qualities that are linked with the faculties do not associate with the Path (?). The recluse-fruit is comprehended in the aggregates and not in the Truths. Nibbdna is comprehended in the Truths and not in the aggregates.

- 4. Ayatana, dhdtu, sacca.

Three Truths are comprehended in the aggregates and also in the Truths.Restraint is not comprehended in the aggregates and also not in the Truths.Thus should one discern the method of understanding the aggregates. This is called the aggregate method.

The aggregate method has ended.

TWELVE SENSE-ORGANS AND SENSE-OBJECTS

Q. What is the sense-organ method? A. There are twelve sense-organs(and sense-objects): sense-organ of eye, senseobject of matter, sense-organ- ofear, sense-object of sound, sense-organ of nose, sense-object of odour, sense-organ of tongue, sense-object ef taste, sense-organ of body, sense-object oftouch, sense-organ of mind, sense-object of ideas. 1 Here, eye-organ is sentientelement. By this one sees material objects. Material object is elemental form. This is the field of eye. The ear-organ is sentient element. By thisone hears sounds. Sound-object is elemental expression. This is the field of the ear. Nose-organ is sentient element. By this one smells. Odour-object is elemental scent. It is the field of the nose. Tongue-organ is sentientelement. By this one tastes. Taste-object is elemental flavour. This is the field of the tongue. The body-organ is sentient element. By it one feelsfineness, smoothness (and so on). Touch-object is hardness, softness, coolnessand warmth of the elements of earth, water, fire and air. This is the field of the body. Mind organ is the element of the seven kinds of consciousness. Element of ideas comprises the three formless aggregates, the eighteen subtlematerial qualities and Nibbdna. These are the twelve sense-organs (andsense-objects).

And again, these twelve sense-organs (and sense-objects) should be knownby their distinctive qualities in five ways: through word meaning, limits, condition, arising of...* distinctive thought and comprehension.

THROUGH WORD MEANING

- Q. How, through word meaning? A. Eye means, seeing. Materialobject means appearance. Ear means, hearing. Sound means, noise. Nosemeans, olfaction. Odour means, smell. Tongue means, tasting. Tastemeans, flavour. Body means, experiencing. Touch means, contact. Mindmeans, knowing. Idea means, non-living.2 Organ means, entrance into theformless, place, resting-place. Thus one should know through word meaning.

- 2. Lit. Nijjiva.

THROUGH LIMITS

Q. How, through limits? A. Eye and ear do not reach the object. Nose, tongue and body reach the object. Mind is together with object. There is another teaching: Ear reaches the object, because if there is an obstructionnearby one does not hear sounds, as when a spell is wrought. And again, there is another teaching: Eye by itself reaches the object, because one cannot the reverse side of a wall. Thus should one know through limits.

THROUGH CONDITION

Q. How, through condition? A. Depending on eye, material object, light and attention, eye-consciousness arises. Here, to the arising of eye-consciousness, the eye is in the fourfold relation of pre-nascence-condition, support-condition, faculty-condition, presence-condition.1 (To eye-conscious-ness) material object is in the threefold relation of post-nascence-condition, object-condition, presence-condition. Light is in the threefold relation ofpre-nascence-condition, support-condition and presence-condition. Attentionis in the twofold relation of continuity-condition and absence-condition.

Depending on ear, sound, ear-cavity and attention, ear-consciousnessarises. Thus should one know through the distinguishing of condition. Depending on nose, smell, air and attention, nose-consciousness arises. Depending on tongue, taste, water and attention, tongue-consciousness arises. Depending on body, touch and attention, bodily consciousness arises. Depending on mind, ideas, life-continuum and attention, mind-consciousness arises.

Here, mind is...* ideas are the object of states. There are four kinds inthis: Past, present and future of six internal sense-organs comprise the firstspast, future and present of five external sense-objects, excepting non-sense-organfaculty, comprise the second. The third is the sense-object of ideas. There eleven things viz., being, direction, season, ... * comprise the fourth.These are called the object of states.

Concentration is intentness of mind on object. It is like light. Attentionis mind-door-adverting. Consciousness is apperception. Here, to mind-consciousness, mind is in the relation of support-condition. Ideas are in the relation of object-condition. Life-continuum is in the relation of support-condition. Attention is in the twofold relation of continuity-condition and presence-condition. Thus should it be understood through condition.

- Q. How, through the arising of distinctive thought? A. Three kindsare fulfilled at the eye-door. They are the objects of very great intensity, great intensity and slight intensity. 2 Of these, those of very great intensity fulfil seven stages and are born in avici, the great hell. After the vibration ofthe life-continuum, adverting, discerning, receiving, examining, determining, apperceiving and registering follow.

SIMILE OF THE THREAD

Here the life-continuum is the consciousness-faculty of becoming. It islikened to the drawing of thread.1 Adverting is conditioned by the visibleobject at the eye-door. Through the visible object entering the field (ofpresentation?), the life-continuum vibrates, and is followed by advertingto the visible object. Adverting which depends on the eye is followed by discerning. This is followed by reception in the sense of experience. Thenfollows examining in the sense of (investigating) experience. After that comes determining in the sense of understanding. Determining proceeds and is followed by apperception according to action. Apperception proceeding in the sense of full cognition and not in the sense of means is followed by registration of effect. After that consciousness lapses into the life-continuum.

SIMILE OF THE MANGO

O. What is the illustration? A. The king sleeps in his chamber, having closed the door. A slave-girl massages the king's feet. The queensits near him. Ministers and courtiers are ranged in front of him. A deafman is guarding the door with his back against it. At that time the king'sgardener, bringing mangoes, knocks at the door. Hearing that sound, theking awakes, and says to the slave-girl, "Go and open the door". The slavegoes to the door-keeper and speaks to him in gesture. That deaf door-keeperunderstands her wish and opens the door and sees the mangoes. The kingtakes his sword. The slave brings the fruits and hands them to a minister. The minister presents them to the queen. The queen washes them and sortsthe ripe from the raw, places them in a vessel and gives them to the king. Getting them, the king eats the fruits. After eating them, he talks of themerit or non-merit of them. After that he sleeps again.

The sleeping king is the life-continuum. The king's gardener, bringingmangoes and knocking at the door, is the impact of the visible object on theeye-door. The awakening of the king by the knocking at the door, and hiscommand to open the door, illustrate the vibration of the life-continuum. Theslave-girl's gestures, in requesting the door-keeper to open the door, is adver-ting. The opening of the door by the deaf door-keeper and the sight of themangoes illustrate eye-consciousness. The taking of the sword by the kingand the handing of the fruits by the slave to the minister illustrate reception. The presentation of the fruits by the minister to the queen is examining. The actions of washing, sorting, placing the fruits in a vessel and offering themto the king illustrate determining. The eating by the king is apperception. His talking as to the merits or demerits of the fruits illustrate registration of effect, and his sleeping again is the lapsing into the life-continuum.1

1. Cp. D. I, 54: Seyyathd pi ndma sutta-gule khitte nibbethiyamdnam eva phaleti. Perhapsthe simile was drawn from this portion of the sutta.

Here, consciousness depending on the impact of objects of middlingintensity at the eye-door proceeds up to apperception and immediately lapsesinto the life-continuum. Through the impact of objects of lower intensity, consciousness lapses into the life-continuum immediately after determining. In the same way the procedure at the other doors should be understood. Atthe mind-door there is no impact of object. Conditioned by attention, andfree from activities is the object grasped at the mind-door. Here, withreference to a very great object three stages are produced (after vibration) of the life-continuum, namely, adverting, apperception and registration. With reference to the objects of great and slight intensity two stages are ful-filled: adverting and apperception. 2 Here, feeling and perception shouldbe known through various conditions.

Through the conditioning of right-attention3 and non-right-attention, various kinds of merit and demerit should be known. Thus one should knowthrough manifestation of the interlocking of distinctive thought.*

Q. How, through comprehension? A. There are three kinds ofcomprehension, namely, aggregate-comprehension, elementcomprehension, truth-comprehension. Here, ten sense-spheres are comprehended in the aggregate of matter. The sense-sphere of mind is comprehended in theaggregate of consciousness. The sense-sphere of states, excepting Nibbdna, is comprehended in the four aggregates. Eleven sense-spheres are compre-hended in eleven elements. The sense-sphere of mind is comprehended inseven elements. The five internal sense-spheres are comprehended in the Truth of 111. The five external sense-spheres are either comprehended or notcomprehended in the Truth of 111. The sense-sphere of mind is either com-prehended or not comprehended in the Truth of 111. The sense-sphere of states is either comprehended or not comprehended in the Truth of III. Thusshould comprehension be known. In this way one develops discernmentthrough the sense-sphere method. This is called sense-sphere method.

Sense-sphere method has ended,

ELEMENT METHOD

- Q. What is the element-method? A. There are eighteen elements, namely, eye-element, material-element, eye-consciousness-element; ear-element, sound-element, ear-consciousness-element; nose-element, odour-element, nose-consciousness-element; tongue-element, taste-element, tongue-consciousness-element; body-element, touch-element, body-consciousness-element; mind-element, states-element, mind-consciousness-element. Here, the sensory organ of eye is eye-element. Material form is material element. Eye-consciousness is eye-consciousness-element. In the same way the othershould be known. Mind-door-adverting translates the objects. Mind-element decides the result.

- 3. Samma-manasikara (?)* Not quite clear.

[450] The mind-element is just mind-sphere. All kinds of consciousnessexcept the ideas-element and the six consciousness-elements are mind-consciousness-element. The rest is as was taught at length under sense-sphere. Here, ten elements are comprehended in the form-aggregate. Theideaselement, excepting Nibbdna, is comprehended in the four aggregates. Seven elements are comprehended in the consciousness-aggregate. Elevenelements are comprehended in eleven sense-organs (and sense-objects). Seven-elements are comprehended in the mind-organ. Eleven elements are comprehended in the Truth of 111. Five elements are comprehended in the Truth of 111, or not comprehended in the Truth of 111. Ideas-element is comprehended in the Four Truths, or not comprehended in the Four Truths. Mindconsciousness-element is comprehended in the Truth of 111 or notcomprehended in the Truth of 111.

Q, What is the limit of manifestation?

A. Just the sphere of ideas-element is the limit. The assemblage of the characteristics of a variety of states is called aggregate. The characteristic of entrance is called sense-organ. The characteristic of intrinsic nature is called element. Again, the Blessed One has taught the Truth of 111 by way of the aggregates for the quick witted man. He taught the Truth of 111 byway of the sense-sphere for the average man, and he taught the Truth of 111by way of the elements for the slow witted man.

And again, he has expounded form in brief to those who have the characteristic of attachment to name and aggregate, by way of discernment of name. He has expounded name and sense-sphere, in brief, through the determining of form, to those inclined towards attachment to form. He has expounded the elements through determining mind and form to those inclined to be attached to mind and form.

And again, he has expounded the intrinsic nature of the sense-spheres. He has expounded the aggregates. He has expounded the (internal) sense-spheres and objects. And he has expounded the sense-spheres. He has taughtthe arising of consciousness and element, through (internal) sense-sphere and

Element method has ended.CONDITIONED ARISING METHOD

(a) DIRECT ORDER

Q. What is the conditioned arising method? A. Conditioned by ignorance are the formations; conditioned by the formations, consciousness; conditioned by consciousness, name-form; conditioned by name-form, thesix-sphered-sense; conditioned by the six-sphered-sense, contact; conditioned by contact, feeling; conditioned by feeling, craving; conditioned by craving, clinging; conditioned by clinging, becoming, conditioned by becoming,rebirth; conditioned by rebirth, decay, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain,grief and despair spring up. (b) REVERSE ORDER

By the cessation of ignorance, the cessation of the formations (occurs);by the cessation of the formations, the cessation of consciousness; by thecessation of consciousness, the cessation of name-form; by the cessation ofname-form, the cessation of the six-sphered-sense; by the cessation of thesix-sphered-sense, the cessation of contact; by the cessation of contact, thecessation of feeling; by the cessation of feeling, the cessation of craving;by the cessation of craving, the cessation of becoming; by the cessation of becoming, the cessation of rebirth; by the cessation of rebirth, decay, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief and despair cease. Such is the cessation of this entire mass ofill.2

IGNORANCE

Here ignorance is ignorance of the Four Truths. Formations are bodily, verbal and mental actions. Consciousness is rebirth consciousness. Name-form means the mental properties which arise together with the continuity of mind and the embryo (kalala). Six-sphered-sense means the six internalsense-spheres. Contact means the six groups of contact. Feeling means the six groups of feeling. Craving means the six groups of craving. Clingingmeans the four clingings. Becoming means sense-plane becoming, form-plane becoming and formless-plane becoming where kamma works. Rebirthmeans the arising of the aggregates in becoming. Decay means the maturing of the aggregates. Death means the destruction of the aggregates.

FORMATIONS

Q. How do the formations arise, conditioned by ignorance? How dodecay and death arise, conditioned by rebirth? A. The five clinging groupsarise for the uninstructed commoner, because of his ignorance of the FourTruths. In the long night (of ignorance), he clings to self and goods thinking:"These are my goods, this is my self". Thus he enjoys and clings to enjoyment. The thought of becoming brings about reconception. In that thought ofbecoming there is no knowledge. He clings to becoming because he desiresit.1

SIMILE OF THE SEEDS

It is like seeds placed in a fertile field. If consciousness is extinguished, becoming is extinguished. This is the meaning of conditioned by ignorancethe formations arise. Mental formations, conditioned by ignorance, enterthe course of becoming, and integrate. Becoming proceeds; thus it iscontinued. Consciousness does not separate from mind in becoming. Therefore, conditoned by the formations, consciousness arises.

SIMILE OF THE SUN

As without the sun, there is in the world neither light nor any increase of it, so without consciousness, name-form dees not take shape and there is no growth of it.

SIMILE OF THE TWO BUNDLES OF REEDS

As (in the simile of the bundles of) reeds depending on each other, soconditioned by consciousness, name-form arises. Conditioned by the (internal)sense-spheres, the other mental qualities arise together.2 The development of the mind-sphere is due to name. Conditioned by the four primaries, nutriment and caloric order, the other five (internal) sense-spheres developand increase. The other does not depend on these. Therefore, conditioned by name-form, the sixsphered-sense arises. By the union of the other faculties, objects, elements and consciousness, contact arises. Therefore, conditioned by the six-sphered-sense, contact arises. Through the sense of touch one experiences pain, pleasure and neither pain nor pleasure. Should one notbe touched (then there would be no feeling for him). Therefore, conditioned by contact, feeling arises. The uninstructed commoner experiences pleasureand clings to it and craving for more, he experiences pain; and overcomingit (pain), he, desiring ease, develops the feeling of neither pain nor pleasure, or equanimity. 1 Therefore, conditioned by feeling, craving arises. Throughcraving, one clings to what is lovely. Therefore, conditioned by craving clinging arises. Through that clinging, one sows the seed of becoming. Therefore, conditioned by clinging, there is becoming. According to one'sdeeds one is born in various states. Therefore there is rebirth, and throughbirth, there is decay and death. Thus, conditioned by birth, there is decayand death.

SIMILE OF THE SEED, SHOOT AND PLANT

As paddy-seeds are conditioned by the paddy plant, so conditioned by ignorance the formations arise. Conditioned by the seed is the bud;2 so isthe. arising.of consciousness, by the formations. Conditioned by the bud is the leaf; so is the arising of name-form, by consciousness. Conditionedby the leaf is the branch; so is the arising of the six-sphered-sense, by name-form. Conditioned by the branch is the plant; so is the arising of contact, by the six-sphered-sense. Conditioned by the plant is the flower; so is thearising of feeling, by contact. Conditioned by the flower is the nectar; so is the arising of craving, by feeling. Conditioned by the nectar is the ear ofrice; so is the arising of clinging, by craving. Conditioned by the ear ofrice is the seed; so is the arising of becoming, by clinging. Conditioned by the seed is the bud; so is the arising of birth, by becoming. Thus the several successions come to be. Thus one cannot know the past or the future. Thusbirth succeeds beginning with the causal condition of ignorance. Of it thepast or the future cannot be known.3

WHAT CONDITIONS IGNORANCE

- Q. By what is ignorance conditioned? A. Ignorance is indeed conditioned by ignorance.1 The latencies become the condition of the encompassing defilements. The encompassing defilements become the condition of the latencies.2

And again, all defilements become the condition of ignorance according to the teaching of the Buddha thus: "From the origin of the cankers, originof ignorance arises*'.3 And again, it is likened to a single thought-state (?). Seeing a form with the eye, the uninstructed commoner develops craving. The bare enjoyment of that time is delusion of mind. This is called ignorance. Through attachment to this ignorance, one conditions the formations. Through attachment to these formations, one conditions consciousness andknows the associated states of mind and the material object produced by theformations. Conditioned by this consciousness, name-form arises. Fromfeeling joy is produced. Conditioned by joy and conditioned by the joy-producing material object, the bare faculties arise. Thus conditioned byname-form the sixsphered-sense arises. Conditioned by pleasurable contact, feeling arises. Conditioned by the craving for feeling, craving arises. Through attachment to bare pleasure and conditioned by craving, clingingarises. Through attachment to and conditioned by clinging, there is becoming. Conditioned by becoming, birth arises, and when living (begins) to end—thisis decay. To scatter and to destroy—this is death. Thus in one momenthe twelvefold conditioned arising is fulfilled.

- Q. Of the factors of the twelvefold conditioned arising, how many aredefilements, how many are actions, how many are results, how many are past, how many are future, how many are present, how many are cause-conditions, how many have already developed? What is conditioned arising? What is conditioned arising doctrine? What are the differences between these two? Why is conditioned arising so profound?

A. Three are the defilements, namely, ignorance, craving and clinging. Two are actions, namely, the formations and becoming. The other sevenresults.

SIMILE OF THE COLOURS OF A PAINTER

Here, the defilements are a cause of future life, like the colours of a painter. Their objects are not self-produced, as also are the colour-object of the painter. Defilements cause becoming like the different colours of the painter. These two are past, namely, ignorance and the formations. These two are of thefuture, namely, birth and decay-and-death. The other eight are of the present. Thus it is as to the three divisions of time. Therefore one should know that birth and death proceed from beginningless time. The factors of the twelve-fold conditioned arising should not be taught (separately). Further, noconditioned arising should be taught which does not consist of these twelve. Then, what is conditioned arising? Just these twelve which in turn become condition. Therefore this is called conditioned arising. The twelve factors are states which have already developed. What is the difference betweenthe two? The working of conditioned arising being different (in each case) and being not complete, one cannot speak of it. Be they conditioned or non-conditioned, 1 they cannot be explained. States of conditioned arising thathave already developed, have finished their task and are conditioned. Thisis the difference between the two. Why is this conditioned arising profound? One is able to know the way and characteristic by which ignorance conditions the formations. A delivered one, without the aid of another, is able to discernits working, characteristics and nature. These constitute the profound nature of conditioned arising.2

CONDITIONED ARISING TO BE KNOWN IN SEVEN WAYS

[451] And again, this conditioned arising should be known throughseven ways thus: through the three links, the four groups, the twenty modes, the wheel, order, discernment and through comprehension.

FIRST THREE LINKS

- Q. How, through the three links? A. Here the interval between the formations and consciousness is the first link; the interval between feeling and craving is the second link; the interval between becoming and rebirth is the third link. The conditioning of the present effect by past actions through the defilements

Md Kevam Ananda avaca, md Kevam Ananda avaca. Gambhiro cdyarh Anandapaticca-samuppddo gambhiravabhaso ca, is the first link. The conditioning of the present defilements by present effects is called the second link; the conditioning of future effects by present defilements called the third link. The first and the third are condition-effect-link1 and becoming-link. The second link is effect-condition link3 and non-becoming-link. Q. What is becoming-link?

A. Endlessly, the not yet enlightened aggregates, sense-organs and ele-ments, through the conditioning of past actions and defilements, go again and again to various modes of birth. This is becoming-birth-link.4 Q. Howis it fulfilled?

DEATH OF THE IGNORANT CRAVING EVIL-DOER

A. Here a man, who performs actions which are associated with ignoranceand craving, is an evil-doer. When he comes to die, he suffers. Lying onhis death-couch, he does not see this world. He does not see that world. He loses mindfulness and cannot recover it. At this time he suffers the ill ofrebirth. Mindfulness draws away from his mind, and strength from his body. He loses his faculties gradually. The body quakes. Vitality ebbs and his bodybecomes like a dried tola leaf. At this time he is like one asleep and dreaming.

ACTION, ACTION-SIGN, DESTINY, DESTINY-SIGN

Through action, four states arise. They are action, action-sign, destiny*destiny-sign.5

What is action? The merit and non-merit one has made. They areheavy or light, many or few. The action-sign that uprises (as result) conforms to the action already done. The action-sign resembles action already done. Destiny: A happy destiny arises through the conditioning of merit. An evildestiny arises through the conditioning of demerit. Destiny-sign: At the time of entry into the womb, three objects unite to produce rebirth. Rebirth depends on the place of birth, namely, a palace, habitation, mountain, tree, or river, according to destiny. The appropriate grasping-sign arises, and theman, leaning or sitting or lying (on his death-couch), grasps that. After theconsciousness which apperceives the past action or the action-sign or thedestiny or the destiny-sign ends, the last consciousness arises without a breakgradually through apperceptional consciousness. Only that action or action-sign or destiny or destiny-sign becomes the object of the basic resultant consciousness. Like the lighting of a lamp by a lamp,1 or like fire issuing from aflame is re-linking consciousness.2

In the womb of the mother, through the impurity of parents, thirtymaterial qualities are fulfilled by action of ten (?) sense-spheres. In themoment of decay, forty-six material qualities are fulfilled,*

Thus consciousness conditions name-form. Name-form conditions conscious-ness.3 Thus the link of becoming is fulfilled. Here, the fulfilment of thethree links should be understood.

FOUR GROUP DIVISION

Q. How, through the four groups? A. Ignorance and the formations of divisions of the groups of action and defilement of the past. Consciousness, name-form, the six-sphered-sense, contact and feeling are divisions of the groups of effect in the present. Craving, clinging and becoming are divisions of action, and defilement of the present. Rebirth, and decay-and-death are divisions of effect of the future. Thus one should know through the four-group division.

TWENTY MODES

- Q. How, through twenty modes? A. Through the grasping of ignoranceand of past craving and clinging and through the defilement-sign being grasped. Through the grasping of the formations of past becoming and through theaction-sign being grasped. Through the grasping of consciousness, of name-form, of the six-sphered-sense, of contact, of feeling and through birth anddecay-and-death of the result-sign of the present being grasped. Through the grasping of craving, clinging and through the defilement-sign of the presentbeing grasped. Through the grasping of becoming the present formations are grasped through the action-sign. Through the grasping of birth, decay anddeath, future consciousness, nameform, the six-sphered-sense, contact, feelingare grasped. These twenty-four states become twenty.

It is according to the teaching in the Abhidhamma: "In the previous/ctfrawa-becoming, delusion is ignorance, effort is the formations, desire iscraving, grasping is clinging, volition is becoming. Thus these fivt states ofthe previous /cawwa-becoming are causes of the present rebirth. From thematurity of the sense-organs, here, delusion is ignorance; effort is the forma-tions; desire is craving; grasping is clinging; volition is becoming. Thus thesefive states, here in kamma-bQcommg are causes of rebirth in the future. Here,rebirth is consciousness; descent is name-form; sensory organism is sense-organ; the being touched is touch; the being felt is feeling. Thus these fivestates, here, in rebirth-becoming are cause of kamma already done. Thusone should know through twenty ways".1

How, through wheel? Ignorance conditions the formations; the forma-tions condition consciousness; thus birth conditions decay and death. Thusthe whole aggregate of ill arises. Therefore all constitute the aggregate ofill. Not knowing is called ignorance. Ignorance conditions the formations. Thus should it be known by way of the wheel.

DIRECT AND REVERSE ORDER

How, through order? Order is of two kinds. They are, the one which begins from ignorance and the one which begins from decay and death. Ques-tioned as to that which begins from ignorance, one should answer in the directorder; and questioned as to that which begins from decay and death, the answershould be in the reverse order.

And again, that which begins from ignorance is fixed; one can see the wayto the future. That which begins with decay is the end; one can see the wayto the past. Thus one should know through order.

The Five Methods 267

MUNDANE AND SUPRAMUNDANECONDITIONED ARISING

Q. How, through discernment? A. There are two kinds of conditionedarising: mundane conditioned arising and supramundane conditioned arising. Here, that which begins from ignorance is mundane. Q. What is supra-mundane conditioned arising? A, 111 depends on ill. Confidence dependson confidence. Joy depends on joy. Rapture depends on rapture. Calmdepends on calm. Bliss depends on bliss. Concentration depends onconcentration. Right views depend on right Views. Aversion depends onaversion. Dispassion depends on dispassion. Freedom depends on theknowledge of the freedom of extinction. This is called supramundaneconditioned arising.1

FOUR KINDS OF CONDITIONED ARISING

Again, four kinds of conditioned arising are taught thus: the defilement-action is cause; seed is cause; doing is cause; common action is cause.

Q. What is meant by "defilement-action is cause"? A. It is thatwhich begins from ignorance. What is meant by "seed is cause"? It islikened to the succession of seed and bud. What is meant by "doing iscause"? It is likened to the change of material qualities. What is meantby "common action is cause"? It is likened to earth, snow, mountain, seasun and moon.

There is another teaching. Common action is not a cause. Material qualities, consciousness, states and caloricity are causes. There is no common action, according to the teaching of the Blessed One thus:

With none is kamma shared, none can rob it, and by itself comes the fruit of merit won.2.

Thus one should know through discernment.

THROUGH COMPREHENSION

- Q. How, through comprehension? A. There are four kinds of com-prehension: aggregate-comprehension, sense-organ-comprehension, element-comprehension and truth-comprehension. Here, ignorance, the formations, contact, craving, clinging and becoming are comprehended in the aggregate of the formations. Consciousness is comprehended in the consciousness-aggre-gate. Name-form is comprehended in the four aggregates. The six-sphered-sense is comprehended in the two aggregates. Feeling is comprehended in the feeling-aggregate. Birth and decay and death are compre-hended in the aggregate of form and in the aggregate of the formations. Ignorance, the formations, contact, feeling, craving, clinging, becoming, rebirth and decay and death are comprehended in the sense-sphere of ideas. Consciousness is comprehended in the mind-sphere. Name-form iscomprehended in the five internal sense-spheres. The sixsphered-sense iscomprehended in the six internal sensespheres. Ignorance, the formations, contact, feeling, craving, clinging, becoming, rebirth and decay and deathare comprehended in the element of ideas. Consciousness is comprehended in the mind-consciousness-element. Name-form is comprehended in the five elements. The six-sphered-sense is comprehended in the twelvefoldtruth. Ignorance, craving and clinging are comprehended in the tenfoldtruth. The other nine are comprehended in the Truth of 111. Supramun-dane conditioned arising way-factor is comprehended in the Pathtruth. The extinction of conditioned arising is comprehended in the Truth of Cessation. Thus one should know through comprehension. Through theseways should one understand the method of conditioned arising. This is called conditioned arising method.

Q. What is the method of understanding the Noble Truths?

A. There are Four Noble Truths: the Noble Truth of 111, the NobleTruth of the Origin of 111, the Noble Truth of the Cessation of 111 and theNoble Truth of the Path leading to the Cessation of 111.

TRUTH OF ILL

Q. What is the Noble Truth of 111? A. "Birth is ill; old age is ill; death is ill; sorrow is ill; lamentation and misery are ill; grief and despairare ill; association with those one does not like is ill; separation from thoseone likes is ill; the not getting of what is wished for is ill; in short the fiveaggregates of clinging are ill".1

"Birth is ill": This is the arising of the aggregates of various beings. All these are assemblages of ill. "Old age is ill": All the elements, proceedingfrom birth, come to maturity and lose vigour, colour, faculties, memory and intellect. "Death is ill": Fear of the ending of life, "sorrow is ill": Ongoing to the place of suffering, fear arises. This is the burning within. "Lamentation is ill": Suffering reaches verbal expression. This is to burn within and without. "Misery is ill": This is the suffering of the body. By thisone suffers bodily pain. This is the meaning. "Grief and despair are ill": These are sufferings of the mind. By these one suffers mental anguish. Thisis the meaning. "Association with those one does not like is ill": Thismeans that one is united with persons one dislikes. "Separation from thoseone likes is ill": This means that one is separated from persons one likes. "The not getting of what is wished for": A man loses happiness becausehe is not able to separate from those whom he dislikes, and because he isnot able to unite with those whom he likes. Being unable to secure thesehe loses happiness. "In short the five aggregates of clinging are ill": One isnot able to separate oneself from these five aggregates of clinging. Thereforethese five aggregates of clinging are ill.1

FIVE GROUPS OF CLINGING

Q. What are the five aggregates of clinging? A. The form aggregate of clinging, the feeling aggregate of clinging, the perception aggregate of clinging, the formation aggregate of clinging, the consciousness aggregate of clinging. These should be understood according to the full explanation under the method of (understanding) the aggregates.

TWO KINDS OF ILL

Here ill is of two kinds thus: ill of sense-sphere and innate ill. Theill of birth, the ill of death, the ill of association with those one dislikes, the illof separation from those one likes, the ill of not getting what is wished for;in short, the ill of the aggregates of clinging, are called ill of sense-sphere. The ill of sorrow, the ill of lamentation and the ill of grief and despair arecalled innate ill.

THREE KINDS OF ILL

111 is of three kinds thus: the ill of misery, change and existence. I Herebodily and mental suffering are the ill of misery. Pleasurable feeling connected with the cankers is subject to renewal. Therefore it is called the ill of change. The five aggregates of clinging constitute the ill of existence.

Thus should the Noble Truth of 111 be known.

TRUTH OF THE ORIGIN OF ILL

Q. What is the Noble Truth of the Origin of 111?

A. "Even this craving, causing new rebirths, accompanied by delightand passion, finding gratification now here and now there, namely, the cravingfor pleasure, the craving for existence and the craving for annihilation". Here "causing new rebirth" means: "Craving, wherever it is, causes rebirth". "Even this craving" means: "Craving is the origin of ill; it is not a co-arising". "Accompanied by delight and passion" means: "Craving causesthe arising of delight. This is called manifestation. It causes to stain. This called passion. It stirs up delight conjoined with passion". "Findinggratification now here and now there" means "It causes individuality to arisein various places where there are lovable forms and so forth, and to delightand find gratification therein". "Namely, the craving for pleasure, the cravingfor existence and the craving for annihilation": Everything, except thecraving for existence and the craving for annihilation, is comprehended in

TRUTH OF THE CESSATION OF ILL

Q. What is the Noble Truth of the Cessation of 111?

A. "The utter fading away and cessation of that very craving, leaving it, giving it up, the being delivered from, the doing away with it".4 Thus shouldbe known the Noble Truth of the Cessation of 111. Q. No. This is also the ending of the origin, because the Blessed One has said: "The cause ofill is destroyed". A. The cause of ill is destroyed. Therefore the stateof not coming to birth and of not perishing is accomplished. It corresponds to realization. Therefore the Blessed One taught: "The ending of the origin is the ending of ill".

TRUTH OF THE PATH LEADING TO CESSATION OF ILL

Q. What is the Path leading to the Cessation of 111? A. It is the Noble Eightfold Path of Right View, Right Thought, Right Speech, RightAction, Right Livelihood, Right Exertion, Right Mindfulness, Right Con-centration. Right View is the

Exertion is the fourfold right exertion. Right Mindfulness means the fourfoundations of mindfulness. Right Concentration is the fourfold meditation, jhdna.1

And again, if a man practises the Noble Path, he sees Nibbdna —this is called Right View. He awakes only in Nibbdna—this is called Right Thought. He abandons wrong speech—this is Right Speech. He rejects wrong doing—this is Right Action. He gives up wrong livelihood—this is Right Livelihood.He abandons wrong exertion—this is Right Exertion. He recalls Nibbdnato mind—this is Right Mindfulness. He concentrates on Nibbdna—this is Right Concentration. Here, the faculty of wisdom, the power of wisdom, the basis of supernormal power of scrutiny and the enlightenment factor of the investigation of states accomplish the entry into internal Right View. The faculty of exertion, the power of exertion, the basis of supernormal power of exertion, the basis of supernormal power of will, the enlightenment factor of exertion, and the fourfold right exertion accomplish the entry into internal Right Effort. The faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness, theenlightenment factor of mindfulness and the four foundations of mindfulnessaccomplish the entry into internal Right Mindfulness. The faculty of con-centration, the power of concentration, the basis of supernormal power ofthought, the faculty of faith, the power of faith, the enlightenment factor of concentration, the enlightenment factor of joy, the enlightenment factor of calm and the enlightenment factor of equanimity accomplish the entryinto internal Right Concentration. These thirty-seven enlightenment acces-sories accomplish the entry into the Noble Eightfold Path. Thus shouldthe Noble Truth of the Path leading to the Cessation of 111 be known. Thusshould the Four Noble Truths be understood.

Q. Why are four Noble Truths taught and not three or five? A. (Ifthree or five were taught) all might be doubted. These are the consequencesand causes of the mundane and the supramundane. Therefore they are four.Q. What is the consequence (and what, the cause) of mundane truth? A. illand origin are the consequence and cause of mundance truth. Cessation is the consequence of supramundane truth. The Path is the cause of supra-mundane truth. Therefore four and not three or five are taught. And again, because of the four sentences: "One should comprehend, one should abandon, one should realize, one should practise", 1 there are four.

The characteristics of these Four Noble Truths should be known througheleven ways: through the meaning of words,2 through characteristics,3 throughseries in beliefs,4 through analogy,5 through discrimination, through enumeration, through sameness, through difference, through one kind and so forth,6through inclusion.

THROUGH WORD MEANING

Q. How, through the meaning of words? A. The Noble Truths are theteaching of the Holy One. Therefore they are called Noble Truths. Throughunderstanding these well, one fulfils the Four Noble Truths. "Truth" means: "Thus-isness, non-variability, identity". Ill is the consequence. Origin is the cause. Cessation is ending continued. The Path is the highest view. Thus should these be known through the meaning of words.

THROUGH CHARACTERISTICS

Q. How, through characteristics? A. Ill is the characteristic of suffering.

Origin is the characteristic of cause. Cessation is the characteristic of non-birth. The Path is the characteristic of the means of success. And again,ill is the characteristic of grief, despair, the put together, the limited. Originis the characteristic of accumulation, cause, condition, fetters, clinging. Cessation is the characteristic of renunciation, solitude, the non-conditioned and the choice. The Path is the characteristic of vehicle, arriving, seeing, reliance. Thus should these be known through characteristics.

THROUGH SERIES

Q. How, through series? A. The Truth of 111 is taught first, becuaseit is gross and because it could be easily understood in this world. The Truthof Origin is taught next. The ending of the origin is the ending of ill. Afterthat the Truth of Cessation is taught for the purpose of ending completely. And the Path is taught last. This (method) is like (that of) a cleverphysician, who at first gets at the root of the disease and later inquires as tothe contributory causes. For the ending of the disease, he prescribes accord-ing to the nature of the disease. Here, one should know the disease as ill;the cause and condition as origin; the ending of the disease as cessation; andthe medicine as the Path. Thus should these be known through series.1

IN BRIEF

- Q. How, in brief? A. Birth is ill; the being born is the origin; theending of ill is cessation; the path leading to the cessation of ill is the Path. Where there is defilement, there is ill. Defilement is the origin. The removal of defilement is cessation. The means of removal is the Path. (The Truth of 111 removes the illusion of self; (the Truth of) Origin removes the view of of eternalism; (the Truth of) Cessation removes the view of eternalism; (the Truthof) the Path removes all wrong views. Thus should these be known in brief.

SIMILES OF THE POISONOUS TREE, THE SHIP, THE BURDEN

Q. How, through analogy? A. Ill should be regarded as a poisonoustree; origin, as a seed; cessation, as the parching of the seed; the Path as fire.

One should regard ill as this shore of fear; origin, as the flood; cessation, as the other shore that is free from suffering and fear; and the Path, as the shipthat sails well.1

[453] One should regard ill as the carrying of a burden; origin, as thetaking on of the burden; cessation, as the laying down of the burden; and the Path, as the method of laying down the burden. Thus should these be knownthrough analogy.2

Q. How, through discrimination? A. There are four kinds in truth: Speech that is true, knowledge, absolute truth and Ariyan Truth. Here, aman speaks true words and not words that are untrue — this is called speechthat is true. Investigation of falsehood — this is knowledge. Nibbdna isabsolute truth. The truth practised by the Saint is Ariyan Truth. Here, Ariyan Truth should be realized. Thus should these be known throughdiscrimination.

THROUGH ENUMERATION

Q. How, through enumeration? A. Except craving, all skilful, un-skilful and indeterminate states of the three planes compose the Truth of 111; craving is the Truth of Origin; the removal of craving is the Truth of Cessation; the Noble Eightfold Path is the Truth of the Path. Again, except craving, allother defilements and the skilful, unskilful and indeterminate states of thethree planes compose the Truth of 111; craving and the defilements (associated with it) compose the Truth of Origin; the removal of these is the Truth of Cessation; the path is the Truth of the Path. Again, except craving, all defile-ments and skilful, unskilful and indeterminate states of the three planes composethe Truth of 111; craving and the defilements, and all the unskilful states composethe Truth of Origin; the removal of these is the Truth of Cessation; the pathis the Truth of the Path. And again, except craving and the defilements and allunskilful states (associated with it) the other unskilful states of the three planes and the indeterminate states of the three planes compose the Truth of 111; craving, the remaining defilements, unskilful states and skilful states of thethree planes compose the (Truth of) Origin; the removal of these is the Truthof Cessation; the path is the Truth of the Path. Here, to wish for the delight-ful is craving. Origin means "with craving" and "with latent tendencies". Other defilements are origin in the sense of removing and in the sense ofmanifestation of becoming. All unskilful states are origin in the sense ofcausing to be. Merit of the three planes is origin. Here, craving and theother defilements are origin.

All merit of the three planes belong to the Truth of 111 or the Truth of Origin. Because of the characteristics of despair, misery, the put togetherand the limited, there is the Truth of III. Because of the characteristics of accumulation, cause and condition, clinging and combination, the Truth of Origin is fulfilled. Thus should these be understood through enumeration.

THROUGH SAMENESS

Q. How, through sameness? A. These Four Truths are one throughfour ways: through the meaning of truth; the meaning of thus-isness; themeaning of doctrine; and the meaning of the void. Thus these should beknown through sameness.1

THROUGH DIFFERENCE

Q. How, through difference? A. There are two truths: mundane and supramundane truth. 2 Mundane truth is canker, fetter, tangle, flood, yoke, hindrance, contact, clinging, defilement. 3 It is called ill and origin. Supra-mundane truth is without canker, without fetter, without tangle, without flood, without yoke, without hindrance, without contact, without clinging, without defilement. It is Cessation and the Path. Three Truths are conditioned. The truth of Cessation is unconditioned. 4 Three Truths are without*form. The Truth of 111 is with and without form.5 The Truth of Origin isunskilful. The Truth of the Path is skilful. The Truth of Cessation is indeter-minate. The Truth of 111 is skilful, unskilful and indeterminate. 6 The Truthof 111 enables to understand; the Truth of Origin enables to remove; the Truthof Cessation enables to attain; and the Truth of the Path enables to practise. 7Thus should these be known through difference.

THROUGH ONE KIND ETC.

O. How, through one kind and so forth? A. They are of one kind thus: The body which has consciousness is ill. Origin is pride, and the removal of that is Cessation. Mindfulness of the body is the Path. They are of twokinds thus: Name and form are ill; ignorance and craving are Origin; theremoval of these is cessation; serenity1 and insight2 are the Path. They areof three kinds thus: (Misery of the suffering of the three planes*) is the Truthof 111; the three unskilful faculties are origin; the removal of these is cessa-tion. Virtue, concentration and wisdom3 are the Path. They are of four kindsthus: (The four kinds of nutriment)4 are ill. The four kinds of overturning5are origin; the removal of overturning is cessation, the four foundations of Mindfulness 6 are the Path. They are of five kinds thus: The five states of birth 7 are ill; the five hindrances 8 are origin; the removal of the hindrancesis cessation; the five faculties are the Path.9 They are of six kinds thus: thesix organs of contact are ill; 10 the six groups of craving 11 are origin; the removal of the groups of craving is cessation; the six elements of escape 12 are the Path.

THROUGH INCLUSION

- Q. How, through inclusion? A. There are three kinds of inclusion,namely, inclusion of aggregation, of sense-sphere, and of element. Here, the Truth of 111 is included in the five aggregates;5 The Truth of Origin and the Truth of the Path are included in the aggregate of mental formations; Cessationis not included in any aggregate. The Truth of 111 is included in the twelve-sense-spheres. Three Truths are included in the sense-sphere of ideas. The through inclusion. Throughthese ways knowledge of the Noble Truths should be known. This is calledthe method of understanding the Noble Truths.

ON DISCERNING TRUTH

CHAPTER THE TWELFTH

Section OneAGGREGATES, ELEMENTS, SENSE-SPHERES

Now the yogin has understood the aggregates, elements, sense-spheres, conditioned arising and the Truths. He has also heard concerning virtue, austerities and meditation, jhdna.

SIMILES OF THE THREE HUNDRED HALBERDSAND OF THE BURNING HEAD

The commoner fears ill-faring, because he is not enlightened. If aftercontemplating on the fearfulness of ill-faring and of beginningless birth anddeath, he should think of not missing this opportunity, or on the similes ofthe points of the three hundred halberds,1 and of the man desirous of savinghis burning head,2 the yogin is yet unable to understand the Four Noble Truths,he should proceed to discern the Noble Truths by way of analogy. He shoulddevelop the wish to do, strive earnestly, and accomplish (the knowledge of the Truths) through completing the mindfulness of concentration.

PROCEDURE

- Q. What is the procedure? At first the yogin should listen to the FourNoble Truths expounded in brief or in detail or in brief and in detail. Through hearing, seizing the sense and reiteration, he should bear them in mind. Atthis time the yogin enters into a quiet place, sits down and composes his mind. He does not let it run hither and thither, and recalls to mind the FourNoble Truths. First he should recall to mind the Truth of 111 through aggregation, sense-sphere and element. The idea of aggregation should be recalled to mind through one's own characteristics and through the characteristics of the aggregates, in the way it was taught, under the method of understandingthe aggregates. The (idea of) sense-sphere should be recalled to mind throughthe characteristic of sense-sphere, in the way it was taught, under the method of understanding the sense-spheres. The (idea of) element should be recalled to mind through the characteristics of element, in the way it was taught, under the method of understanding the elements. Thus having understoodaggregate, sense-sphere and element, that yogin knows that there are onlyaggregates, sense-spheres and elements, and that there is no being or soul. Thus he gains the perception of the formations1 and gets to know the twodivisions, namely, name and form. Here the ten sense-spheres and the tenelements of the aggregate of matter constitute form. Four aggregates, thesense-sphere of mind and the seven elements constitute name. The sense-sphere of ideas and the element of ideas are name and form. Name is one form is another. Form is void of name and name, of form. Name is not separate from form, and form is not separate from name, like drum-sound.20nly through dependence on name, form proceeds; and through dependenceon form, name proceeds, like the journeying afar of the blind and thecripple.3

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN NAME AND FORM

- Q. What are the differences between name and form?
- A. Name has no body; form has body. Name is hard to discern; formis easily discerned. Name proceeds quickly; form proceeds slowly. Name does not accumulate; form accumulates. Name excogitates, knows, considers, is aware; form does not do these. Form walks, leans, sits, lies down, bendsand stretches; name does not do these. Name knows: "I go", "I lean", "I sit", "I lie down", "I bend", "I stretch"; form does not know these. Form drinks, eats, chews, tastes; name does not do these. Name knows: "I drink", "I eat", "I chew", "I taste"; form does not know these. Form claps the hands, frolics, laughs, cries and talks in many ways; name does not do these. Name knowsthus: "I clap", "I frolic", "I laugh", "I cry", "I talk in such and such a manner"; form does not know these. These are the differences between name and form; and that yogin knows name [454] and form thus: "Only name and form arehere; there is no being, there is no soul". Thus he, making it manifest, gets the perception of the formations.

SUMMARY OF THE TRUTH OF ILL

Now, this is a summary of the whole Truth of 111: One, causing to ariseknowledge of pure views, according to reality, discerns name and form. Allthese should be known as descriptive of the Truth of 111. That yogin, havingmade manifest the Truth of 111, considers the idea of a being.1 Thereafterhe should attend to the cause and condition of 111.

CAUSE AND CONDITION OF ILL

Q. What are the cause and condition of ill?

A. That yogin knows thus: This ill has birth for cause and condition; birth has becoming for cause and condition; becoming has clinging for causeand condition; clinging has craving for cause and condition; craving hasfeeling for cause and condition; feeling has contact for cause and condition; contact has the six sense-spheres for cause and condition; the six sense-sphereshave name-form for cause and condition; name-form has consciousnessfor cause and condition; consciousness has the formations for cause and condition. Thusdepending on ignorance for cause and condition. Thusdepending on ignorance there are the formations; depending on the forma-tions there is consciousness; depending on birth there are decay, death, andgrief. Thus all the aggregates of ill arise. Thus that yogin introspects thelinks of conditioned arising at length,

THE PURITY OF TRANSCENDING UNCERTAINTY

Now, this is the summary: Depending on feeling there arises craving.

(b) Abfev. 1220-21: Ndmam nissdya rupan tu, riiparh nissdya ndmakampavattati sadd sabbam, pancavokdrabhiimiyam;imassa pana atthassa, dvibhdvattham eva cajaccandha-pifhasappfnarh, vattabbd upamd idha.1. Cp. Vis. Mag. 597: Evarh ndndnayehi ndmarupam vavatthdpayato sattasannarh abhi-bhavitvd asammohabhumiyam thitarh ndmarupdnam ydthdvadassanarh Diffhivisuddhi tiveditabbarh. One makes manifest the origin of ill. The knowledge of the Law of conditionedarising, Ariyan understanding of conditioned arising and knowledge of thepurity of transcending uncertainty are terms descriptive of the knowledgewhich makes manifest the Truth of Origin.1

TRUTH OF CESSATION

That yogin, after having grasped the Truth of the Origin of III and trans-cended the uncertainty of the three phases of time, considers the cessation of ill. The destruction of what is the destruction of ill? That yogin knowsthus: When birth is destroyed, ill is destroyed; when birth is destroyed, becoming is destroyed; when becoming is destroyed, clinging is destroyed; when clinging is destroyed, craving is destroyed. When ignorance is destroyed, the formations are destroyed. Thus, with the destruction of ignorance, theformations are destroyed; with the destruction of the formations, consciousnessis destroyed. Decay, death, sorrow, lamentation, misery and grief are destroyed through the destruction of birth. Thus all the aggregates of ill are destroyed. Thus having considered the links of conditioned arising at length, he viewsthem in brief thus: Depending on feeling there is craving. Owing to itsdestruction, ill is destroyed. Thus he makes manifest the Truth of Cessation.

TRUTH OF THE PATH

Now, that yogin, having grasped the Truth of Cessation considers the Path of the Cessation of III thus: What Path and what perfection constitute the destruction of craving? He considers the five clinging aggregates 2 and the tribulation of these. (He thinks), "This is the Path, this is perfection". Heeradicates craving, and causes the arising of the Way-Truth. One shouldknow this as has been taught fully under the method of understanding the Truth.

ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY WAYS OF KNOWING THEFIVE CLINGING AGGREGATES

Thus that yogin, having serially grasped the Four Truths, knows the fiveclinging aggregates in one hundred and eighty ways and by way of accumulation. He considers at length all matter of the past, future and the present, internaland external, great and small, gross and subtle, and far and near as impermanent, ill, and not-self. In the same way, he deals with all feeling, perception, formations and consciousness.1 In each aggregate there are twelve statespreceeding at the door. In five aggregates, twelve times five make sixty. Thus the sixty kinds of seeing of impermanence, sixty kinds of seeing of ill, and sixty kinds of seeing of not-self constitute one-hundred and eighty.

Andagain, there are one hundred and eighty states proceeding at the door: sixinternal sense-spheres; six external sense-spheres; six kinds of consciousness; six kinds of contact; six kinds of feeling; six kinds of perception; six kindsof volition; six kinds of craving; six kinds of initial application of thought; six kinds of sustained application of thought.2 These ten sixes make up sixty; sixty kinds of seeing of ill and sixtykinds of seeing of not-self. Three times sixty are one hundred and eighty.

Thus he discerns and investigates the formations through impermanence: The endless years, seasons, months, fortnights, days, nights, hours and thought-instants, roll on producing new states in succession like the flame of a lamp.3

Thus he discerns and investigates the formations through suffering: Through ill-faring a man experiences unhappiness, hunger and fear; he isseparated from dear ones; he experiences old age, disease, death, sorrow, lamentation, misery and grief. Such are the vicissitudes of the formations.

IMPERMANENCE, ILL, NOT-SELF

Thus he discerns and considers the formations as not-self: What isaccording to the teaching, concerning cause and condition of the aggregates, of the sense-spheres and of the elements, is the Truth. According to kamma-result and conditioned arising, beings are born. There is no abiding being. There is no intrinsic nature in objects.

He considers form as impermanent in the sense of extinction, as illin the sense of fear, as not-self in the sense of unreality. Thus he considersit in brief and at length. And in the same way he thinks that feeling, perception,the formations, consciousness are impermanent in the sense of extinction, are suffering in the sense of fear, are not-self in the sense of unreality. Thusbriefly and at length he discerns. Here, through the discernment of impermanence, he removes the idea of permanence; through the discernment of ill,he removes the idea of bliss; and through the discernment of not-self, heremoves the idea of self.

THE SIGNLESS, THE UNHANKERED, AND THE VOID

- Q. How does he discern fully through impermanence? A. In dis-cerning the formations as they are, he limits the formations as not existing before their arising and as not going beyond their fall; and his mind, springing forth into the signless element, attains to peace. Thus he discerns through impermanence, fully.
- Q. How does he discern through ill? A. In discerning the formationshis mind is agitated with fear as regards hankering and springs forth into theunhankered. Thus he discerns through ill, fully.
- Q. How does he discern fully through not-self? A. In discerning allstates, he regards them as alien, and his mind springs forth to the element of the void and attains to peace. Thus he discerns not-self, fully,1

Thus discerning the three states of becoming, the five states of existence, the seven stations of consciousness, the nine abodes of beings, through ex-tinction, fear and unreality, he investigates these. 1

The discernment of Truth has ended.

THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE RISE AND FALL

That yogin, having discerned the five clinging aggregates, applies the threecharacteristics to them, wishing for the happiness of being released fromphenomena. And when the internal five clinging aggregates are graspedby way of the characteristics, he penetrates rise and fall thus: "All thesestates, not having been, arise; and having arisen, pass away". Here, ingrasping (the aggregates) there are three kinds: defilement-grasp, concentra-tion-grasp, insight-grasp.

DEFILEMENT-GRASP

Here, the infatuated commoner clings to and grasps willingly the sign ofthe defilements owing to mental reversal, and regards the world of sights, sounds, tangibles and ideas as blissful and permanent. It is likened to mothsflying into a flame. 4 This is called defilement-grasp.

CONCENTRATION-GRASP

Q. What is concentration-grasp? A. Here a yogin wishes to gainconcentration and grasps the sign in each of the thirty-eight subjects of medita-tion, with the mind, beginning with the knowledge of Right Mindfulness, andthereby chains the mind as one chains an elephant to make it quiet. 1 This is called concentration-grasp.

INSIGHT-GRASP

Q. What is insight-grasp? A, A man, beginning with the wisdom ofsteady viewing, discerns the characteristic of intrinsic nature2 of form, feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness. Wishing for and happy inequanimity, he grasps the characteristics. It is like a man who lays hold of apoisonous snake. This is called insight-grasp. It is well when a mangrasps by way of insight.

Q. What is the grasping of the characteristics of feeling, perception, theformations and consciousness? A. Characteristics of form: One graspsthe form-conciousness by way of the earth-element, water-element, fire-element, airelement, sense-sphere of eye or sense-sphere of body. Characteristic offeeling: One grasps feeling by way of the pleasurable, the painful or the neitherpleasurable nor painful. Characteristics of perception: One grasps perceptionby way of form-perception or perception of states. Characteristics of theformations: One grasps the formations through contact, volition, initial application of thought, sustained application of thought, or deliberation. Characteristics of consciousness: One grasps consciousness through eye-consciousness or mindconsciousness. One grasps one's particular medita-tion and produces the sign skilfully. Thus one grasps the characteristics ofform, feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness.

TWO WAYS OF GRASPING OFTHOUGHT-CHARACTERISTICS

And again, through two ways one grasps the characteristics of thought:through object and through taking to heart. Q. How does one grasp thecharacteristics of thought through the object? A. Thought arises owing toobject. One should grasp that. "Through this form-object, feeling-object, perception-object, formation-object, and consciousness-object, thought arises",—thus one grasps. This is the grasping of the characteristics of thought throughthe object. Q. How does one grasp the characteristics of thought throughtaking to heart? A. "Through taking to heart, thought arises",—thus oneshould consider. "Through taking feeling, perception and the formations toheart, thought arises",—thus should one introspect. Thus through the takingto heart one grasps the characteristics of thought.

- Q. What is the grasping well of the characteristics? A. Throughthese activities and these characteristics, one grasps form, feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness.
- [455] And again, one is able to grasp the characteristics through these acti-vities and these attributes. This is called the grasping well of the characteristics. "One penetrates rise and fall" means: "One sees clearly, 'There is arising; there is passing away' ". Here the form that has arisen continues. Thesign of birth is arising. The characteristic of change is passing away. Whenthese two passages are perceived with the eye of wisdom, there is knowledgeof "rise and fall". The feeling that has arisen, continues. The characteristic of the coming to be of feeling, perception, the formations and consciousnessis arising; the characteristic of change in them is passing away. When thesetwo passages are perceived with the eye of wisdom, there is knowledge of 'rise and fall'.

CHARACTERISTICS OF RISE AND FALLIN THREE WAYS

And again, one can be well acquainted with the characteristics of riseand fall through three ways: through cause, condition and own property.Q. How can one be well acquainted with the characteristics of arising through "cause"? A. The aggregates arise owing to craving, ignorance, and kamma. When a man perceives this with the eye of wisdom, he becomes familiar withthe characteristics of arising through "cause".1 How can one be well acquainted with the characteristics of arising through "condition"? Conditionedby nutriment, the form-aggregate arises. Conditioned by contact, threeaggregates arise. Conditioned by name-form, the aggregate of cons-ciousness arises.1 When a man perceives these with the eye of wisdom, hebecomes familiar with the characteristics of arising through "condition".Q. How can one be well acquainted with the characteristics through "ownproperty"? A. The formations arise, renewing themselves. It is like the successionin the flame of a lamp. When a man perceives this with the eye of wisdom,he becomes familiar with the characteristics of arising through "own property".One can see the characteristics of the Truth of Origin through cause and condi-tion. One can see the Truth of 111 through the arising of thought,2 throughcondition and through own property. One can see by means of characteristics of the being observed.* Thus one can be acquainted with the characteristics of arising through three ways.

- O. How can one be well acquainted with falling through three ways? A. Through the falling away of cause, the falling away of condition and thefalling away of own property. Here through the falling away of craving, ignorance, and kamma, the falling away of the aggregates is fulfilled.3 Whenone perceives this with the eye of wisdom, one becomes familiar with the characteristics of falling away, through the falling away of condition. Through the falling away of nutriment, the falling away of the form-aggregate fulfilled; 4 through the falling away of contact, the falling away of three aggre-gates is fulfilled; through the falling away of name-form, the falling awayof the aggregate of consciousness is fulfilled.5 When a man sees this with theeye of wisdom, he becomes familiar with the falling away by way of the falling away of condition. The falling away of the formations is likened to recessionin the flame of a lamp. When a man sees this with the eve of wisdom, hebecomes familiar with falling away by way of own property. Here, throughthe falling away of the cause, one sees the Truth of Cessation. Owing tocharacteristics, (the first) seeing6 is fulfilled. Through the grasping of thecharacteristics of the non-become, through the falling away of condition, through own property, through the destruction of views and through the characteristics of the Truth of 111, the first seeing is fulfilled.

ACQUIRING THE HIGHEST KNOWLEDGE

Q. How does one acquire the highest knowledge by seeing the Truth ofill through rise and fall and through the characteristics? A. How is the destruction of views the cause? One is able to see what he has not yet seenthrough the sign of the Truth of 111. Ill pervades all (things). With the destroying of pernicious kamma, one sees things as they are. One causes the arising of the thought which is associated with the characteristics of pheno-mena, and rescues the mind from pernicious kamma. Having seen the tribulation of kamma according to reality, one causes the arising of the thoughtwhich is associated with the characteristics of phenomena, and rescues themind from pernicious kamma. Here one sees ill everywhere, because onegoes to the furthest end (investigates fully).

SIMILE OF THE BIRD SURROUNDED BY FIRE

It is like a winged bird surrounded by a fire. Before'it flies away into the open sky, it is not free of subjection to fear. But when it sees the tribula-tion of the surrounding fire and is affected by the fearfulness thereof, it fliesaway. Thus it should be known. Here, through cause, through conditionand through arising, one becomes familiar with the sign of the arising of conditioned arising. This being, this becomes: Owing to the arising of this(cause) the arising of this (result) is fulfilled.1 Owing to the destruction of thecause, and of the destruction of condition: Through the seeing of this des-truction, one becomes familiar with the characteristics of birth according toconditioned arising. This not being, this does not arise: Owing to the des-truction of this, this ceases.2 One can be familiar with arising, having seenits ceasing through own property and through rise and fall: One can see thearising of conditioned arising and the constructed3 states. One can see thearising and the cessation of this and also the stability of this.

FOUR STATES

One should, through rise and fall, know the four states: through oneness, diversity, non-effort and inherent nature. 4 Seeing the unbroken sequence of the formations, a man holds the flux 5 to be single and does not cling to the idea of multiple fluxes. He does not hold it to be same throughout, because he sees the destruction of it (momentarily), and because of the succession of the formations. He does not cling to self because by nature the formations are uncertain, and because of the succession of the formations. The unins-tructed commoner, through wrongly grasping oneness, falls into eternalismor nihilism. Through wrongly grasping diversity, he falls into eternalism. Through wrongly grasping non-effort, he falls into the self-theory. 1 Thusthrough wrongly grasping the states, he falls into the theory of non-effort (?). Here, in the sense of entirety (wholeness), 2 in the sense of distinctiveness of oneness and in the sense of the inclusion of different characteristics, the charac-teristic of oneness is fulfilled (?). In the sense of understanding, it is diversity. In the sense of defilement, it is single. In the sense of means it is multiple. As the fruit of craving, it is one; as the fruit of kamma, it is varied. Thatyogin, seeing oneness thus, does not cling to the view of discrete (series); and seeing diversity, he does not cling to the eternalist theory of oneness.

If he sees oneness, he removes annihilationism. If he sees diversity, heremoves eternalism. That yogin, thus, through rise and fall, knows onenessand diversity.

NON-EFFORT IN THE ARISING OF THE FORMATIONS

- Q. How does one see non-effort in the arising of the formations? Bywhat reason are all phenomena characterized by non-effort and immovability, and how do they proceed without being caused to arise by others? A. Owingto intrinsic nature, cause and effect, union, origin, there is conditioned arising. Thus through inherent nature birth causes one to be born. Here, in thesense of non-life and non-motion, non-effort should be known. In the sense of own nature and condition, inherent nature should be known. Here thereis the manifestation of emptiness and non-effort, and also of the kamma and the formations. The manifestation of non-effort is called inherent nature. The manifestation of inherent nature is called the formations. Here throughthe correct seizure of oneness, one becomes familiar with ill; through the correct seizure of diversity, one becomes familiar with imperfnanence, andthrough the correct seizure of non-effort and inherent nature, one becomes familiar with not-self.
- Q. Does the yogin review the rise and fall of all formations withoutremainder or only one? A. Grasping the characteristics in various subjects,he becomes familiar with rise and fall and causes that knowledge to fill allformations without remainder. It is like a man who, having tasted the waterof the sea in one spot, knows all sea-water to be salty.3 Thus should it beknown. He fills all formations in two ways: by way of object and by way ofnon-delusion. Here, grasping the characteristics, one becomes familiar witharising and falling away of all formations. This knowledge of rise and fallis the discernment of all formations. All formations are discerned at thefirst moment of arising and in the last moment of falling away. They are
- 1. Atta-vdda. 2. Samanta.
- 3, A. IV, 199; Puna ca par am bhante mahasamuddo ekaraso lonaraso.

empty before the first moment of arising, and are empty after the last momentof falling away, because there is no other arising before they arose, and there is no other falling away after their fall. Therefore the knowledge of the riseand fall is the knowledge of the discernment of all formations.

The knowledge of rise and fall has ended.REVIEWING OF BREAKING UP

Thus that yogin enjoys dwelling upon the characteristics of arising andpassing away, discerns the formations as subject to breaking up and develops concentration. Effortlessly he produces intellection and sees the breaking upof mind-states. Through the form-object and through the arising and passing away of the mind, he sees the rise and fall of the mind-states associated with that object. In the same way he sees the rise and fall of the mind-states which are associated with these objects, through the perception-object, the formation-object, the consciousness-object and through the rise and fall of mind.

BREAKING UP THROUGH THREE WAYS—

(a) THROUGH ASSEMBLAGE

And again, he sees breaking up through three ways: through assemblage, duality and through understanding.

Q. How, through assemblage? A. Through assemblage, he sees thefalling away of the postures in their several spheres and the associated mindand the mental properties with them. And again, he grasps form-imperman-ence, feeling-impermanence, perception-impermanence, formation-imperman-ence and consciousness-impermanence. After that he sees the breaking upof the mind and the mental properties which are associated with the objectof impermanence, by way of assemblage. In the same way, with the objectof ill and the object of not-self.1 Thus one should discern through assemblage.

(b) THROUGH DUALITY

Q. How, through duality? A. Having discerned impermanence ofform, he arouses the states of mind that conform to impermanence and hesees the arising and the passing away of the mind. Thus having investigated the impermanence of feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness,he arouses the state of mind that conforms to the object of impermanence and sees the arising and the passing away of the mind. In the same way, withthe object of suffering and the object of not-self. Thus he should discernthrough duality.

(c) THROUGH UNDERSTANDING

Q. How, through understanding? A. Having discerned the imper-manence of form, he arouses the mind together with the object of imperman-ence [456] and sees the arising and the passing away of the mind. Thusthrough the understanding of insight, he sees the breaking up of many mind-states. He discerns the impermanence of feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness, and arouses the state of mind that conforms to the objectof impermanence, and sees the arising and the falling away of mind-states. Thus he sees again and again the breaking up of mind-states. Thus throughunderstanding he sees the breaking up of many states. Likewise, he discernsill and not-self. Thus having understood, he grasps breaking up. Thatobject of ill and breaking up makes for intentness. Intent on the formationsalways, he attains to well-being every moment. Through this understanding that vogin, independent of another, knows the whole world by itself (andas unenduring) as a poppy seed on the point (of an awl),1 and Uhat" in everyconcentrated thought-moment there is the change of arising, stability and destruction.2

SIMILES OF DRUM-SOUND, TOWN OF GODS, LIGHTNING

At this time the yogin again sees as it is taught in the stanzas thus:

Depending on each other do the twocalled name and form, by nature cany on. When one breaks up the other also breaks;together do they always start their course. The five states of form, odour and the rest, rise not form eye, and also not from forms; yet are not different from the set of two. The states conditioned from a cause arise, like the sound when a drum is struck. The states of form, odour and the rest, rise not from ear, and also not from sounds; yet are not different from the set of two. The five states of form, odour and the rest, rise not from nose and also not from smell;

The Five Methods 297

yet are not different from the set of two.

The five states of form, odour and the rest, rise not from tongue, and also not from taste;

yet are not different from the set of two.

The five states of form, odour and the rest, rise not from body; also not from touch;

yet are not different from the set of two.

These are not born of form material;

these do not rise out of the sphere of thought;

they rise depending on condition-cause like the sound when a drum is struck.

The functions are themselves without strength; weak is the former cause; what has become is feeble, poor. Infirm is that which is to others bound. Co-states are also weak.

There is no strength at all in union;

and what rolls on is always impotent, for what rolls on has no abiding strength.

It has no pith; it cannot cause to rise;'."-..■ 'tis cor eless even as a town of gods;1

none cause this to be; 'tis not produced,. - -.. by self and does not by its strength remain.

On other states, depending, does it rise,-.-. and what it does produce is called corrupt.

Weak is this body, it is not produced, by itself and is low. It is not 'cause' or 'object', by itself. It has no pith and is not free of states conditioned, but is truly due to many complex-states.

Short is its life, because it is most weak; it goes not anywhere; from nowhere comes; and is not born in some land, distant, far.

The mind is not a person, soul or self; at every point of thought it is bound up, with what is pleasing or with what is ill. It passes over mountain, sea and clime, sees eighty thousand aeons in a trice, lives only once and does not come again, does not to two thought-moments bind itself, and in it is all past and future lost.

All that remains is merely aggregate and this is ever falling without end and so will also fall the state to be.

1. Gandhabba nagara.

298 * Vimuttimagga

There are no different signs occuring here, from the non-born there is no coming here, in the sense that is highest there is none who goes or comes. And in the future will no heaping be, but just a going-on.

The world does not with dhamma ever mix,

One cannot see the future or the source.

All dhammas are un-made—they are like space—and rising like the lightning, perish soon.

Thus seeing endless destruction, that yogin enters into concentration. Justas in rubbing sticks together for fire, sparks flash forth, just so is the classof enlightenment moments. When illuminattion, joy, calm, bliss, resolve, uplift, presentation, equanimity and desire1 arise, if he is not intelligent, theyogin will arouse thoughts of distraction or conceit in this state.

- Q. How can he remove distraction? A. That yogin arouses rapture for the doctrine. That rapture pacifies his mind; and sitting again, he calmsthe mind and makes it conform to the doctrine. If his mind conforms to the doctrine, he rejects the idea of permanence through concentration of thereviewing of breaking up. Being free from the idea of permanence, he becomes familiar with the method and removes (distraction of mind).
- Q. How does the yogin remove conceit? A. That yogin causes thearising of illumination in the doctrine at first, believes that he has attained to the supramundane state, thinks that he has attained what he has notattained and does not endeavour further. Thus he arouses conceit. Theintelligent yogin knows that defilement disturbs meditation, and knows thatworldly states have the formations for object, Thus he knows that the supra-mundane state has Nibbdna for object. Having seen thus, he removes dis-traction and conceit by this knowledge and seeing only breaking up, practiseswell and practises repeatedly.

The knowledge which is the discernment of falling away has ended. The Eleventh Fascicle has ended.

ing, the hvc kinds of faring-on, the seven stations of intelligence, the nineabodes of sentience as impermanent, he grasps the idea of fear and causes thearising of the signless I through tranquillity. Attending to ill and fearingbirth, he causes the arising of the birth-less 2 through tranquillity. Attending to not-self, he fears the sign of birth and causes the arising of the signless andthe birthless through tranquillity. He reviews tribulation and repulsion and observes conformable patience. This is the explanation in full.

The cause of the arising of fear-knowledge has ended.

KNOWLEDGE OF THE DESIRE FOR RELEASE

Practising (the knowledge of) fear, that yogin produces the knowledgeof the desire for release. When he fears the sign of the aggregates, the know-ledge of the desire for release arises. When he fears the arising of the aggre-gates, the knowledge of the desire for release arises. When he fears the threeplanes of becoming, the five kinds of faring-on, the seven stations of intelligence, and the nine abodes of sentience, the knowledge of the desire for release arises. It is like a bird hemmed in by a fire desiring to escape it, and like a man surround-ed by robbers seeking to get free of them. Thus if that yogin fears the causeof the aggregates, the coming to be of the aggregates, the three planes of becom-ing, the five kinds of ill-faring, the seven abodes of consciousness and the nineabodes of sentience,, the knowledge of the desire for release arises.4 Attending to impermanence, he fears the cause; attending to ill, he fears birth; attendingto not-self, he fears both cause and birth. Then the knowledge of the desirefor release arises. Here the commoner and the learner* [457] This is the full explanation.

The knowledge of the desire for release has ended.ADAPTIVE KNOWLEDGE

Practising the knowledge of the desire for release that yogin wishes to free himself from all action and attain to Nibbdna. Wishing to arouse onlyone sign (?), he arouses knowledge conformable to the Way of Escape. Through three ways adaptive knowledge 1 arises. He transcends the formations through three ways: Reviewing the impermanence of the five aggregates, heattains to adaptive knowledge. The extinction of the five aggregates is permanent Nibbdna. Reviewing the ill of the five aggregates, he attains to adaptive knowledge. The extinction of the aggregates is blissful Nibbdna. Thus hetranscends the formations. Reviewing not-selfness of the five aggregates, he attains to adaptive knowledge. The extinction of the aggregates is absoluteNibbdna. He transcends the formations considering them as impermanent, ill and not-self. Q. Through what knowledge does he transcend the forma-tions, and through what knowledge is transcending of the formations completed? A. He transcends the formations through adaptive knowledge. The trans-cending of the formations is completed through Path-knowledge. Q. What isadaptive knowledge? A. The knowledge which conforms to the four founda-tions of mindfulness, the four right efforts, the four bases of supernormal power, the five faculties, the five powers, the seven enlightenment factors and the factors of the Noble Eightfold Path, 2 is called adaptive knowledge. This is the full explanation of adaptive knowledge.

Adaptive knowledge has ended.

KNOWLEDGE OF ADOPTION

Adaptive knowledge arises from dwelling upon the characteristics of theformations immediately after. But when he attends taking Nibbdna as object, pannd sankharupekkhdsu ndnam .. .pe... 'updydso bhayarf ti muncitukamyatd patisankhasantifthand pannd sankharupekkhdsu ndnam.* The rest of the sentence is unintelligible. Possibly this refers to a passage of Pts. T, 60-4.

he arouses the knowledge of adoption.1 Q. What is adoption? A. Thepassing beyond of commoner-states, is called adoptive knowledge....*

And again, the sowing of the seed of Nibbdna, is called adoption. It isas has been stated in the Abhidhamma: 'The overcoming of birth is namedadoption.2 The victory of non-birth is also named adoption".3 And again, the overcoming of the cause of birth is adoption. To pass over to non-birthand the signless is named adoption. This is the first turning to Nibbdna. From without, he produces the wisdom of procedure. This is the full ex-planation of adoption.

The knowledge of adoption has ended.

By means of the knowledge of adoption, he knows ill, immediately after. He cuts off origin, and makes cessation manifest. He practises the Path, and attains to the Path-knowledge of Stream-entrance and all accessories ofenlightenment. At this time the yogin sees the limited, the unconditioned, andthe sublime, through seclusion. He understands the Four Noble Truths inone moment, in one comprehension, not before or after (each other).

He understands at once ill, the cutting off of origin, the realization ofcessation and the practice of the Path. Thus he understands. It is taughtin the simile in verse thus:

By boat one goes with goods leaving this bank, And cutting the stream, reaches that.

SIMILES OF THE BOAT, LAMP, AND SUN

It is like the crossing in the boat. The four actions occur simultaneously,neither before nor after. The man leaves this bank, cuts the stream, carriesthe goods and reaches the further bank. Like the leaving of this bank is theknowledge that understands ill; like the cutting of the stream is the cutting offof the origin; like the arrival at the further bank is the realization of cessation; like the carrying of the foods is the practising of the Path.4

Or it is like a lamp which in one moment, neither before nor after, fulfilsfour functions thus: the burning of the wick; the dispelling of darkness; the consumption of oil; and the production of light.1

And again, it is like the sun which performs four functions simultaneously,neither before nor after, thus: It makes forms visible, dispels darkness,removes cold and produces light. Like the making visible of forms, is theknowledge which understands ill; like the dispelling of darkness, is the destruction of origin; like the removal of cold, is the realization of cessation; like the production of light, is the practising of the Path. Thus is the Ariyanknowledge compared to the sun.2

Q. Of the knowledge that understands ill, of the removal of origin, ofthe realization of cessation and of the practising of the Path, what are thesigns? A. If the yogin does not understand ill, the four reversals occur. And at that time the yogin sees the limited, the unconditioned and the elementof the sublime through solitude. Through the knowledge that occurs in onemoment, he realizes the Four Truths at the same time, neither before nor after. Q. How should these be understood. A. By means of the knowledge of arisingand falling away, he cannot comprehend the flood of ill and the tribulation of the formations as they truly are. He practises on a sign which does not belong to the formations. And he passes over to that which is not formation. Thushe sees the tribulation of the formations as they are through causing the mindto practise on a sign belonging to the formations, and passes over to thatwhich is not formations. Here he comprehends the flood of ill and reachesthe end. And again, it is said that if that is so, he should be able to discernthe Truth through the solitude and the knowledge of adoption. The knowledgeof adoption arises from the formations, and passes over that which is non-formation. When the knowledge of adoption which arises from the signof the formations passes over to that which is non-formation, he can attainto Nibbdna. Intentness on the cause is its only object. Through intentnesson the object, he can develop concentration of mind. When he gets concentration, he produces serenity and insight, and also can fulfil the enlighten*ment accessories. Thereby he understands the Truth through the knowledge of adoption. From that knowledge of adoption the knowledge of the Pathis produced immediately. At that time he can get the concentration of Nibbdna. His mind attains to concentration and develops serenity andinsight and the enlightenment accessories. Therefore it is only through theknowledge of the Path that one can discern the Truth.

SIMILE OF THE BURNING CITY

It is like a man stepping across the threshold of the gate of a burningcity. When he has placed one foot outside the city, he is not yet entirelyoutside the city. Thus at that time, the knowledge of adoption arises fromthat object of the formations and passes over to that which is non-formation, But here it cannot be said that he has done with the defilements, becausemany states are yet not perfected. Just as when a man places both his feetoutside the threshold of the gate of the burning city, it can be said that he isout of the burning city, just so when the knowledge of adoption arouses theknowledge of the Path without end, it could be said that one has gone outof the walled city of the defilements, because the states are complete. There-fore, through the knowledge of adoption, one fulfils the discernment of Truth 1

- Q. What is meant by discernment? A. The Four Noble Truthsoccur in one moment—this is understanding. Here Pathknowledge and the balance of the faculties mean equilibrium; the powers mean immovability; the enlightenment factors mean vehicle; the factors of the Eightfold Pathmean cause; the foundations of mindfulness mean dwelling; the right effortsmean distinction; the bases of supernormal power mean contrivance; truthmeans Truth; serenity means nondisturbance; insight means vision; thetwofold means nonseparation; the purity of virtue means shielding; thepurity of thought means non-excitement; the purity of views means seeing; skill in wisdom means shedding; illumination of indifference means pervading everywhere; the faculty of the knowledge of extinction means completes loughing; uniformity of attention means the development of regeneratedesire; renunciation means the extinction of contact and feeling; concen-tration means the setting-up in front; 2 mindfulness means shelter; wisdommeans Truth; the sublime means supreme distinction; Nibbdna meansultimate rest.

THREE FETTERS

Thus that yogin knows presently, sees presently and cuts off the threefetters, i.e., self-illusion, uncertainty, addiction to rites and ceremonies, andthe defilements standing in that place.1

Q. What is self-illusion A. Here seeing form, the uninstructed commoner thinks: "This is the self; the self is form; form is the abode of the self; in form there is the self". Thus in the same way he thinks offeeling, perception, the formations or consciousness thus: "consciousness is the self; the self is consciousness; consciousness is the abode of the

- self; inconsciousness is the self". This is called self-illusion.2 This self is cut offand thereby sixty-two views,3 beginning with self-illusion, are also cut off.
- Q. What is uncertainty? A. Uncertainty regarding ill, origin, cessation, the Path, the Buddha, the Law, the Community of Bhikkhus, the beginning, the end, and the beginning and the end, or uncertainty con-cerning the doctrine of cause and condition, is called uncertainty.4, This iscut off.
- Q. What is addiction to rites and ceremonies. A. There are two kindsin addiction to rites and ceremonies. They are, (addiction due to) cravingand (addiction due to) delusion. (Hereone thinks thus:) "Through this vow, through this conduct, through this painful practice and through thisholiness, I shall be reborn in heaven or I shall be reborn in every heaven". This is called addiction to rites and ceremonies due to craving. Here a recluseor a brahmin thinks: "Through this virtue, through this purity and the action purity of virtue, (I shall be reborn etc.)". This is called addiction to ritesand ceremonies due to delusion. 5 This is also cut off.

- Q. What are the defilements standing in that place? A. Sense-desire,hate and infatuation which cause ill-faring are called the defilements standing that place. [458] These are also cut down. At this time one realizes the Fruit of Stream-entrance. If a man has not yet attained to the stage of a Stream-entrant, he dwells in the Stream-entrant's place of departure, or the eighth place. Or else, in the ground of vision or concentration or in the wisdomprocedure which arises from both. This is the full explanation of the know-ledge of the Path of Stream-entrance. Immediately after, the Stream-entrantcuts off the three fetters. Therefore his object is unconditioned. The methodwhich is not different from the Path and other states arouses the fruitionalknowledge and the fruitional consciousness of the Stream-entrant.

Having seen the Path, Fruit and Nibbdna, he cuts off the defilements and sees the remaining defilements. This is Stream-entrance, non-retrogression. This is to be born of the breast of the Blessed One. This is to be born of themouth of the Blessed One. This is the dhamma that is born of dhamma. It is separation from all things. It is called the good course endowed with vision. It is called familiarity withthe Noble Doctrine. It is the dwelling at the threshold of the Sublime. 2Here, perfecting his vision, he sees the Good Law. After seeing the GoodLaw, he fulfils knowledge. If his knowledge is fulfilled, he enters the streamof the Noble Doctrine and becomes familiar with wisdom, and opening thegate of the Sublime, he dwells within it. Therefore it is said in the verse thus:

Royal is that one who wins the stream, a king of deva-realms is he,

a ruler of all worlds that be,

for Fruit of Stream is verily supreme^

ONCE-RETURNER

Dwelling in this stage, that yogin endeavours further wishing to obtain the Fruit of Once-return, and he sees birth, destruction and the rest. As ex-plained above he sees. He develops in the way through which he saw the Path. Depending on the faculties, the powers and enlightenment-intellection, he discerns the Truth. Thus he practises and goes towards cessation. Hecuts off coarse passion and hatred and the defilements standing in that place. 1By this Path he gains the Fruit of Once-return immediately.

NON-RETURNER

Dwelling in this stage, he endeavours further, wishing to obtain the Fruit, of Non-return, and sees birth, destruction and the rest. As explained abovehe sees. He develops in the way through which he saw the Path. Dependingon the faculties, the powers and enlightenment-intellection, he understandsthe truth and goes towards cessation. He cuts off fine passion and hate andthe defilements standing in that place. By this Path he gains the Fruit of Non-return immediately.2

SAINTSHIP

Dwelling in this stage, he endeavours further wishing to obtain the Fruitof Stainship and sees birth, destruction and the others. As explained abovehe sees. He develops in the same way by which he saw the Path. Dependingon the faculties, the powers and enlightenment-intellection, he discerns the Truth. Thus he cuts off desire for the form and the formless; and he cuts offconceit, agitation, ignorance and all other defilements without remainder.3Thereafter that yogin gains the Fruit of Saintship. He sees the Path; he seesthe Fruit of enlightenment, and he sees the extirpation of the defilements. Thus that bhikkhu becomes a Consummate One, eradicates the cankers, does what there is to do, lays down the burden, attains to the goal, removes thefetters, knows liberation, 4 is sepatate from the five and (endowed with) the sixfactors, and attains to security. He is not fettered by death, removes cessationassociated with other (false) truths, believes in and looks for the stainless, attends to the calming of the bodily formations, 5 and gains the highest guer-don. He is called one who has removed hatred, one who has won the furthershore, 6 one who has broken free of the defilements, one who is without fetters one who has attained (knowledge), has sloughedoff, conqueror, the man tranquillized who arouses tranquillity. This is thefull explanation of Consummate One.

THREE KINDS OF STREAM-ENTRANT

Here, if a Stream-entrant does not endeavour further in this life, he fallsinto one of three classes. The three classes of Stream-entrants are: ekabijin(one-seeder), sattakkhattuparama (one who will be born seven times at most),kolankola (one who will be born in good families).

Sattakkhattuparama is of weak faculty; kolankola is of middling faculty; and ekabijin is of keen faculty.

Sattakkhattuparama: After dwelling in divine-realms (for six births),he, in his seventh birth, is born here, and makes an end of ill.

Kolankola: He is born in a good family three or four* times, and makesan end of ill.

Ekabijin: With one more birth as a man, he makes an end of ill.

If a Once-returner does not make further endeavour in this life, he returnsto this world once more, and makes an end of ill.1

FIVE KINDS OF NON-RETURNER

If a Non-returner makes no further endeavour in this life, he will bereborn in a Pure Abode.2 According to the difference of faculties, there are five kinds of Non-returners: Antard parinibbdyin, upahacca parinibbdyin, asahkhdra parinibbdyin, uddhamsota Akanitfha-gdmin. Here, he who makes the Ariyan Path mainfest in order to remove theremaining fetters and latencies and passes away without reaching the middle of his life-span is antard parinibbdyin. He who makes the Ariyan Path manifest, in order to remove the remaining fetters and latencies, and passes away afterreaching the middle of his life-span, is upahacca parinibbdyin. He who makesthe Ariyan Path manifest, in order to remove the remaining fetters and latencies without external stimulus, is asankhdra parinibbdyin. He who makes the Ariyan Path manifest, in order to remove the remaining fetters and latencies

Evidently a copyist's error. Should be two or three.

D. Ill, 237: Pahca suddhdvdsd. Aviha, Atappd, Sudassd, Sudassi, Akanitfhd.

with external stimulus, is sasankhdra parinibbdyin. From Avihd he goes to Atappd; from Atappd he goes to Sudassd from Sudassd he goes to Sudassi \from Sudassi he goes to Akanitthd. In Akanitthd he makes the Ariyan Pathmanifest in order to remove the remaining fetters and latencies, and passesaway. This is the uddhamsota Akanitthagdmin} The life-span in Avihd isten thousand aeons; in Atappd, twenty thousand; in Sudassd, forty thousand; in Sudassi, eighty thousand; and in Akanitthd, one hundred and sixtythousand.2 In each of the four spheres there are five persons, and in theAkanitthd, four. There, the up-stream-goer is not. Thus there are twenty-four persons.

The Consummate One has removed all defilements. No more has he. Therefore there is no cause of future birth in him. Because he has no cause, he is free from becoming. He destroys the formations. He cuts off ill. He stirs up no more ill. This verily is the end of ill. Therefore it is taughtin the stanza thus:

SIMILE OF THE FIERY SPARKS

As when a smith beats red-hot iron to shape, sparks fly, fall into water, and then cease; so is his ending wrought in sequence true, and of his faring-on there is no trace.

Escaping thus and breaking himself loosefrom lust, and tangle and corruptions base,he gains the blissful state immovable,and of his faring-on there is no trace?

MISCELLANEOUS TEACHINGS*

The following are the miscellaneous teachings here: insight, initial application of thought, joy, feeling, plane, faculty, emancipation, defilements, twoattainments in concentration.

SERENITY AND INSIGHT

Insight is of two kinds, namely, of the method of serenity and of bareinsight. Q. What is insight by way of serenity? Having acquired con-centration, one overcomes the hindrances by concentration-strength, and one understands form after one penetrates name by way of the factors of meditation, jhdna. Here beginning with concentration one proceeds to insight.

Bare insight: One overcomes the hindrances through understanding-strength. One discerns name after form has been penetrated by way of thebodily formations. Beginning with insight, he develops serenity.1

INITIAL APPLICATION OF THOUGHT ANDBARE INSIGHT

Bare insight is with initial application of thought. In the first meditation, jhdna, the Path and the Fruit of insight are with initial application of thought. In the third meditation, jhdna, insight and adoption are with initial application of thought, and the Path and the- Fruit are without initial application of thought. The Path in the plane of initial application of-thought fulfils the eight factors of the Path. In the plane that is without initial application of thought, seven factors remove consideration.

JOY

At first the bare insight worker experiences the suffering of the formations. Through adaptive knowledge of insight he fulfils non-suffering, and developsadoption. The Path and the Fruit bring about joy together. Then the bareinsight worker gains perfection of the ease of the formations. In the secondmeditation, jhdna, insight and Path and Fruit bring about joy. In the thirdand the fourth meditations, jhdnas, insight, Path and Fruit bring about joy. Inthe Path and the Fruit of the plane of joy, the seven enlightenment factorsarise. The six kinds of enlightenment in the plane of non-joy remove theenlightenment-initial-application-of-thought that is joy.

FEELING

At first the bare insight worker experiences the suffering of the formations. Insight and adaptive knowledge bring about equanimity. Adoption, the Path and the Fruit bring about joy. Then the bare insight worker gainsperfection of the ease of the formations. In the third meditation (j'hdna), insight, the Path and the Fruit bring about joy. In the fourth meditation(jhdna), insight, the Path and the Fruit bring about equanimity.

PLANE

There are two kinds of planes: plane of seeing and plane of volition. Here, the Path of Stream-entrance is the plane of seeing. The other three Paths and the four Fruits of the recluse are the plane of volition. Nothaving seen before, one sees now. This is the plane of seeing. One sees

FACULTIES

There are three supramundane faculties, namely, the faculty which assuresknowledge of the unknown, the faculty of perfect knowability and the facultyof him who has known. Here, the knowledge of the Stream-winner's Pathis called the faculty which assures knowledge of the unknown. The knowledge of the three (other) Paths and of the (first) three

Fruits is called the faculty of perfect knowability. The faculty of him who has known belongs to theplane of Fruition of the Saint. One who knows all dhammas without remainderis possessed of the faculty of him who has known.2

the sign in the adoption knowledge of the Path, is the singless emancipation. The absence of hankering is unhankered emancipation. The absence of attachment is void emancipation. And again, these three emancipationsfulfil different Paths through penetration; and they fulfil one Path throughattainment.

- Q. How do these fulfil different Paths through penetration? A. Throughimpermanence-penetration, the signless emancipation is fulfilled. Throughill-penetration, the unhankered emancipation is fulfilled. Through not-self-penetration, void emancipation is fulfilled.
- Q. How is the signless emancipation fulfilled through impermanence-penetration? A. Attention to impermanence destroys the formations, andemancipates the mind in many ways. Thus faith and the other four faculties are got. And the knowledge of the thus-isness of the sign makes manifest the impermanence of all compounded things, arouses fear of the sign of theformations and, through proceeding in the signless, surpasses the sign through the emancipation that is without sign: and the release from the aggregates takes place. Thus the signless emancipation is fulfilled through impermanence-penetration.

- Q. How is the unhankered emancipation fulfilled through ill-penetra-tion? A. Attention to ill develops fear towards the formations and emanci-pates the mind in many ways. Thus concentration and the four other faculties are got. And the knowledge of the thus-isness of birth makes manifest the illof all compounded things, arouses fear towards birth, gains the knowledge of birth and, proceeding in the birthless, surpasses birth through the emanci-pation that is without hankering; and the release from the aggregates takesplace. Thus the unhankered emancipation is fulfilled through ill-penetration.
- Q. How is the void emancipation fulfilled through not-self-penetration? A. Attention to Not-self makes manifest the voidness of the formations and stirs up aversion for them. Thus wisdom and the four other faculties aregot. And the knowledge of the thus-isness of the faculties and of birth makemanifest the not-self of all compounded things. Liberating itself from the sign and birth, the mind, proceeding along the signless, the birthless, goesbeyond to breaking-up and Nibbdna, through the emancipation that is void; and the release from the aggregates takes place. Thus through not-self-penetration, the void emancipation is fulfilled. Thus do these three emanci-pations fulfil different Paths through penetration.

Evam san-khdrupekkhd vimokkhavisesam niyameti 7/—Pts.-a. Ill, 551).

Q. How do these three emancipations fulfil one Path through penetration? A. With the signless emancipation, three emancipations are gained. Owingto the signless, there is emancipation of the mind. Although emancipationis gained, there is hankering left, yet; therefore unhankered emancipation iswon. Thus the three emancipations are fulfilled. Through attention (toimpermanence etc.) emancipation of the mind is gained. Through emancipation from the sign and attachment, void emancipation is won and the three emancipations are fulfilled; because if emancipation from attachment isfulfilled, it also is emancipation due to attention to the sign. Thus afterattaining to the three emancipations the one Path is fulfilled.

EMANCIPATION AND THE ENTRANCE INTO IT

Q. What is the difference between emancipation and the entrance into emancipation? A. The freedom from the defilements that cloud Path-knowledge is emancipation. The entry into the sublime way [460] is entranceinto emancipation. Again emancipation is only Path-knowledge; its objectwhich is Nibbdna is called the entering into emancipation.

ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FOUR DEFILEMENTS

There are one hundred and thirty-four defilements. They are the three immoral roots, the three kinds of seeking, the four cankers, the four knots, the four floods, the four yokes, the four clingings, the four wrong coursesof action, the five kinds ofmeanness, the five hindrances, the six roots ofcontention, the seven latencies, the eight worldly conditions, the nine conceits, the ten defilements, the ten courses of immoral action, the ten fetters, the tenerrors, the twelve reversals, the twelve risings of immoral consciousness.

THREE IMMORAL ROOTS

Here, the three immoral roots are lust, hatred and delusion.1 (Of thesethree), hatred is thinned in two Paths. It perishes without remainder in the Path of Non-return. Lust and delusion are thinned in three Paths. They perish without remainder in the Path of Saintship.

THE THREE KINDS OF SEEKING

The three kinds of seeking are the seeking for pleasure, for existence and for holiness. 2 Of these three, the seeking for holiness is destroyed without remainder in the Path of Streamentrance. The seeking for pleasure is destroyed in the Path of Non-return. And the seeking for existence is destroyed in the Path of Saintship.

- 2. Ibid. 216: Tisso esand. Kdmesand, bhavesand, brahmacariyesand.

THE FOUR CORRUPTIONS

The four cankers are the canker of lust, of becoming, of views and ofignorance. Here, the canker of views is destroyed through the Path of Stream-entrance; the canker of lust is destroyed through the Path of Non-return; the cankers of becoming and ignorance are destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

THE FOUR KNOTS

The four knots are the knot of the group of covetousness, the knot of the group of ill will, the knot of the group of addiction to rites and ceremonies and the knot of the group of the obsession that "this is the truth".2

Here, the knots of the group of addiction to rites and ceremonies and the knot of the group of the obsession that "this is the truth" are cut throughthe Path of Stream-entrance. The knot of the group of ill will is cut throughthe Path of Non-return. The knot of the group of covetousness is cut through the Path of Saintship.

THE FOUR FLOODS

The four floods are the flood of lust, the flood of becoming, the flood ofviews and the flood of ignorance.3

THE FOUR YOKES

The four yokes are the yoke of lust, the yoke of becoming, the yoke ofviews and the yoke of ignorance.4 These are destroyed as it was taughtbefore.

THE FOUR CLINGINGS

The four clingings are the clinging of lust, of views, of addiction to ritesand ceremonies and of the theory of self.5 Here, three clingings are destroyed in the Path of Streamentrance. The clinging of lust is destroyed in the Pathof Saintship.

THE FOUR WRONG COURSES OF ACTION

The four wrong courses of action are the wrong course of action of desire, the wrong course of action of anger, the wrong course of action of fear andthe wrong course of action of delusion. 1 These four are cut in the Path of Stream-entrance.

THE FIVE KINDS OF MEANNESS

The five kinds of meanness are, namely, meanness as to dwelling, family,gain, colour and doctrine. These five are destroyed through the Path of Non-return.

THE FIVE HINDRANCES

The five hindrances are sense-desire, ill will, rigidity and torpor, agitationand anxiety, and uncertainty. Here uncertainty is destroyed through the Path of Stream-entrance; sense-desire, ill will and anxiety are destroyed through the Path of Non-Return; rigidity and agitation are destroyed through the Path of Saintship. Torpor goes together with the form.

THE SIX ROOTS OF CONTENTION

The six roots of contention are quarrelsomeness, envy, jealousy, craft, evil desires and infection of views, 4 Here, craft, evil desires and infection of views are destroyed in the Path of Stream-entrance. Quarrelsomeness, envy and jealousy are destroyed through the Path of Non-Return.

THE SEVEN LATENCIES

The seven latencies are the latency of sense-desire, the latency of anger, the latency of conceit, the latency of views, the latency of uncertainty, the latency of the desire for becoming and the latency of ignorance. Here, the latencies of views and uncertainty are destroyed through the Path of Stream-entrance. The latency of sense-desire and the latency of anger are destroyed through the Path of Non-Return. The latency of conceit, the latency of desire for becoming and the latency of ignorance are destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

THE EIGHT WORLDLY CONDITIONS

The eight worldly conditions are gain, loss, disgrace, fame, praise, blame, pain and pleasure. 2 Here, the resentment produced by the four kinds of places one dislikes, is destroyed through the Path of Non-Return. Theinclination for the four kinds of places one likes, is destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

THE NINE CONCEITS

One produces the conceit: "I am superior to others who are superior"; or one produces the conceit: "I am equal to the superior ones"; or one produces the conceit: "I am inferior to the superior ones;" or one produces the conceit: "I am superior to others who are like me;" or one produces the conceit: "I am inferior to others who are like me;" or one produces the conceit: "I am superior to those who are inferior;" or one produces the conceit: "I am equal to those who are inferior;" or one produces the conceit: "I aminferior to others who are inferior".3 These nine conceits are destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

THE TEN DEFILEMENTS

The ten defilements are greed, hatred, delusion, conceit, views, uncertainty, rigidity, agitation, immodesty, indecorum. 1 Here, views and uncertaintyare destroyed through the Path of Stream-entrance. Hatred is destroyed through the Path of Non-return. The other seven are destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

(And again, there are these) ten defilements: Here one thinks: "Thisman opposed me, opposes me, will oppose me"; or one thinks: "This manopposed those who are dear to me, is opposing them, will oppose them"; orhe thinks: "This man supported my enemy, is supporting him, will supporthim"; and he produces what is improper. These ten defilements are destroyedby the Path of Non-return.

THE TEN COURSES OF UNSKILFUL ACTIONS

The ten courses of unskilful action are: Taking the life of beings, takingwhat is not given, fornication, lying, slanderous talk, harsh talk, frivoloustalk, covetousness, ill will, wrong views.2 Here, the taking of life, of what isnot given, fornication, lying and wrong views are destroyed by the Path of Stream-entrance. Slanderous talk, harsh talk, ill will are destroyed by the Path of Non-return. Frivolous talk and covetousness are destroyed by the Path of Saintship.

THE TEN FETTERS

The ten fetters are sensuous-desire, ill will, conceit, self-illusion, uncertainty, addiction to rites and ceremonies, desire for existence, envy, avarice andignorance. Here, self-illusion, uncertainty, addiction to rites and ceremonies destroyed through the Path of Stream-entrance. Sensuous-desire, ill will, envy, and avarice are destroyed through the Path of Non-return. Conceit, desire for existence and ignorance are destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

THE TEN ERRORS

The ten errors are wrong view, wrong thought, wrong speech, wrongaction, wrong, livelihood wrong exertion, wrong mindfulness, wrong con-

Wrong thought, wrong speech in the sense of slanderous talk andharsh talk are destroyed by the Path of Non-return. Wrong speech in thesense of frivolous talk, wrong exertion, wrong mindfulness, wrong concentrationare destroyed through the Path of Saintship.

THE TWELVE REVERSALS

The twelve reversals are perception-reversal, thought-reversal, and view-reversal by which one regards the impermanent as permanent, the ill as well, the foul as fair and the not-self as self.2

Here, the three reversals by which one regards the impermanent aspermanent, the three reversals by which one regards the not-self as self, thereversal of view by which one regards the foul as fair and the reversal of viewby which one regards ill as well are destroyed through the Path of Streamentrance. The reversal of perception and the reversal of thought, by whichone regards the foul as fair, are destroyed through the Path of Non-return. The reversal of perception and the reversal of thought, by which one regardsill as well, are destroyed by the Path of Saintship.

THE TWELVE ARTSTNGS OF UNSKILFUL THOUGHT

The twelve arisings of unskilful consciousness are arisings of consciousnesswithout external stimulus and arisings of consciousness with external stimulus, associated with ^views and accompanied by joy; arisings of consciousnesswithout external stimulus and arisings of consciousness with external stimulus,not associated with views and accompanied by joy; arisings of consciousness without external stimulus and arisings of consciousness with external stimulus,associated with views and accompanied by indifference; arisings of consciousness without external stimulus and arising of consciousness with externalstimulus, not associated with views and accompanied by indifference; arisings of consciousness without external stimulus and arisings of consciousness without external stimulus associated with hatred and accompanied by grief; arisings of consciousness accompanied by excitement; and arisings of consciousness accompanied by uncertainty. The two arisings of consciousness which are accompanied (by grief) are thinned out in two Paths and destroyed without remainder through the Path of Non-return. The four arisings of consciousness not associated with views and the arising of consciousness accompanied by excitement are thinned out in three Paths and are destroyed without remainder through the Path of Saintship.

THE TWO ENJOYMENTS

There are two enjoyments. They are the enjoyment of the essence of the Fruit and the enjoyment of the attainment of dissolution which the commoner cannot acquire.

Q. What is the enjoyment of the Fruit? Why is it called enjoyment? Who enter upon it? How does one emerge? Why does one enter upon it? How does one enter upon it? How does one attend? Through how manyconditions is it fulfilled? Conditioned by what does it stand? What conditionscause it to arise? Is this enjoyment mundane or supramundane?

ENJOYMENT OF THE FRUIT

A. "What is the enjoyment of the Fruit?": This is recluse Fruit.1It is the pacification of the mind in Nibbdna. This is called "enjoyment ofthe Fruit".

Why is it called enjoyment of the Fruit? Because it is the effect of thesupramundane Path which is neither skilful nor unskilful. It is not an object. This is enjoyment of the Fruit. Here the Consummate One and the Non-returner enter this concentration.

A SECOND POINT OF VIEW

Again, there is another teaching: All Noble Ones can develop it astaught in the Abhidhamma thus: "For the sake of attaining the Path of Stream-entrance, it overcomes up-springing. This is called adoption". In the same way the others should be understood.

A THIRD POINT OF VIEW

Again, it is said: "Only those Noble Ones who have extirpated (thecankers) attain to (this) concentration". It is as has been stated in the utteranceof the Venerable Elder Narada to the bhikkhus: "Venerable sirs, it is as if in aforest mount there were a well, with no rope beside it for drawing water. Aman sore stricken by the heat of the sun, thirsty and tired, coming there, wouldmerely see the water without reaching it. Even so am I [461] venerable sirs;I know well that the destruction of becoming is Nibbdna, but I am not a Consum-mate One because I have not yet done with the cankers".2

THE SIGNLESS CONCENTRATION OF MIND

Why is it entered upon? Having seen the Law, one enters upon it forthe sake of dwelling in bliss, as the Blessed One declared to the Venerable

Elder Ananda: "At this time, Ananda, the Tathagata does not attend to any sign; he destroys sensation only and dwells developing the concentration of signless consciousness. At this time, Ananda, the body of the Tathagatais at peace".1

"How does one enter upon it?": A. If that yogin wishes to get theenjoyment of Fruition, he enters into a place of solitude, views the formationsby way of rise and fall and proceeds to adoptive-knowledge. Adoptive-knowledge brings the enjoyment of the Fruition of Nibbdna immediately. TheFruition that arises is of that meditation, jhdna, by which he attains to thePath. This is called the enjoyment of Fruition.

"How does one attend?": A. The unconditioned element of the Sublime is attended to through tranquillity.

"Through how many conditions is it fulfilled?", "Conditioned by whatdoes it stand?", Through what conditions does one emerge?: A. The yoginenjoys it through two conditions: the non-attending to all signs and the attending to the element of the signless.2 Three are the conditions of persistence: non-attention to all signs; attention to the signless element; previous preparation.3Two are the conditions of emergence: attention to all signs and non-attentionto the signless element.4

"Is this enjoyment mundane or supramundane?": A. This enjoymentis supramundane and not mundane.

Q. The Non-returner experiences the enjoyment of Fruition. Why doesnot adoption develop the Path of Saintship immediately? A. Because it doesnot reach the vision of insight and (that which is present) is of little strength.

The enjoyment of Fruition has ended.

THE ENJOYMENT OF THE DISSOLUTION OFPERCEPTION AND SENSATION

- Q. What is the enjoyment of the dissolution of perception and sensation ?Who enter upon it ? Through the fulfilment of how many kinds of strengthis it entered upon? Through the tranquillizing of how many activities is itentered upon? What are the preliminary duties? How is it entered upon?How does it persist? How does the mind emerge from it? Towards whatis the mind inclined ? By how many kinds of contact is it experienced ? Whatare the activities aroused at first? What is the difference between a dead man and a man who enters into the concentration of the dissolution of perceptionand sensation? Is this concentration conditioned or unconditioned? A. Thenot-proceeding of states of mind and mental properties—this is called the concentration of the dissolution of perception and sensation.

"Who enter upon it?": A, The Consummate One and the Non-returnerenter upon this attainment. Who do not enter upon it? The commoner, the Stream-entrant, the Once-returner and he who is born in the formlesselement. Here, the commoner cannot enter upon it, because he is not of thatplane. The Stream-entrant and the Once-returner cannot, because they havenot yet cut off the bondage of the defilements. He who enters the formlesselement cannot, because it is not its plane.

"Through the fulfilment of how many kinds of strength is it enteredupon?": A. It is entered upon through the fulfilment of two kinds of strength:serenity-strength and insight-strength. Here "serenity" means: "masterygained in the eight attainments".1 "Insight" means: "mastery gained in the seveninsights, namely, impermanence-reviewing, ill-reviewing, not-self-reviewing,repulsion-reviewing, dispassion-reviewing, cessation-reviewing, abandonment-reviewing. Serenity-strength develops the factors of the meditation, jhdna^of dissolution and develops ^ immovable emancipation. Through insight-strength one is able to see the tribulations of birth, and acquire the Freedom ofthe Unborn.

"Through tranquillizing how many activities is it entered upon?": A.One attains to concentration through the tranquillizing of three activities. They are verbal formations, bodily formations and thought formations. Here, entering into the second meditation, jhdna, one tranquillizes the verbal formations of initial and sustained application of thought. Entering into the fourthmeditation, jhdna, one tranquillizes the bodily formations of inhalation and exhalation. Entering into the concentration of the dissolution of perception and sensation, one removes the thought-formations of perception and and sensation.

"What are the preliminary duties?"2: A. There are four preliminaryduties: Non-destruction of others' property, discerning the time, non-dis-turbance, honouring the Community of Bhikkhus. He resolves as regardsbowl, robe and other requisites. He resolves as regards non-disturbance ofthis body in every way. He reflects on the strength of his body and resolvesafter discerning the time. Here, he should consider the remote past. Dis-cerning that it is not the time for the meeting of the Community of Bhikkhus,he sits and resolves: "I shall emerge, when I am called". And here thenon-destruction of others' property is for the sake of protecting the robes(of others). The second and third are for the sake of protecting the body.

The fourth is for the sake of not obstructing the meeting of the Community of Bhikkhus. Thus attaining to the sphere of nothingness and emerging therefrom, he performs the preliminary duties and enters the first meditation, jhdna.

Why is it developed? For the sake of happiness in the present. This is the Noble Individual's last immovable concentration. And again, for the sake of supernormal magical power, one enters the whole range of concentrationlike the Arahant Sanjlva.1 It is (entered also) for the sake of protecting the body as in the case of the Venerable Elder Sariputta2 and in the case of the Venerable Elder Tissa, the son of the Snowy Heron.

The Five Methods 325

"How is it entered upon?": That yogin enters into a solitary dwelling, and sitting down, or lying down, enjoys the consciousness of dissolution. Heenters the first meditation, ihdna, and merging from it peacefully, sees the impermanence, ill and not-self of that meditation, jhdna, immediately. Possessed of the knowledge of equanimity towards the formations, 1 he enters into the second, the third and the fourth meditations. indnas, the sphere of theinfinity of space, the sphere of the infinity of consciousness and the sphere of nothingness. Then emerging therefrom peacefully, he sees the impermanence, ill and not-self of Right Concentration immediately, and being possessed of the knowledge of equanimity towards the formations, he enters into the sphere of neither perception nor non-perception immediately. Then passingbeyond two or three turns of consciousness, he causes the perishing of mindand enters into the Unborn and the Unmanifest. This is called the entry into the attainment of the dissolution of perception and sensation.

"How does one persist?": He^*e one does not consider thus: "I shallemerge". In the performance of the preliminary duties, one discerns.

- "Howdoes the mind emerge (from it)?": The Non-returner emerges onthe attainment of the Fruit of Non-returning. The Consummate One emergeson the attainment of the Fruit of Saintship.
- Q. "Towards what is the mind inclined?": A, The mind inclines towardspeace only.
- Q. "By how many kinds of contact is it experienced?": A. Through threecontacts, namely, the contact of the void, the signless and the unhankered-after.

Through what formations does he emerge? With his bodily formations and his verbal formations.

"What is the difference between a dead man and a man who enters into the attainment of the dissolution of perception and sensation?": In the deadman, not only are three formations stilled, but vitality is cut off, heat is cutoff, the faculties are cut off. In the man who has entered the attainment of the dissolution of perception and sensation, although the (three) formations are stilled, vitality, heat and the faculties are not cut off. This is the difference.2

"Is this attainment conditioned or unconditioned?": One should not saythat this attainment is conditioned or unconditioned. Q. Why should it notbe said that his attainment is conditioned or unconditioned? ,4. There is no pattiyo. Tattha nirodha-samdpattiyd samddhi-pariydya sambhavo hetfhd vutto yeva.Pacchimass' eva pana dcariyd vannenti—Ud.-a. 245.).

put-together state in this attainment. The entry into and exit from the un-conditioned state cannot be known. Therefore it cannot be said that this attainment is conditioned or unconditioned.

The Attainment of the Concentration of Dissolution has ended.

The Twelfth Fascicle of the Path of Freedom has ended.

Here the chapters are as follows:—Introductory DiscourseOn Distinguishing VirtueOn Austerities

On Distinguishing ConcentrationOn Approaching a Good FriendThe Distinguishing of BehaviourThe Distinguishing of the Subjects of MeditationEntrance into the Subjects of MeditationFive Kinds of Higher KnowledgeOn Distinguishing WisdomThe Five MethodsThe Discernment of Truth

Thus is the sequence of the twelve chapters in the Path of Freedom.

Vast, boundless, past all thought and praise, are the good words and knowledge set forth here, and none but the yogin knows and grasps

the essence of the Doctrine full and clear.

Best is this Path for skilful deeds;

for it away from ignorance does steer.

APPENDIX

CONTEMPLATION IN THE DHAMMA*

BY

SOMA THERA

Nibbdna the goal of contemplation in the Buddha's teaching is reachedwith the attainment of knowledge {anndrddhand}, through gradual training,gradual work, and gradual practice (anupubbasikkhd, anupubbakiriyd,anupubbapatipadd). Says the Master, Truly, the penetration of knowledgeoccurs not abruptly' {na dyatakert eva anhdpativedho}. Step by step, andnot in the manner of a jumping frog, does a person progress on the NoblePath. Having fulfilled virtue first, then concentration, and after that wisdom,does one attain full sanctitude in the Buddha's doctrine.1

The order and method of development of the Path is shown in the Ratha-vinlta Sutta of the Majjhima Nikdya. There are seven purifications taughtthere. They are: purification of virtue, purification of mind, purification ofview, purification of transcending doubt, purification of knowledge and visionof what is and is not the Path, purification of knowledge and vision of practice, purification of knowledge and vision.

These seven have to be developed one by one, in the order given in thesutta mentioned above, because of the dependence of concentraction onvirtue, and of wisdom on concentration. The purifications have been setforth with an illustration of seven carriages arranged for Pasenadi, the kingof Kosala, from Savatthi to Saketa. No carriage takes the king beyond theone next to it on the road to Saketa, and the last carries him to his destination. The carriages arranged for the yogi going to Nibbdna are the seven purifica-tions. No purification takes the yogi beyond the one next to it on the roadto Nibbdna, and it is by the last that he reaches his bourne.

Virtue is fulfilled by the first purification, concentration, by the second, and wisdom that precedes the Supramundane Path by the next four purifications. The last purification is attained in the Supramundane Path-momentwhen all the factors of the Noble Path occur together. The purifications Bosat, July, 1959.

cannot function out of place. Each of the purifications has to work in itsproper place, and do what it should to aid the others in fulfilling the yogi'saim. None of these can be ignored as they are all vital parts of single system.1

The gradualness of the Path of the Buddha is also taught in the followingpassage: 'The attainment of knowledge at once, bhikkhus, I do not makeknown; still the attainment of knowledge occurs by gradual training, gradualwork, and gradual practice. How bhikkhus, does the attainment of knowledgeoccur, by gradual training, work, and practice? Here, a man imbubed withfaith draws near; drawing near, he sits down near by; sitting down near by, he pays attention; paying attention, he hears the doctrine; having heard thedoctrine, he remembers it; of what he remembers, he examines the meaning; while he examines the meaning, the teachings become intelligible to him; when to him the teachings become intelligible, ardour is born in him; whenhe is with ardour, he becomes energetic; having become energetic, he investi-gates the nature of things; having investigated the nature of things, he strivesto reach the Path; while striving to reach the Path, he realises truly by hismental body the highest truth and sees it, having penetrated it with wisdom'.2

Further the Buddha says in this connection that if that man had no faith,he would not have drawn near, sat down near by, and while paying attention,heard the doctrine and realised the truth.

Conscientiousness and the fear of doing evil are called the world-protectingqualities. These must be strong in one who, by faith in the Jewels, wishes topurify his virtue. These world-protecting qualities make for the refinement of mind essential for the purification of virtue, the first stage in the orderlyprogress of the Buddhist yogi.

One who observes the precepts carefully is never callous in regard toothers' good. He acts in a way that does not harm, injure, or distress others. The yogi bent on reaching the first stage of purity wants to be entirely freefrom any sense of guilt or remorse, 3 as they are not helpful to tranquillity, which he wants to acquire, and which has to be supported by strong virtue. Until a man has penetrated the meaning of virtue and appreciated fully itsimportance for the attainment of jhdnd; which has been described by the Buddha as a state that is separate from sense-desires and other mental conditions that hinder the development of insight, 4' he does hot produce the sensi-tiveness necessary for the purification of the first stage of progress on the Path.

One who is established in the purity of virtue has to guard his senses sothat he may not be overwhelmed by evil thoughts. This is done by makingthe mind see things in the way leading to right understanding. Such a onetrains himself in the practice of detachment, neutrality, or indifference, to allthat he contacts. .. 1 .'•'.'...•,

As earth, water, fire, and air, are not affected, and not worried, repelled, or vexed, by what is cast on them, so the yogi must be possessed of unshakableserenity and calm, in all circumstances. Then the things that flow into hismind through the senses will not be able to inflame him.5

Control of the sense-faculties, abandoning of thoughts of sense-desires, bringing into being the factors of enlightenment, and protecting the sign of concentration, are aspects of right effort to which the yogi has to pay attention. The practice of contemplation however, is born with the effort to control thesense-faculties. It may be rightly said that the long journey to peace and immunity from mental ill through the Path does not really begin until the through the Path does not really begin until the throughts useless for form ill, become habitual to the yogi. When control of the sense-faculties becomes strong and a habit, it makes for the maturing of the qualities necessary for intuition of highest freedom. The value of constant practice of restraint of the sense-faculties is brought out in the story given below of the Elder Mahatissa who dwelt on Cetiya Hill (Mihintale).

The Elder was once going for alms to Anuradhapura. A woman who hadquarrelled with her husband having thought, 'Remaining alone in the house better than this unpleasant marriage', got on to the road early in the morning, fully trimmed up and decked out like a divine nymph, to go towards Mihintale. And she who was going to the house of her relatives saw on the way the wor-shipful Elder of calm demeanour and broke out into wanton laughter withlow intent of making him look at her. The Elder, who was walking withattention on his basic contemplation subject, wondering 'What is it?' lookedup. And because of his seeing the row of bones of her teeth, his own contem-plation subject of bones became clear to his mind. Developing insight thenand there, he attained the Fruit of Arahatship. So it is said:

Having beheld the bones that were her teeth, And called back to mind his first perception, The elder, who was standing in that place, Indeed, arrived at the consummate state. The husband, who was going in search of her, saw the Elder and askedhim, 'Venerable sir, did you see a woman going?'. The Elder replied:

/ know not whether what passedThrough this place was a man or woman,But I know that on this highwayThere is going a frame of bones.1

One who is devoted to control of the senses should keep all evil thoughtsout of his mind and be unremitting in his effort to be on the alert rememberingthe teaching of the Buddha on diligence (appamdda), and also keep his thoughtsdirected on grasping the meaning of the Dhamma, by study of, and reflectionon, it. In that way the ardent disciple makes use of all his contacts to help the ripening of his wisdom. For bringing about that state of wisdom theyogi has to give attention to the practice of mindfulness and full awareness. Mindfulness is required in all effective contemplation. Through full awarenessone learns to do everything with deliberation and not on the spur of the moment. Mindfulness belongs to the aggregate of concentration of the Noble Path; it as to be highly developed before success in jhdna, meditation, that is aloof from sensedesires, and other evil states of mind, can be achieved. When contemplatives are weak in remembering what should be remembered atthe proper time their mindfulness is ineffective and full awareness of what is fit to be done, is not present. Then they also lack wise consideration, which isnecessary for overcoming adventitious defilements, and are assailed by passion. 1 The story of the Elder Tissabhuti, given in the commentary to the SabbdsavaSutta, illustrates what happens, when through lack of mindfulness and fullawareness, one considers an object unwisely. It is said that this Elder was over-come by passion for an object of the opposite sex, while he was collecting almsin a village, but by means of immediate reflection on the danger of such amental state, he abandoned the defilement by suppression, and returned tohis monastery. The object, however, came up to him in a dream. Seeingdanger in it, he was strongly moved to rid himself of the disturbing thought. He visited a teacher of contemplation. Having got from him a contemplationsubject connected with the foulness of the body and opposed to lust, he practised contemplation in a jungle, and attained the third Path of Sanctitude afterdestroying lust. 2

Mindfulness may also be likened to the driver of the yogi's car,3 whichtravels to Nibbdna, because it is mindfulness that keeps the mind to the rightpath, does not let the mind fall into any state of excess or deficiency, and makesfor the smooth working of all other mental qualities. In this sense mindfulnessmay also be called a protector and a refuge of the mind. Mindfulnessprevents the arising of mental discord; who practises mindfulness applieshimself to every action in the right way and is circumspective, planful, scrutini-sing, and bright of mind.

All kinds of contemplation for the production of serenity (samatha) and of insight (vipassand) are in a sense forms of mindfulness. Mindfulness is the central factor in the development of amity (mettd), which is a contemplation subject of serenity and in pondering on things (dhammdnup as sand), which is a contemplation subject of pure insight (suddhavip as sand); so mindfulness is wanted in all wholesome activities of the yogi, and has been compared to a salt-tempering required for all curries. 1

Mindfulness is above all the quality chiefly instrumental in organisingmental activity generally, making it useful and coherent, producing mentalcatharsis (cittavoddna)* and perfecting sense-faculty restraint. In connection with control of the sense-faculties it has been compared to a rope that restrains a rebellious elephant. Pure intellectual activity cannot come to be unless the mind is freed of the dirt of false imaginings, judgment and views, throughmindfulness, which produces right understanding through its ability to discriminate, choose what is good, and eliminate what is ill.

The development of mind (cittabhdvand) takes place through serenity(samatha), which eliminates obstructions to clear thinking. Without such eli-mination clear vision due to analysis that is to say, insight (yipassand)can never arise. Serenity has been described thus, 'What extinguishes, destroys, the hostile things beginning with sense-desire is serenity; it is a name for con-centration'. Insight has been explained thus, 'What sees things in differentways, according to impermanence and the like, is insight; it is a name forwisdom'. These two, serenity and insight, are essential factors of the Supra-mundane Path. But they are also necessary to the antecedent part of the Path leading to the highest. In the antecedent part of the Path these two aremundane factors. Thus they have first to be developed as mundane qualities before they can become supramundane.4

Of the great suttas in which both serenity (samatha) and insight {vipassand}have been combined, the most popular are the Satipatthdna Sutta of the Majjhi-ma Nikdya, and the Mahd Satipatthdna Sutta of the Digha Nikdya. Nowboth these discourses on the foundations of mindfulness lay more stress on thedevelopment of insight, but the aim of these suttas is to lead the yogi to therealisation of the highest according to the inevitable method of attainment taught in the Noble Eightfold Path, that is, by following the order of the sevenpurifications.

The yogi who wishes to train himself in contemplation, that is, in thehigher training of the mind (adhicittasikkhd), and of wisdom (adhipannd-sikkhd), should be one who, having perfected his purity of virtue and exer-cised himself in the control of the sense-faculties (indriya samvara), has wellestablished himself in mindfulness and full awareness (satisampajanna). Con-centrating on a contemplation subject of serenity (samatha kammatthdna)at first, he should labour to suppress the hindrances and stop distraction.1 Inthe Patisambhidd Magga (I, 27), it is said that the abandoning of the hind-rances by suppression occurs in him who develops the First Jhdna (vikkham-bhanappahdnan ca nivarandnam pathamajjhdnam bhdvayato).2 Of no statebefore the First Jhdna has it been said by the Blessed One that it is separatefrom sense-desires and separate from other evil states, that is to say, alooffrom the hindrances that obstruct clear vision, by being far from the plane of the sensuous (kdmdvacara bhumi)?

The whole teaching of the two main Satipatthana Suttas on inner develop-ment belongs to the antecedent (mundane) part of the way (pubbabhdgamagga)or the antecedent (mundane) part of progress (pubbabhdgapatipadd).* Theteaching of these two suttas comprises the preparatory training in contemplation, the development of mundane concentration and insight. said that the teaching of the discourses on the foundations of mindfulness, the Satipatthdna Suttas, is a combination of serenity and insight and that itlays stress on insight. But the practice of serenity in these suttas on mind-fulness is not something that can be ignored. The Satipatthdna Suttas donot permit of restriction only to the development of insight. In short thepractice of serenity (samatha) in these suttas is not optional. It is necessary for the cultivator of mindfulness to bring into being both serenity and insight, because the first leads to the second, and the practice of the first, that is, serenity is unavoidable for the beginner in the practice of the Foundations of Mindful-ness, according to the pattern of the standard suttas on the subject. Theinsight taught in these suttas can be developed only by those who have thepurity of virtue (silavisuddhi) and the purity of mind (cittavisuddhi), whichis always taught in the books as the product of serenity, mental purity, whichmust be in existence before one begins to purify one's views. 1 So the Buddhabegins his instruction in the two standard Satipatthdna Suttas by setting forththe way of producing serenity through mindfulness on breathing (dndpdnasati), for purification of mind through the meditation, jhdna, by which he himselfattained full enlightenment, sambodhi, and of which he said, 'This truly isthe way to enlightenment (eso va maggo bodhdya)}

The placing of the first tetrad of the Andpdnasati Sutta at the very beginning of the two main Satipatthdna Suttas is clear indication of the necessity of at least the First Jhdna, the first meditaion of the plane of form, for gettingrid of the hindrances and coming to the proper ground for the development of insight, the ground that is aloof from sense-desires and other evil states. It is certain that, from the structure of the Satipatthdna Suttas, the testimony of other suttas, and the whole architecture of the Noble Eightfold Path seen from different angles, there is no getting away from the fact that the development of insight is impossible to one who has not brought into being the antecedent part of the Path, at least, the First Jhdna. This is because it is admitted on all hands that the lowest jhdna needed in the Supramundane Pathis the First Jhdna.

It should be clear to those who know the Texts that there is no way ofavoiding the practice of serenity and the development of at least the FirstJhdna, in the antecedent part of the Noble Path according to the facts men-tioned below. The Buddha placed the first tetrad of the Andpdnasati Sutta, an exercise in serenity, at the very beginning of the two main SatipatthdnaSuttas; the Patisambhidd passage cited above attributes the abandoning ofthe hindrances by suppression to one who develops nothing less than theFirst Jhdna; the Buddha does not apply the words, 'having separated himselffrom sense-desires, having separated himself from evil states', namely, fromthe hindrances, to a winner of a lower state than the First Jhdna; and theBuddha has defined Right Concentration, Sammdsamddhi, as the four jhdnas, and not anything lower than them.1

No progress in contemplation leading towards the Supramundane Pathis possible without at least getting the First Jhdna. The practice of insight isunfruitful, ineffective, and obstructed when it is attempted without goingaway from thought-proximity to the sensual plane, kdmabhumi. In onewho has attained the First Jhdna a proper environment is created internallyfor the intuition of the highest as well as for progress in the antecedent part of the Path that is connected with insight-development.

Of the First Jhdna, from the time of coming to which a yogi undergoesthe first great transformation of consciousness, it is said that it is the escape from sensuality. That escape is due to the factor of unification in the jhdnabrought about by concentration on what is not connected with sense-desire. With the escape into the consciousness of the First Jhdna the sensuous realmis not in being for the yogi, since attainment of this jhdna is only possible with abandoning the sensuous realm. As the light of a lamp is not in beingwhen there is full darkness, so jhdna is not in being when sense-desires, whichare contrary to it, are present. As by leaving the hither bank the reaching of the thither bank takes place, so by giving up sense-desires the First Jhdnais reached. The First Jhdna, owing to its transcension of the element of thesensuous (kdmadhdtu samatikkamanato) and its being opposed to sensuouslust (kdmdrdga patipakkhabhdvato), is truly free from sense-desires. In thesense of escape from sense-desires this jhdna is renunciation according to the Venerable Sariputta Thera's words. This is the escape from sense-desires, namely, renunciation.2

In the Dantabhumi Sutta of the Majjhima Nikdya, the Blessed one saysthat it is not possible for one who is given to a life of pleasure, who indulgeshimself in sensual delights, who is devoured by sensual thoughts, who is con-sumed with the fever of sensual enjoyment, and who is eager in the pursuitof the sensually pleasant, to experience, see, or realise, what has to be experienced, seen, and realised by renunciation of sense-desires.1 Now sense-desires and the other hindrances to the First Jhdna are not conducive to the penetra-tion of things and seeing them as they are. So, for the development of insight(vipassand), the bringing into being of the First Jhdna is indispensable according to the Buddha's teaching, that is to say, the words of the Buddha in the PaliTexts.2 There is no doubt that according to the Bodhisatta's words repeated by the Buddha in conformation, the First Jhdna is truly the way to enlighten-ment, and so this jhdra has a specially important place in the Buddha's schemeof salvation.
